U. S. to Mail First Checks Of New Soil Plan on Oct. 1

Benefits Coincide With Ballot Drive

By Robert C. Albright.

The first golden flow of farm benefit checks, considered potent political medicine in the two and one-half years of AAA production control, will stream into the mails around October 1, six weeks before the November Presidential election, it was learned yesterday at the Agriculture Department.

Although New Deal farm chieftains deny intended campaign implications, first distribution of the $500,000,000 authorized under the soil conservation program will range over a period dovetailing closely with the final burst of campaigning.

Based on "performance" of farmers in fulfilling soil restoration and land adjustment objectives of the Administration, the benefit payments will find their way into the Midwestern corn belt, where the bid for the farm vote is sharpest, as well as other contested agricultural areas.

Department officials point out, however, that the payments probably will not reach their peak until December.

Stopped by Ruling.

The flood of AAA production control checks, which had reached $1,089,754,587 on December 31, 1935, suddenly was clipped off last January 6 by the Supreme Court decision invalidating production control and processing tax provisions of the agriculture adjustment act.

Save for the $296,000,000 that was later appropriated by Congress to fulfill contracts previously entered into with farmers, there has been no distribution of benefits under the so-called soil conservation program that was built on the ruins of AAA.

Intended as a stop-gap expedient before institution of a national program of Federal farm aid co-operation with the States in 1938, the present law authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to spend not more than $500,000,000 in preserving and improving soil fertility, promotion of economic use and conservation of land, lessening of exploitation and unprofitable use of natural resources, protection of rivers and harbors against soil erosion, and re-establishment of the ratio between purchasing power of farm income and nonfarm income that prevailed in the period 1909 to 1914.

Officials said yesterday that full power to take steps toward farm income parity will not be available until the State-aid phase of the law goes into effect January 1, 1938. After that date benefit payments cannot be made directly to farmers. Instead, grants will be made to States carrying out programs approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Legislation Needed.

But before the State-aid plan will become operative, the States themselves must take the initiative by enacting enabling legislation. To date, only three States—Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina—have done so. Administration farm leaders are banking heavily for support on the regular sessions to be held next January by all State Legislatures except five. Experts have been working busily on "model" State laws, to be submitted to the Legislatures for guidance. Even with favorable legislation, they fear that the necessity for the Federal Government dealing individually with 48 States may prove somewhat cumbersome and unwieldly.

Meanwhile, the task of checking farm "performance" in preparation for paying out the 1936 soil conservation benefits, is already under way. J. B. Hutson, assistant farm administrator, estimates it is at least a two or three month job.

Under the new program, only one payment will be made to a producer during the course of a year, in lieu of the old AAA system of making preliminary payments. Officials contend that this change alone necessarily delays the date at which distribution can begin. Under the new rgeulations, the payments will not be made public until at least 30 days after they have been received by producers.

Post Cameraman Catches Lightning Striking Landmark

Anti-Roosevelt Democrats Call Meeting Aug. 7

By William V. Nessly.

Further emphasizing the cleavage in the Democratic Party, a group of prominent members of the party who are opposed to re-election of President Roosevelt yesterday called a conference to weld their opposition into an active, concerted campaign against the Executive's return to office.

The conference, set for August 7, in Detroit, was actually summoned by Sterling E. Edmunds, a St. Louis attorney, who has been attending to the organization details, but those actively behind the meeting include former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri; Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson, and Former Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts. All of these three signed the Al Smith manifesto to the delegates at the June Democratic Convention in Philadelphia, calling on the convention to repudiate Mr. Roosevelt.

Two Seized Here In Numbers Ring

Two men were charged with operating a lottery yesterday when vice squad police arrested one man in a store building in the 1400 block H street northwest, and received information from him that led to the arrest of another.

Shortly before noon Sergt. George Deyoe took into custody Richard L. Haliburton, 37, colored, of the 1400 block Twelfth street northwest, in the vacant shop. "Numbers" slips and marked money were found on his person, police said.

After questioning at headquarters, Haliburton gave information that led to the arrest of George T. Speleos, 19, of the 800 block G street southwest, who was arrested in an automobile at Eleventh and I streets northwest. A large amount of alleged "numbers" were confiscated from the automobile. Police said this man probably was a collector.

Bolts Strike Washington Shaft As Rainstorm Drenches Capital

An electrical storm broke over the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia last night, striking the Monument, snuffing out the red lights atop the historic shaft, setting fire to the home of Arthur Godfrey, the radio announcer, and uprooting trees.

Lightning struck the famous obelisk twice, leaving the towering structure illuminated only by floodlights that play on it from the base. The lights were installed to warn aviators soaring over the Capital.

The bolts stabbed through the window of the Monument's guard room also, it was learned, and struck the switchboard at about the same time the lights went out more than 555 feet up in the cloudy sky.

Damage to the lights could not be repaired last night, Lamont Fisher, guard chief, who was on the "firing line" of the storm, reported. They will have to be reconditioned today.

He was just picking up the telephone when the lightning struck, searing its way into the switchboard and sending a myriad of sparks crackling and dancing in all directions.

Mrs. Moody Quits Tennis for Career In Dress Designing

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, July 27.—Helen Wills Moody, the poker-faced Berkeley girl, who dominated women's tennis for more than a decade, today announced her virtual retirement from competition because she is entering a new career—dress designing.

Queen Helen might change her mind before another year rolls around, but for the present she is determined not to lift a racquet again in quest of the major titles she once held and which now belong to her arch rival, Helen Hull Jacobs, another product of Pop Fuller's tennis teaching.

She definitely will not play in the American championships at Forest Hills late this summer.

A third reason, of which Helen made no mention, is the contention of some experts that her game isn't what it used to be.

Howard Kinzey, her coach and playing mate at the California Tennis Club, says that Mrs. Moody's strokes are stronger and surer than ever. But numerous other experts who have seen her in practice or stood across the net from her, say her game is softening up and she lacks the speed and precision which carried her to more world's and national titles than she can count on her fingers.

Mrs. Moody made her announcement in a statement this afternoon to confirm reports which have been circulating ever since she passed up the Wimbledon tournament this year.

Tinker Denies Stock Deals To 'Cover-Up'

SEC Wins Initial Round in Court Fight Over Investigation.

By the Associated Press.

Opening a Congressionally ordered investigation of investment trusts, after winning a preliminary court skirmish, the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday ran into a suggestion that one large company had bought its own stock to "bail out" bankers.

A question from commission counsel suggesting the Inter-State Equities Corporation of New York had bought its own stock from the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation "to bail the bankers out of their position in it was hotly denied by a former president of the trust.

Edward R. Tinker, the former president, also quickly denied that a balance sheet shrinkage in the trust's assets from $25,000,000 in 1929 to $4,450,000 in 1932 represented a "loss."

Later, counsel for the commission contended a director of Interstate and of Chain and General Equities, a Boston investment trust, had made profits of $300,000 through stock deals in the two companies "without putting up a nickel" of his own money.

The hearing started after the commission had won the initial round in a court battle involving its authority to proceed with the inquiry.

Move Called Trick.

In Federal District Court here, Judge Oscar Luhring denied a plea by Frederick T. Fisher, of New York to prevent the commission from obtaining records of the Equity Corporation of New York, of which Fisher is a stockholder.

Judge Luhring announced, however, he would hold a hearing on Fisher's action August 5. Pending a final court decision, counsel agreed the commission should proceed with the hearing without using Equity records.

In New York, Fisher issued a statement saying his action was designed to test the authority of the Government to claim the time of businessmen.

Contending that various governmental agencies were demanding more and more time of businessmen, Fisher said "the time has come to clarify the mutual responsibilities of businessmen on the one hand and of deputized governmental officials on the other."

In the court proceeding here, however, David Schenker, attorney for the commission, characterized Fisher's move as "a subterfuge and a trick to delay the hearing."

Decline in Value.

Schenker sought to gain an affirmative reply to questions as to whether the company's "loss" was reflected in balance-sheet figures showing a shrinkage in asserts from $25,000,000 on October 15, 1929, to $4,450,000 on June 30, 1932.

Saying this could be regarded as a "loss," only on "a basis of accounting that writes securities down to their so-called market value," Tinker added that on this basis "you wouldn't have had any solvent institutions in the country" between 1929 and 1932.

"You asked me to say whether this was a loss," he continued. "I say it was not."

Schenker then turned to a transaction under which he said interstate repurchased 35,975 shares of its own preferred stock from Bancamerica-Blair, sponsor of interstate, for a total of $1,055,757. He said the purchase price averaged $29.31.

Declaring that five directors of Interstate, including Tinker, also served as directors of Bancamerica-Blarr, Schenker sought to show that a few months later the market value of the repurchased stock dropped from an average of 29 to 10. He asked whether Tinker thought this "was a coincidence."

"It was the trend of the market," the witness answered.

"'It was not an effort to bail the bankers out of their position in the preferred stock?" queried Schenker.

"That is not the fact," Tinker snapped. "Your mind is like a lot of minds I see nowadays. When you have been in business a few years you will understand."

Rebel Army Massing For Madrid Assault; Bowers Leaves Spain

U. S. Envoy Will Tour Coast, Aid in Evacuating Americans

Ambassador and Staff Temporarily in France; Americans Entraining at Madrid for Valencia, Where They Will Leave Country by Ship.

By Felix Bruner.

Claude G. Bowers, United States Ambassador to Spain, and the embassy staff were in France last night, having fled from revolution-torn Spain.

Bowers notified the State Department he planned to board the Coast Guard cutter Cayuga today for a trip around the northern and western coast of the country, assisting in evacuation of the few remaining Americans in the coastal cities.

The ambassador and his staff were temporarily in St. Jean de Luz, France. The ambassador had been in Feunterabbia, Spain, near San Sebastian, where he was virtually isolated. The staff had left San Sebastian Sunday after reporting that a heavy battle was in progress there.

Thus the United States will have what amounts to a "floating embassy" aboard the cutter, capable of maintaining constant wireless communication and of assisting wherever their services are needed. It is hoped, also, that through the battleship Oklahoma, now in Spanish waters, the ambassador will be able to communicate with Madrid, where more than 160 Americans were stranded.

Meanwhile, reports from Madrid said United States citizens there were entraining for Valencia, where they could be picked up and taken from Spain by British or United States ships. The State Department was attempting to confirm this report.

At the same time, the Navy Department said the battleships Arkansas and Wyoming, with 1,100 midshipmen aboard, had left Cherbourg for Hampton Roads, Va. Some of the middies had been transferred from the Oklahoma when it was ordered to Spanish waters.

The Arkansas and Wyoming also

Foe Poorly Armed, Insurgents Assert

The Spanish Revolt.

Rebel leaders at Burgos, outside Madrid, last night brought up reinforcements of 10,000 troops preparatory to fresh assaults on the Guadarrama Mountain passes leading to the capital. A major attack on the city awaited contact of the armies of Gen. Emilio Mola, northern leader, and Gen. Francisco Franco, southern chieftain.

The government estimated revolt casualties have exceeded 19,000.

Bitter fighting was reported near Gibraltar. Rebel troops marching on Malaga defeated loyal communists in battles at San Roque and Guadiro.

Americans were leaving Madrid by special train. Ambassador Bowers reported to the State Department he would begin a tour today of Spanish coastal cities. He will aid in evacuating Americans now in Spain.

Rebels Increase Force.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Spanish Rebel Headquarters, South of Burgos, July 27.—Spain's insurgents hurriedly brought up 10,000 reinforcements tonight for a fresh assault on the Sierra Guadarrama Passes.

It is in that section that the fighting has been stalemated since Friday.

The fresh troops moved in long columns past Gen. Miguel Cabanellas before they scrambled into trucks and began their motorized march to the front. They appeared to be amply equipped with supplies, and the men—gathered from all parts of Navarre—displayed excellent military qualities.

There also was a column of volunteers, commanded by regular army officers, and accompanied by nurses and other women auxiliaries.

Confident of Victory.

The aged, white-bearded Cabanellas said he was confident of victory as the insurgent staff was organized for a methodical hammering at the passes—the mountain gates to Madrid.

For the last few days there has been a picturesque disorder among the insurgents which probably explains their inability to get to Madrid before the central government had time to organize the militia defense.

The radio is filled with contradictory reports and claims of victories heard in the field have been proved untrue. A member of the insurgent general staff today outlined the situation from the rebels viewpoint.

"Technically the situation is favorable," he said. "The government militia in Madrid does not have a single regular army unit supporting it. The little artillery they possess came from the seventh regiment at Getafe, 6 miles from Madrid, but this regiment possesses little ammunition.

Short of Munitions.

"The government militia at Madrid is commanded by officers of the assault guards and several regular army officers such as Col. Mangada and Gen. Riquelme. They are poorly armed and short of munitions.

"Gen. Emilio Mola (rebel commander on the northern front), does not want to move too rapidly, as he must insure the safety of his flanks and rear. As soon as Gen. Franco (rebel commander in Morocco), completes the movement of his troops from Morocco, which is now in progress, there will be simultaneous movement on Madrid from both the north and south."

As far as air strength goes, the rival forces appear to be evenly divided. Franco has a strong air force, but Mola has few planes.

The government has been able to bomb Saragossa, Jaca and Seville and today it sent an ultimatum to

4 Bewhiskered Roosevelts Halt At Campobello

By the United Press.

Campobello, New Brunswick, July 27.—The bewhiskered Roosevelts came home today. That is, they came to Campobello long enough to startle wife and mother with a full assortment of whiskers cultivated meticulously during two weeks of a sea-going vacation on the schooner-yacht Sewanna.

The President sported sideburns, although some of his close friends insisted they had blossomed sufficiently to fall into the "mutton chop" class. James, his eldest son, had 14 days' growth of "under the chin" whiskers.

Others Have Mustaches.

Mr. Roosevelt at first considered a full beard, but broke down after a week and shaved, retaining, however, the bullfighter's sideburns. With the whiskers, it was said, he resembled sharply his father, the late James Roosevelt, and as such hoped to play a practical joke on his wife and his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt.

The other two boys, who with James, made up the crew of "gentlemen deck hands" of the Sewanna, had slight outcroppings of mustaches. Those two, however, shaved more or less regularly.

While here, Mrs. Roosevelt, Nancy Cook and a small group of friends went on board. They lunched with the President and the boys on the afterdeck and chatted until it was time for the boat to depart on the final leg of the ocean holiday.

To See Tweedsmuir.

It was expected the President would spend most of tomorrow at L'Etang, probably going ashore for a picnic with members of the family and friends before giving word for the sail back to Campobello and the official termination of the cruise.

He will remain at Campobello until Thursday when he will go by boat to St. Andrews, New Brunswick, 16 miles away to board a private train that will carry him to Quebec.

At the citadel in Quebec he will confer with Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's governor general. He will remain only a day in that historic city and then proceed to the United States.

Rt. Rev. Kerby Dies; Founder Of Charity Unit

The Right Rev. William J. Kerby, organizer of Catholic Charities, professor of sociology at Catholic University and editor of the Ecclesiastical Review, died early yesterday at his home, 3900 Connecticut avenue. He was 66 years old.

His nephew, the Rev. Dr. William Russell, also a member of the faculty of Catholic University, will celebrate the funeral mass tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the crypt of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the campus of the university. Burial will be in Sioux City, Iowa, on Friday.

Mgr. Kerby had been on the Catholic University faculty since 1897, beginning as an associate professor of sociology. In 1907 he was named a full professor and three years later became a member of the department of sociology of Trinity College, a position he held 20 years. He was the first and only chaplain of Trinity, holding that position until his death.

Dr. Kerby was born in Lawlor, Iowa, February 20, 1870. After attending public and parish schools in his native town he studied at St. Joseph's College in Dubuque and at St. Francis Seminary in Wisconsin.

Honored in 1893.

In 1893 he received the degree of bachelor of sacred theology from Catholic University. The following year he received the Licentiate. After completing his college work in the United States, he studied at the Universities of Berlin and Louvain, receiving the degree of doctor of social and political science from the latter in 1897. Notre Dame University conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws in recognition of his work as a sociologist.

Mgr. Kerby was ordained at Dubuque on December 21, 1892. He was invested with the rank of domestic prelate to His Holiness Pope Pius XI, on April 19, 1934, by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, at a brilliant ceremony in the chapel of Trinity

Florida Menaced By Fresh Storm

Miami, Fla., July 27 (U.P.).—Six hours after a tropical storm whirled over the Louisiana coast line, doing minor damage south of New Orleans, a second storm swept out of the Caribbean Sea toward Florida.

The Federal hurricane warning system at 9:30 p. m. ordered northeast storm signals hoisted along the Florida east coast from Fort Pierce to Key West.

A tropical disturbance, increasing in intensity, was sweeping toward the peninsula from the Bahama Islands, breeding place of violent storms.

The Louisiana storm blew itself out in desolate marshlands south of New Orleans after damaging oil derricks and communication lines. South Floridians tonight prepared to keep close contact with the hurricane warning system as the new disturbance began to whirl toward the peninsula.

If it continues to move northwestward with increasing intensity, there is the possibility it might approximate hurricane force and reach striking distance of Miami within 50 hours.

Koko of Komodo, Fairyland's Public Enemy, Dies of Hunger Strike Induced by Nostalgia

By Edward T. Folliard.

No wild thing was ever plied with such succulent meals. At first he responded voraciously, polishing off 14 eggs and a couple of chickens at one meal. That was in June, 1934. But about six months ago, he "got off his feed," as they say at the Zoo, and nothing the keepers offered would break the fast.

Thus, the other day he died at the age of 15, whereas had he been in far-away Komodo he might have lived beyond 100.

From a strictly scientific standpoint, the fearsome creature was not a dragon at all. He was a lizard—the largest type of lizard in the world—and his home had been in the Komodo Island in the East Indies. Close to 9 feet in length, he had a forked tongue which one expected to see spout flames, and teeth which could tear a wild pig or a deer to pieces in no time.

He was not a dragon, but no scientist could tell that to the kids who watched him gliding around his rockpile at the Zoo.

To them he most certainly was a dragon, just like those which, in the story book, had guarded fairy princesses in enchanted castles, and like the dragon King Arthur had dreamed about, except that it didn't have wings.

But Komodo Island, a speck on the map between the islands of Sumbawa and Blores, east of Java, was not a fairyland. Koko was a cold-blooded reptile, related, like all lizards, more closely to the snakes than any other living things, and a little more distantly to the turtles and crocodiles, which belong to different orders of the reptilia.

He was captured with seven other dragon lizards by two amateur zoologists—Lawrence T. E. Griswold and William H. Harkness—who used wild pigs as bait to trap them. By arrangement with the Dutch Government, four of the eight went to a zoo in Java and the other four were started for the United States.

One of the lizards died on shipboard following a hunger strike. Of the remaining three, two went

Walker Named Finances Chief For Democrats

New Committee Chairman Says Party Will Need Less Than in 1932.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 27.—Democratic Chairman James A. Farley today announced the appointment of Frank C. Walker, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and head of the National Recovery Council, as chairman of the Democratic finance committee.

He also announced former Ambassador James W. Gerard would be honorary chairman.

Walker and W. Forbes Morgan, treasurer of the national committee, were present at Farley's press conference when the announcemnt was made.

Also present was Dean Alfange, general counsel of the Axton-Fisher Tobacco Co., of Louisville, Ky., and of the Standard Commercial Tobacco Co., of New York, who presented Walker with his personal check for $1,000 as the first contribution received after Walker's appointment.

Walker said he had not had an opportunity to discuss finances with party leaders, but believed they would not need as large an amount as in 1932, or approximately $1,800,000.

Eleven Hamilton Speeches.

Meanwhile, Chairman Farley declared the Democratic campaign was about to enter "its fighting phase" as Republican headquarters made public a schedule of 11 regional broadcasts planned by Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton in the West.

Referring to a broadcast tomorrow night in which six Democratic Governors will discuss Gov. Alf. M. Landon's acceptance speech, Farley said:

"The Democratic campaign to reelect President Roosevelt enters its fighting phase Tuesday night.

"The acceptance speech of the Republican nominee will be put under the close-up examination of six of his fellow Governors."

Governors to Speak.

The Governors who will speak are Theodore F. Green, of Rhode Island; George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania; Henry Horner, of Illinois; Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa; Roy L. Cochran, of Nebraska, and Charles H. Martin, of Oregon.

The tentative schedule of Hamilton's broadcasts, to be made on a two weeks' swing through the West, was given out by Theodore Allen, director of the radio division of the Republican National Committee.

The tour will start Friday with a broadcast in Indiana and will end August 14 in Missouri. Other broadcasts will be as follows: Iowa, August 3; North Dakota, August 4; Utah and Idaho, August 5; Montana and Washington, August 6; Oregon and Northern California, August 7; Southern California, August 10; Arizona and New Mexico, August 11; Texas, August 12, and Oklahoma and Colorado, August 13.

Farley Sees McGrath.

One of Farley's visitors was Joseph McGrath, Democratic State chairman in Massachusetts, who predicted his State would go Democratic this fall.

"President Roosevelt positively will carry Massachusetts," he said. "There is not a question in the world about it.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, manager of the Republican campaign in the East, was visited by Senator Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island who told him that Rhode Island "is in a sorry state of affairs because of the New Deal and you will find that the voters up there are going to get rid of it in November."

Other visitors at Republican headquarters were Representative W. G. Andrews, of Buffalo, and Surrogate Louis B. Hart, also of Buffalo. They told Martin Gov. Landon would carary Erie County by a larger margin than that received by President Roosevelt in 1932.

Farley said he would confer tomorrow with Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

Politics and People

By Franklyn Waltman

THE national political pot has started boiling earlier this year than is usual in the quadrennial Presidential contests. Usually the summer months, as the acceptance speeches are out of the way, are set aside for vacations and a breathing spell before the real hostilities commence. But this year not only are the professional politicians already engaging in clinches but the spectators seem to be warming up.

WALTMAN.

The other night a scuffle took place in a Washington motion-picture house when a man hissed the newsreel portraying Gov. Alf M. Landon delivering his acceptance speech. Apparent supporters of the Kansan started pushing the hisser around and he pushed back. When men commence fighting over political issues this early in the campaign it is a sign that people are becoming stirred up.

There is perhaps more popular interest in this year's Presidential contest than in any campaign since that of 1896 when William Jennings Bryan with his program for the free coinage of silver gave those who had a few dollars a bad scare and raised the hopes of those in debt or those desiring to get a few dollars. The Smith-Hoover contest in 1928, due to prohibition and the religious issue, stirred some communities but not nearly to the extent of the Bryan-McKinley set-to.

The same factors which aroused the electorate in 1896 apparently are at work in this election. Men in that year voted out of selfish interest for the most part, and men and women will vote this year, for the most part, out of selfish interest. In making their decision they will ask themselves the question: "What does this personally mean to me?"

Those who own property, who pay taxes and who are doing well are examining the issues and the candidates from a purely personal viewpoint. So, too, are labor leaders and their followers, the farmers, jobless and those on relief rolls. Each group is undertaking to decide whether the election of Gov. Landon or President Roosevelt will best promote their personal success.

It is the considered opinion of many observers that if Gov. Landon can successfully put across the idea that his election would mean a further upward spurt in economic recovery, that employment would increase, that the man on the relief rolls would not lose his allotment and that the country generally would be spared future taxes which it might otherwise pay—if the Kansan can convince the Nation that those things will materialize with his election, then his election is assured.

Incidentally, it is notable that Gov. Landon in his acceptance speech promised each of these things. The party in power when conditions are improving always enjoys a strong psychological advantage—it has a forceful slogan in "don't rock the boat." That advantage this year belongs to President Roosevelt and the Democrats, and that is the reason the Republicans place so much emphasis on the uncertainties of the New Deal. They are trying to turn the phrase against Mr. Roosevelt and make him out as the man who is retarding business recovery by "rocking the boat."

When people are moving forward and are ahead of the game, they do not like uncertainties, nor do they want the rules of the game changed. The President's reputation for quickly changing his course—thus forever creating uncertainty—is his weakest point and may prove his undoing.

Political potpourri: The whispering campaign that Gov. Landon is anti-Semitic gets another set-back by the announcement of Roger W. Straus, one of the leading Jews in the country, that he favors the Kansan. Mr. Straus is co-chairman of the National Conference of Jews and Christians for Religious Freedom . . . William H. Vanderbilt, son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt who was lost when the Lusitania was torpedoed, is in a four-cornered fight for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Rhode Island . . . Republican leaders assert that some of the prominent Democrats who will bolt President Roosevelt before November would make you whistle. We'll wait and see . . . Polls and newspaper prognostications to the contrary—notwithstanding, Nicholas Stephanos Vasilakos, the White House peanut and popcorn man, says President Roosevelt will be re-elected. Steve is not partisan. He always favors the man in the White House, Democrat or Republican . . . Phil C. Hanna, Chicago Journal of Commerce editor, tells Montana Bankers Association that the President and United Mine Workers' John L. Lewis "made a horse trade in which Lewis agreed to support Roosevelt this year in return for the President's support for the Democratic Presidential nominee in 1940."

What does Senator Robert M. La Follette think of that? . . . Genial George Akerson, White House secretary to Herbert Hoover, has been named personal contact man for Eastern Republican Campaign Manager Joseph W. Martin . . . Martin Sennett ("Mike") Conner, former Mississippi Governor opposing Senator Pat Harrison for renomination—with the aid of Senator Theodore G. ("What-a-Man") Bilbo—is making Pat's jolting at Burning Tree Country Club a primary issue against him. Looks like Mississippians regard playing golf in the same light that most Kansans regard drinking liquor . . . Former Senator George H. Moses thinks he can come back to the Senate if a three-cornered fight over the Republican nomination develops in New Hampshire . . . Galen L. Tait's prolonged visits in Topeka and at Republican headquarters in Chicago are annoying Republican adherents of Gov. Harry Whinnah Nice in Maryland.

An inquirer cannot understand why the New Dealers try to ridicule the bankers for wishing to save the country now. "Turn about is only fair play," he says, adding: "the country saved the bankers in 1933 and now the bankers want to save the country."

Blanton Unable To Capitalize On Red Rider

The so-called "Blanton red rider," which in effect forces District of Columbia teachers to forget Russia exists, was an issue in the recent Texas primary election, according to a dispatch to The Post last night.

The rider was made an issue by Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Abilene, who tacked it on last year's District of Columbia appropriation bill. The rider denies a salary to any teacher who "advocates or teaches" communism.

As a vote-getter in Texas, however, the rider apparently did not come up to Blanton's expectations, latest figures indicating his principal opponent, Judge Clyde L. Garrett, led him in the primary by 4,761 votes.

Garrett and Blanton will opose each other in a run-off election August 22, since Garrett's vote was not a clear majority. The combined vote of Blanton and a third man in the race—Fred O. Jaye, a Townsendite candidate—was 2,030 more than Garrett's vote.

Political observers in Texas, according to the dispatch to The Post, believe Garrett will get most of the vote cast for Townsendite Jaye in the run-off, thus ending Blanton's political career.

In his stump speeches, the dispatch said, Blanton told of his "red rider" for the District of Columbia and on occasion shouted:

"Why, do you realize that communism teaches there is no God, that churches should be torn down and destroyed, that there is not such a thing as morality?"

Communists, Blanton said, had tried to repeal his red rider at the last session.

Judge Garrett, who led Blanton in the primary, apparently has a long memory. In his speeches, Garrett recalled how Blanton, in his first campaign for Congress, argued the man holding the House seat had been in office long enough.

The same argument, Garrett told the voters, ought now apply to Blanton.

"An enormous slush fund was sent into my district by the Washington tax-dodgers who have sworn to defeat me," Blanton said. "The money was spent cleverly in having paid organizers cover every voting district in all counties.

"The real issue now is whether the voters are going to allow Washington money, disgruntled and unsuccessful postmaster applicants and old political enemies to replace me."

Blanton did not unmask the Washington "tax-dodgers" who had conspired to defeat him."

Latest returns in the Texas primary gave Garrett 23,864, Blanton 19,103 and Jaye 6,792.

Maury Maverick stormy liberal from San Antonio, the Associated Press reported, was unable to muster a majority. He ran ahead with 18,969, but must compete in a run-off with Lamar Seeligson, who polled 12,733 votes in the Twentieth District.

In a third prospective run-off, W. D. McFarlane will face Ed Gossett, of Vernon, who came forward with a rush in late returns in the Thirteenth District.

The choice lay between Oscar Holcombe, Houston mayor, and Albert Thomas, in the Eighth District. Thomas trailed by only 380 votes.

Fritz Lanham, in the Twelfth District, went into the run-off when the vote was scattered among several candidates.

The fight for railroad commissioner, an office of high importance in Texas because of the commission's control of the vast oil industry, remained unsettled because Chairman Ernest O. Thompson, up for re-election, could not gain a majority. He had 383,340 votes, but met strong competition from Frank Morris, 136,585, and Carl Hardin, 136,428.

Interest in the Governor's race dwindled when it became evident Gov. James V. Allred had enough votes to avoid the run-off. Allred had 462,119, 35,103 more than the majority he needed.

Landon Studies Steel Outlook In Ohio Valley

Candidate Keenly Interested in Conditions Around His Birthplace.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., July 27.—Business conditions in the Ohio Valley industrial area of Pennsylvania and Ohio, the scene selected for opening his Eastern Presidential campaign, were surveyed by Gov. Alf M. Landon today with two business specialists.

For nearly two hours, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co. and prominent statistician, and Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, economist to New York's Chase National Bank, sat at the desk of the Republican candidate. Later they conferred with members of his research staff.

Landon also conferred with Lewis L. Strauss, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and president of the Jewish Agricultural Society; Max Epstein, chairman of the General American Transportation Corporation, and J. A. Harzfeld, Kansas City attorney. Afterward the three issued a statement saying:

"Because of a Nation-wide whispered effort to impute to Gov. Landon intolerant feelings toward minority groups, we have obtained his assent to give wide publicity to his record, which is precisely contrary to the whispering campaign. * * *

"Long before he was a conspicuous national figure, he had a deep hatred for all bigotry and injustice toward minority races and religions. His position in his business, social and political relationship has always been one of liberal tolerance."

Tomorrow, Landon expected Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, for lunch, and former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Pinchot for dinner. Pinchot was a preconvention visitor.

As Ayres and Anderson left Landon's office, Ayres said, "We've just been talking business, not money or banking." He added, in talking with reporters in a general press conference:

"We've been discussing business, especially in the durable goods industries. He is very much interested in business of the kind existing where he was brought up.

"You think of him as the Governor of a typical prairie State, but he actually has roots in this area where he grew up."

Vision Held Broad.

Landon has chosen his birthplace, West Middlesex, Pa., for opening his Eastern drive in late August. This town lies near such steel, coal and manufacturing centers as Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Ohio; Cleveland, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Do you think Landon would make a safe and sane President?" Ayres was asked.

"Oh, yes," he replied, as Anderson nodded agreement.

Ayres replied with another "oh, yes," when asked if he thought Landon's "horizon is broader than just the prairie States."

Prior to the conference, the Cleveland economist told reporters that "business is so good in spots it approaches boom conditions."

Landon Aid Named.

Chicago, July 27 (AP).—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, announced today that J. M. Nye, of New York, formerly attached to the State Department, will be the "personal aid" to Gov. Alf M. Landon, the party's Presidential nominee.

Nye will accompany Gov. Landon, Hamilton said, "throughout the campaign," and will be in charge of transportation on any trips made by the Presidential candidate. The appointment was made, Hamilton said, after a personal conference with Gov. Landon.

Knox Plans Wide Tour.

Chicago, July 27 (AP).—Col. Frank Knox, Republican nominee for Vice President, announced tonight he would take the stump early in August on a campaign tour that would carry him into "virtually every State" in the Union before Election Day in November.

He said his itinerary had been tentatively outlined at a conference with John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan.

Under this arrangement, his first speech after his formal notification of his nomination in Chicago on Thursday would be on August 8, at a rally at Connersville, Ind., in honor of Raymond R. Springer, Republican candidate for Governor of that State.

On August 13, his schedule takes him to Huntington, W. Va., to address a meeting of the Republican State committee, and on August 17 or 18 he will speak at a Republican rally in Columbus, Ohio.

Between that date and August 27, when he is slated to appear at a rally at Hampton Beach, N. H., he might speak in Maryland, probably at Baltimore.

100 Britons to Visit District With Autos

Nearly 100 British motorists, driving the machines they brought with them from England aboard the Queen Mary, will arrive in Washington tomorrow on the first stop of a planned projected tour of the United States.

Although nearly 2,000 American automobiles are transported to Europe each summer, this will mark the first time an organized body of British motorists with automobiles ever has come to the United States.

The visitors will be guests of the American Automobile Association Wednesday at a cocktail party on the Shoreham Terrace. Following the party Wednesday the motorists will be entertained at the White House Thursday morning. They plan to remain here until Friday.

Karpis Is Given Life Sentence In Hamm Case

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, July 27.—Alvin Karpis, erstwhile No. 1 "public enemy," was given a life sentence today on his plea of guilty to conspiracy in the $100,000 William Hamm, jr., kidnaping, and through his attorney indicated he would be willing to enter a similar plea in the $200,000 abduction of Edward G. Bremer.

With the 27-year-old leader of the now-defunct Barker-Karpis gang was sentenced Charles J. ("Big Fitz") Fitzgerald, 59, of Los Angeles. He also pleaded guilty in the Hamm crime.

Before Karpis acknowledges guilt in the Bremer case, however, he wants assurances from the Government that the two remaining kidnaping counts against him will be dropped, his counsel, Thomas Newman, said. The two counts involve the actual abductions in both the Hamm and Bremer cases.

No Emotion Displayed.

Neither Karpis nor Fitzgerald, possessor of a 40-year-record in crime, displayed any emotion as Federal Judge M. M. Joyce sentenced them.

Just before the judge spoke, both men asserted that John J. ("Jack") Peifer, convicted Saturday night of being a confederate in Hamm's seizure, was "innocent." Fitzgerald told the court the testimony of Byron Bolton, admitted member of the gang and principal Government witness, was "false."

Judge Joyce termed kidnaping "one of the most heinous crimes known to the law and a crime that will not be tolerated by the American people" as he imposed the maximum prison penalty.

At Washington, Department of Justice officials said Karpis would be taken to the Leavenworth (Kansas) Penitentiary and probably later to Alcatraz Prison in San Francisco Bay because of his criminal record.

United States Attorney George F. Sullivan said he would have to receive authority from Washington to consider Karpis' proposed bargain.

Murder Charge Pending.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Ed Threkeld, of Howell County, Mo., said "it is up to the people of Howell County" to decide whether further effort should be made to bring Karpis to trial there for the slaying of a sheriff in 1931. Earlier, Threkeld had said he would seek to have Karpis tried in his county unless he received a death penalty elsewhere.

Pending a report on his past record, Federal officers delayed sentencing of Edmund C. Bartholmey, former Bensenville, Ill., postmaster, who has pleaded guilty. Hamm was imprisoned in Bartholmey's home from June 15, 1933, to June 19, 1933.

Peifer will be sentenced Friday. Bolton will not be sentenced until Peifer's case is wholly disposed of, Sullivan said. Peifer's counsel filed a motion for a new trial today and it has been set for argument Tuesday.

Speedy Justice

ALVIN KARPIS, who with Charles (Big Fitz) Fitzgerald, was dealt a life sentence in Federal court at St. Paul, Minn., following their admitted participation in the $100,000 William Hamm kidnaping.

Revolt Unexpected, D. C. Woman Says

Revolution in Spain struck the country like a lightning bolt—it was unexpected—Mrs. Katherine Waters, who returned from Madrid only a month ago, told reporters yesterday.

Mrs. Waters, 77, of 4121 Military road northwest, said the political situation in Spain was comparatively quiet when she left the country and there was no intimation of the battle that was to come.

Sitting yesterday in her apartment where she received word her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Wendelin, were safe at the American Embassy in Madrid, Mrs. Waters told of conditions in the now strife-torn country a month ago.

"I left Madrid not because I feared a revolution," she said. "I left because of the heat. In fact, the situation was peaceful when I was there. Of course, there were frequent sallies—word battles—between political factions, but no one even thought for a minute there would be physical violence."

Mrs. Waters' son-in-law, Eric Wendelin, has been in charge of the American Embassy in Madrid since Ambassador Bowers left the country. He has charge of Americans stranded in the country.

Deaths From Paralysis Rise to 13 in Alabama

Montgomery, Ala., July 27 (AP).—Deaths in Alabama from an outbreak of infantile paralysis mounted to 13 today while total cases increased to 215.

The Health Department of Tennessee, reporting only one case, expressed encouragement since it was the first in three days. Actually today's case was diagnosed ten days ago but was not immediately reported. It gave Tennessee a total of 56 cases and 4 deaths.

are bringing back 66 Coast Guard cadets who were aboard the Cayuga when it was ordered to Spain.

The only alarming report came from Consul William W. Corcoran at Vigo, who said apprehension was increasing hourly as the military and Rightist elements were becoming less hopeful and increasingly nervous. He reported the military had called all conscript classes from 1926 to the present.

Corcoran added he was evacuating 23 Americans and Cubans on a British cruiser at once. He said the consular staff will remain.

The Spanish Ambassador, Senor Don Luis Calderon called at the State Department and assured Secretary Hull he was at the service of the department in connection with the situation in Spain and in the interest of the safety of Americans there. He told the Secretary he had received a telegram from Madrid saying all Americans there were safe and well.

The United States cruiser Quincy arrived at Malaga late yetserday and proceeded to Alicante, Valencia and Barcelona to investigate conditions there. Most Americans already have left these cities.

Consul John D. Johnson at Madrid wired he had received indirect information that American students at La Granja were safe. This message was believed to refer to a party of 11 boys and girls led by Mrs. Monica Owen, of Cambridge, Mass. La Granja is some distance from Madrid and heavy fighting is reported between that place and the capital.

The message from Johnson was the first word concerning the party since the revolution started. Mrs. Owen's husband, Robert D. Owen, has sailed for Europe where he planned to make an effort to trace his wife and the students.

Reassuring word came from Barcelona. Consul Lynn W. Franklin reported street cars and buses were resuming schedules. He said local authorities were getting better control of the situation and that Americans and other foreigners were being evacuated.

The embassy at Madrid was startled by a report that an American consul had been killed at Barcelona, but Franklin, the only consul there, personally denied the report. He said he believed the rumor was based upon the death of a consular clerk, Santiago Iturralde, who was slain several days ago.

No word had been received last night from Ambassador Claude G. Bowers at Feunterrabia and the embassy staff which left San Sebastian Sunday to join him there. Communication with San Sebastian may have been severed.

Child Killed by Storm.

Brownsville, Pa., July 27 (AP).—A windstorm of high velocity swept the Monongahela River Valley tonight, causing heavy property damage and leaving at least one known dead and a score injured. In the mining town of Smock, near Uniontown, 7-year-old John McCann was killed after an athletic field stand collapsed. Four others were injured by flying timber.

Loophole Sought To Save Fugitive

Cleveland, Ohio, July 27 (AP).—Justice sought tonight a legal loophole to permit a modern Jean Valjean, Carlton B. Chilton, 41, to resume his every day life as a respected citizen.

Chilton won a 24-hour delay today of a hearing to force him to return to Oklahoma to complete a reformatory sentence for burglary.

Police Prosecutor Perry Frey, recommended in a telegram to Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma, that he grant Chilton an immediate pardon. The telegram asserted the ends of justice would not be served by forcing Chilton to finish his term.

As Chilton's attorney and Cleveland police prosecutors sought technicality which would nullify the Oklahoma action, Gov. Marland issued a statement at Tulsa assuring "the people of Cleveland" that he would sign no extradition papers "until I have heard everything they have to say."

The governer said he wanted to give Chilton's friends an opportunity to submit evidence that since his escape he had lived as a respected and law-abiding citizen.

Chilton fled from the reformatory in 1913 after serving a year of a two-year sentence for robbing a Calvin, Okla., bank — which he termed "a kid's prank."

Hypnotism Aids Childbirth

Columbus, Ohio, July 27 (AP).—Dr. A. H. Kanter disclosed today the delivery of a girl to Mrs. Leonard Loomis, 21, through the use of hypnotism.

Dr. Kanter said the mother and daughter, Shirley Marie, who was born last Monday, were doing "very well." Dr. Kanter said "the patient is refreshed when awakened after delivery. There is no ordeal and no suffering."

'Well-Placed Bullet.'

Then he killed himself with a revolver.

Authorities said Hallock had left instructions for his burial and said his coffin was made and that his wife would know "where it's located on the ranch."

Rebels Mass for Attack

Palma, Majorca, demanding that it surrender or be bombed by seaplanes.

A report reached here today that a government column of 12,000, chiefly mobile militia, had passed through the mountains and now was moving toward Burgos, but no one at staff headquarters seemed to attach much importance to it.

Outposts of the insurgent army today gave the details of a bitter battle which wireless reports called a Popular Front victory, but which really appears to have been a drawn engagement. The battle occurred in Somoserra Pass, in a narrow valley on the road from Burgos to Madrid.

Under heavy fire, Col. Garcia Escamez pulled his insurgents back three miles, but under cover of Saturday night's darkness, he moved them back to both sides of the valley and at daybreak launched a surprise attack.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Madrid, July 27.—The terrific cost in blood of the Red Popular Front government's effort to quell the worst rebellion in the country's history, was admitted today with official estimates of 19,000 casualties in 11 days of bitter fighting. Of the total, 3,000 were at Barcelona alone.

Move on to Malaga.

Gibraltar, July 27 (U.P.).—The Spanish Foreign Legion and crack Moorish troops from Spanish Morocco advanced today to the attack of Malaga, Red stronghold held for the government by Communists. The rebels pressed on after killing 100 Reds who attempted to prevent their crossing the Guadiaro River.

Sound of firing between rebels and Loyalist Reds on the Malaga road was audible. Government airplanes dropped bombs on San Roque in an effort to dislodge insurgents there.

Refugees arriving from Malaga, scene of wholesale machine gun executions of priest and Facists, reported the city in ruins.

Only two or three houses in the fashionable Malaga suburb of Limonar remain unscathed by fire, they said.

Americans Flee Madrid.

Madrid, July 27 (AP).—American and British refugees fled this beleaguered capital tonight toward Alicante and escape by sea, while loyalist forces pressed new offenses against rebel strongholds.

To the north government troops and militiamen resumed their battle against the Fascist columns in the lofty passes of the Guadarrama Mountains, while in the south half a dozen bloody engagements were in progress.

Madrid and Central Spain generally were firmly in the grasp of the government, together with virtually the entire east coast from Barcelona to Malaga and a strip along the north central coast from Irun to Santander.

Much of northern Spain was in rebel hands along with some cities in the south.

A rebel plan to "starve out Madrid" had not materialized. Government leaders said it would be difficult of accomplishment with rich farming land to the south and east guarded by loyal troops.

Unconfirmed reports from the south said the Alcazar barracks and Military School at Toledo, the city built on a rock, had surrendered before an attack of government tanks, armored cars and bombing planes. Fierce fighting was reported throughout the day in that city, a short distance from the Spanish capital.

Farther to the south the government claimed advances toward Cordoba and Seville, to the north, the Guadarrama passes safeguarded, the Loyalist troops were concentrating on Zaragoza.

Seville, the rebel stronghold, was the scene of heavy fighting, with 2,000 government troops reported in contact with loyal militia within the city.

Battle for Province.

Biarritz, France, July 27 (AP).—Loyalist troops, aided by armed Leftists mobilized in Spanish border towns, met rebel forces in a terrific battle for possession of Guipuzcoa Province, refugees reaching here reported tonight.

Advance guards, the refugees said, started fighting early in the afternoon on the highway between Irun and San Sebastian.

Four hundred rebel troops in the Loyola garrison, near San Sebastian, refused to surrender; Leftist refugees reported, although their food supply was exhausted and they had little water and no electricity.

French Planes Arrive.

Paris, July 27 (AP).—Word reached Paris tonight from Barcelona that a government newspaper there stated 50 French military planes had arrived in Barcelona, to be used by the Spanish government.

5 U. S. Agencies Put July Deficit At $83,202,122

Big Reduction From 1935 Figure Laid to Excess of Repayments.

By the Associated Press.

Reports by five New Deal lending agencies that repayments had exceeded new loans since July 1, yesterday were shown at the Treasury to have kept the deficit at a figure far below that on the same date last year.

In computing both the figures for the deficit and for "recovery and relief" for publication in the Treasury's daily statement, officials revealed that the excess of repayments had been deducted from amounts spent by other branches of the Government to produce net totals.

The RFC, the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Farm Credit Administration, the AAA (seed and farm loans) and the Export-Import Banks, the figures showed, have received $242,518,923 more in repayments since July 1 than they have expended in new loans.

Lower Than Last Year's.

Other emergency agencies have spent $268,949,512, but the daily statement, presenting a net figure, deducted the excess of repayments and totaled expenditures for "recovery and relief" at $26,430,598. On the same date a year ago the figure was $307,329,154.

The net expenditures figure is the only one considered in the calculation of the deficit. The $26,430,598 is added to $288,982,692 of "general expenditures" to produce a grand total of $315,413,290 spent for all purposes.

From that sum, total receipts, $232,211,268, are then subtracted, placing the deficit in yesterday's statement at $83,202,122. For the same period a year ago, when no agency reported an excess of repayments, the deficit was $422,761,031.

RFC Repayments Greatest.

Of the agencies reporting an excess of repayments, the RFC's contributing was greatest, $15,883,300. The others were the Commodity Credit Corporation, $77,901,039; the AAA, $4,518,697; the Farm Credit Administration, $2,053,329, and the export-import banks, $112,558.

Officials declined to predict at what rate repayments might be expected to continue through the fiscal year, or whether their size thus far would require a material change in the budget for this year.

In drawing up the budget last winter no account was taken of possible repayments. A revision of the January figures, taking into consideration appropriations and changes in the tax laws made at the last session of Congress, is in progress.

Patient Suicide At St. Elizabeths

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the death of Rambert M. Cox, 30, mental patient of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Cox died in the hospital Sunday night after he swallowed a quantity of acid from a fire extinguisher while he was on his way to breakfast that morning.

According to Dr. MacDonald the man took the acid from the extinguisher, drank it and returned the bottle to its place before he was noticed. He collapsed a short time later.

Cox, a former member of the Coast Guard, was admitted to the hospital several years ago because of suicidal tendencies.

Flour Bombs Greet Marshal At Eviction of Family in N. Y.

By the United Press.

New York, July 27.—Women threw pepper and flour bombs, children waved flags and 200 spectators booed as Marshal Daniel L. Hicks led three burly assistants today in smashing through a barricade to evict Mr. and Mrs. Toni Maxwell and their 6-month-old baby from their home for nonpayment of rent.

Wielding fire axes and house-wrecking bars, the doughty crew stormed the barricade of sandbags and barbed wire at the Sunnyside, Queens, home, but a bombardment of flour and pepper from women locked within checked the advance. Police were called, and, still coughing and sneezing from the white silt which filled the air, the evictors formed lines and charged again.

It took an hour to slash through the chest-high sandbags topped by barbed wire in the entrance of the two-story home. The entire hallway was a barbed section of "No Man's Land." Grinning through the pelting aerial attack, the crew brushed off the flour and said: "That doesn't bother us. We're just hired to do this job."

"I am only doing my duty," said Hicks.

Piece by piece, furniture was carried out into the streets to the strains of "America" and "Home, Sweet Home" sung by a woman draped in an American flag. As the first chair was thrown out, Mrs. Maxwell fainted. Her incubator baby was handed over the barricade to its grandmother next door, and a doctor from the crowd revived Mrs. Maxwell.

As the furniture began piling up in the street, the spectators who had been watching joined the Battle of Sunnyside and carried the furnishings into the first floor apartment below the Maxwells. A call was sent in for the Equitable Life Insurance Co., which had instituted eviction after the Maxwells failed to pay $100 back rent.

Agent A. Phlegging arrived in the midst of the disorder. A group of women almost mobbed him and drove him from the house.

Mrs. Maxwell shook her fist at Phlegging. She and her husband had acquired an equity of $3,400 in their home before they lost it. Then the husky, dark-haired woman predicted: "This will be the last peaceful eviction in Sunnyside."

She referred to the 10 other evictions for nonpayment to rent scheduled for this week. The crowd agreed and a parade began headed by the woman draped in the flag.

But Charles Laue stayed behind. The secretary of the department of taxes has led the battle against evictions for the last three years and is to be evicted himself this week. He leaped into a bed when the crew broke into a bedroom and refused to move.

Foreign Survey Turns to Danish Farm Mutuals

U. S. Commission Is Told Huge Majority Active in Co-operatives.

Copenhagen, July 27 (AP).—President Roosevelt's special commission to study co-operatives turned today to the agricultural societies of Denmark.

Arriving from Sweden after a survey of the largely industrial co-operatives in that country, the commission evinced much interest in the program of intensified agriculture by which Denmark claims more than any other country to have banded together the farmer in common purchasing and export activity.

They were interested, too, in the "mutual credit associations" by which the farmer was enabled to borrow money for improving his farm up to 60 per cent of its assessed value.

Danish Critics Heard.

Danish critics of the plan, pointing to debt moratoria by the government and marches on the capital by Danish farmers demanding financial relief, asserted the co-operatives engendered an overdose of efficiency unable to withstand depression and reduced exports.

After a week here, the commission will go on to Geneva. Its members are Jacob Baker, assistant works progress administrator at Washington; Leland Olds, secretary of the New York State Power Association, and Charles E. Stuart, New York engineer.

Of Denmark's 206,000 farms, their hosts related, about 190,000 can be numbered as members of co-operative dairies. More than 25 per cent of all farms are enrolled in co-operative fertilizer societies, 31 per cent in co-operatives to purchase feed and 11 per cent in cattle export groups. The poultry farmer also claims a high degree of organization.

Over Half Century Old.

There is also a co-operative for distribution of domestic supplies by retail. Farmers comprise the largest percentage of membership.

The first co-operative dairy was established in 1882. Now 90 per cent of butter exports are handled by this unit which claims a $100,000,000 annual turnover.

Co-operative factories, with an annual income of about $95,000,000 at normal exchange rates; the lending and purchasing units and the export group all are banded together under supervision of a central body—the union of Danish Co-operative Societies.

Two States Seek Further Relief From Drought

Kansas and Nebraska Get Immediate Action; Long-Time Problem Feared.

While Rexford Guy Tugwell, resettlement administrator, yesterday was picturing a "serious" long-time problem of caring for 150,000 farm families in the Northwest, urgent appeals for more drought relief came from Kansas and Nebraska and brought quick response.

Just back from his tour of the distressed sun-baked regions, Tugwell also announced an additional $827,000 in direct loans and grants had been approved for farmers in eight States. The total of such funds made available by the rural rehabilitation division now stands at $5,716,750. Kansas, West Virginia, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, South Carolina, Georgia and Arkansas were granted funds yesterday.

Tugwell said opposition to his resettlement program was being encountered among small businessmen, who feared to see the purchasing power in their localities diminished by families being moved away.

Relief to Come Is Problem.

"The serious thing worrying us," he said, "is emergency relief during the winter, next spring and probably longer for destitute farmers in the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming."

While Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, was wiring Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, that conditions in that State were "desperate" and asking more relief funds, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas was conferring with other officials on steps to combat the ravages of the drought.

"We're going to renew our request to the railroads for emergency rates on feeds, cattle and water shipments," the Governor told the Associated Press. "We also are contacting the oil companies on borrowing water-pumping equipment."

Asked if he would seek Federal help, he replied that "these are all things that we can do for ourselves as we did in 1934."

He said that as a result of the 1934 crisis, farmers were baling more straw and that more than 1,000 farm ponds had been constructed and were tiding over the State.

"I sold Hopkins and his men the idea of constructing these farm ponds," he said, adding that he "supposed" they were the same kind of ponds the President had been talking about on a national scale.

More Counties Added.

Seven counties in Nebraska, 28 in Kentucky, 16 in Minnesota, 4 in Montana and one each in Missouri and Wyoming were added to the list of emergency drought localities by the Agriculture Department's drought committee.

Meanwhile, the corn crop in Iowa and Wisconsin was reported more seriously damaged than had been expected. Leslie M. Carl, Federal statistician, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying that in 20 counties in Iowa from 80 to 90 per cent of the crop was ruined, and in 15 other counties the prospects were the worst they ever had been. Walter M. Ebling, statistician in Wisconsin, said corn in that State had been damaged irreparably and rain could be of little benefit now.

Lightning

ture of the bolt as it struck the Monument when he noticed the red lights had gone out.

Immediately the Monument office was called.

"Please don't call us when there's lightning flashing all around us," said the person who answered the phone. "Every time there's a storm like this, it seems to concentrate here. Bood-by."

Later Fisher was contacted after the storm had subsided.

"It seemed to me there were two bolts," he said. "They came I think, within about a second of one another."

When the lightning hit the house of Godfrey, 10 miles west of Falls Church, on the Leesburg pike, at Tyson's Corner, Va., his Japanese servant was asleep in the basement. A neighbor turned in the alarm, and firemen from Falls Church brought the blaze under control after it had done damage estimated at $3,000.

Barn Set Afire.

The lightning burned to the ground a grain and feed barn on the farm of Sam McArthur, about 15 miles from Leesburg, in Loudoun County. McArthur estimated the damage at $5,000.

A bolt forked into a power line in the 3900 block Morrison street northwest. The immediate vicinity was plunged into darkness. It also struck a radio leading wire at 907 Jefferson street, then ricocheted into the living room, where it knocked down Edward Potter, insurance man. Potter was burned and shocked. His wife also was shocked.

The Weather Bureau did not estimate the rainfall last night. At midnight the rain had set in again, and the forecaster predicted showers for today, with probably an increase in the temperature.

After the storm had spent itself, the mercury had toppled 10 degrees, from 81 at 8 p. m. to 71 an hour later.

A brisk northeast wind accompanied the storm. It uprooted several trees in the northwestern section and smashed the limbs of others. A report that Highway Bridge had been struck by lightning sent fire fighters to the scene, but there was no damage.

Yesterday's maximum reading was 84 at 3:30 p. m. Another heat wave, the Weather Bureau warned, may be one the way from the West.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Asheville, N. C., July 27.—A long, drawn-out investigation may be necessary to solve the brutal murder of Miss Helen Clevenger, 18-year-old New York University honor student, in the fashionable Battery Park Hotel here 12 days ago, Sheriff Laurence Brown, of Buncombe County, admitted today.

His statement came as the slain girl's uncle, Prof. W. L. Clevenger, animal husbandry and dairy expert on the faculty of North Carolina State College, prepared to quit the skyscraper jail here for his home in Raleigh. Clevenger had left the jail yesterday, but returned today for further discussion of the case with Brown.

Asked if he expected any immediate results, the sheriff, who only Friday predicted the arrest of the actual slayer within 48 hours, said:

"I don't think so. It looks as though, right now, it will be quite drawn out."

But a more optimistic comment came from William J. Everett, chief of the Asheville City Police Department.

"I'm not predicting anything," he said, "but I may hav some news for you very soon."

Prof. Clevenger, whose status in the case has been kept secret, was interviewed late today as he left the jail after another lengthy conference with Brown.

"Well," he said, "I take it I am a free man, but they still have the right to question me.

"They've advised me that I'm free to go. I'm leaving, if you please, for Raleigh this morning in my car."

"Have you any ideas about the case?" he was asked.

"Well, you see," he pondered, "we all have ideas. I discussed mine with Sheriff Brown this morning."

"Now do your ideas point to a certain individual?"

"No."

The professor then thought for a moment, and looked sadly at the reporters.

"Naturally," he said, "the whole thing has been hard for me. I am happy now that it is all over."

Release on Bail Ends Strikers' Hunger Strike

Camden, N. J., July 7 (AP).—A 24-hour hunger strike of a dozen prisoners in the Camden County Jail ended today with the release of 24 arrested in altercations arising out of the four-week strike at the R. C. A. Manufacturing Co. plant.

The United Electrical and Radio Workers of America posted $185,000 bail bond for their release. Sheriff Joseph Van Meter said all except one arrested during the strike were now free.

Thomas McDonough, of Bordentown, was held. The bonding company refused to post his bail until after an investigation to determine whether he entered the country illegally from Ireland.

Yachtsman Found Slain On Estate of Hostess

Brightlingsea, Essex, England, July 27 (AP).—A. J. Barlow, a well-known yachtsman, was found shot to death tonight on the estate of Mrs. Keld Fenwick, the former Dorothy Duren, of New Haven, Conn.

The body of Barlow, a week-end guest, was found near a private swimming pool.

Mrs. Fenwick, daughter of Walter Duren, of New York, was the third wife of the late Capt. Keld Fenwick. They were married in 1929 after his two previous marriages, to Gladys Nelson, sister-in-law of the Duke of Westminster, and to Peggy Marsh, an actress, had ended in divorce.

Kentuckian, 107, Dies; Lived Century on Creek

Whitesburg, Ky., July 27 (AP).—"Uncle Jerry" Combs, who for more than 100 years lived along the rugged banks of Troublesome Creek, died near here today.

Death came to "Uncle Jerry" while friends were making plans to celebrate his birthday August 7. He would have been 107 on that date.

B. & O. to Open Modern Station To Public Soon at Silver Spring

Work Progressing Rapidly on Remodeling of the Present Structure; Beer License Hearings Set; Two Accused of Overloading Trucks.

A modern passenger station and loading platform will be placed in service soon by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in Silver Spring. Work is progressing rapidly on remodeling the present station and in construction of long loading platforms on either side of the tracks.

The facilities are being installed to provide for passengers alighting from Western trains bound for Washington, and to take on passengers bound for Western points. Buses will transport passengers to and from Silver Spring and Washington.

Workmen are now erecting an 840-foot concrete platform on the east side of the tracks and a similar platform 680 feet long on the western section. The eastern platform also will have a similar waiting room. In addition, a parking lot with capacity for 100 cars is being prepared.

The old freight station, which also has been used for passengers on local routes, is being converted into an up-to-date station with new waiting rooms and other conveniences.

Residents Stop Street Repairs In Falls Church

Work Halted by Protest; 'Mistaken' Survey Is Charged.

Because residents, who claimed the State was taking their property without due process of law, objected, work has been stopped on a section of Broad street in Falls Church, which is being widened.

The street, a part of the Alexandria-Leesburg pike leading into the town, is to be widened north toward the center of the town for a distance of a mile. Payne's Corners was to be the starting point.

Trouble arose when State forces last week began to move the large trees that line the east side of the roadway. The residents who objected contended that such a removal was based on a "mistaken" survey by the State.

The workmen moved down the road to the front of Oakwood Cemetery until differences could be ironed out by their superiors. There they cut about 200 feet into a high bank until cemetery officials stopped them and claimed they were destroying private property.

Ancient maps and plates were dusted off promptly by residents and cemetery officials, and a surveyor employed to retrace the private property according to deeds.

The present roadway is built on the east side of the 60-foot right-of-way and not in the center, residents and cemetery officials claimed yesterday. The State, they said, has plenty of room to widen the roadway on the western side without encroaching on private property. Both the surveyor and ancient deeds sustain their contention, it was said.

The matter now pends before State highway officials for investigation, and the workmen are confining their activities to the present improved roadway.

Guards Hunt for Shark After Youth Is Killed

Boston, July 27 (AP).—The Coast Guard ordered a shark hunt today in Mattapoisett waters, where a Boston youth was fatally bitten Saturday.

As headquarters here prepared for the patrol, Ernest Nolan reported from Fairhaven a 15-foot shark attacked his fishing dory today not far from the spot where Joseph Troy, 16, of Boston, was bitten fatally.

Nolan said the shark almost swamped his boat and butted it several times before he and two friends beat it off with oars.

New Sea Mark Is Not Claimed By Queen Mary

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 27.—A continuing race for Atlantic speed supremacy was foreshadowed tonight in the disclaimer by officers of the Queen Mary of a new record, despite the steamer's fastest crossing between Europe and New York.

The British liner traveled the 3,098 nautical miles from Cherbourg to Ambrose lightship in four days eight hours 37 minutes, at an average of 29.81 knots.

The French Line's Normandie now holds the record for Atlantic speed, a mark of 3,192 nautical miles from Southampton to Ambrose light at an average of 29.64 knots. Her total time was four days 11 hours 42 minutes, made in June, 1935.

The British liner is scheduled to depart Wednesday morning on her return.

"The ship will not attempt to set a record," the officers of the Cunard White Star Line said. "She is running to schedule and will not set out to better the Normandie's record."

A line official said that when the Queen Mary does try for a record, it will be over the same course the Normandie traveled.

Felt Heir Claims Wife Hides Their Daughter

Miami, Fla., July 27 (AP).—Morrison B. Orr, Piqua, Ohio, felt fortune heir, charged his wife, Mrs. Gladys Orr, with hiding his 9-year-old daughter, Maury, in nearby Broward County today pending their divorce.

In a petition filed in Dade County Circuit Court, Orr claimed he was not allowed to see his daughter and asked for an order providing for the child's visiting him at least once a week. The court did not act on the petition.

Mrs. Orr recently won a $35,000 verdict against Mrs. Dorothy Clark, Washington divorcee, who she asserted stole the affections of her husband. Mrs. Orr sought $1,000,000 damages.

She's Mrs. Dill in Race, Not Miss Rosalie Jones

Spokane, Wash., July 27 (AP).—Rosalie Jones Dill will continue her tea-serving musicale campaign for Congress as Mrs. Dill after all—not as "Miss Rosalie Jones."

In opening her campaign a fortnight ago, the wealthy former New York suffragist asked specifically that she be referred to as "Miss Rosalie Jones, former wife of former Senator C. C. Dill." Her attorney annulled the request today in court because he said the interlocutory divorce decree won by Dill will not become final for six months and "might never be entered."

Lamson Marries Magazine Writer

About 20 friends, including Bette Davis, Glenda Farrell, Hugh Herbert, Lucien Littlefield and Humphrey Bogart, of the movies, saw the brief ceremony in the Hollywood-Beverly Christian Church.

Lamson, smiling, said he and his bride would leave tonight on a motor trip, "but I don't know exactly where."

The former Stanford University publisher once was convicted of the death of his wife, Allene; won an appeal for a new trial, saw two later juries disagree and a fourth discharged on technical grounds.

In his notice of intention to wed he gave his age as 33, his bride's as 34.

After his release from prison last April he came to Hollywood and began a career as a film writer. A book he wrote in prison concerning the "campus murder case" was published.

Child Labor Amendment To Be Voted on by Bar

Chicago, July 27 (AP).—William L. Ransom, president of the American Bar Association, said today the organization would be asked to reverse its stand against the proposed child labor amendment to the United States Constitution at its annual meeting in Boston August 24.

Ransom said a "considerable number" of members had expressed themselves as feeling the association should reverse its stand and support the amendment.

Lindbergh Sees Udet Bail Out As Plane Falls

By the Associated Press.

Warnemuende, Germany, July 27. Col. Ernst Udet, famed German war ace, escaped death today when his plane collapsed in midair before the eyes of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The flier bailed out promptly, pulled the rip cord on his 'chute and drifted down, just as Col. Lindbergh had done on several occasions in his old mail-plane days.

Lindbergh, in company with Lieut. Comdr. F. M. Maile, jr., assistant United States naval attache for aviation, visited the Heinkel Works where fast military and commercial craft are built. The accident occurred during a test flight after a tour of the plant.

It was announced officially Udet's injuries were slight—cuts, bruises and sprains—but an unconfirmed report said his spine was injured.

Surgeons asserted the chief of the technical division of the air ministry would be able to fly again in a week.

Col. Lindbergh only yesterday discussed the feats of Col. Udet with the former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm at Potsdam.

Both agreed the 40-year-old wartime pilot, credited with 62 victories over allied fighters in the air, was a genius who could accomplish stunts no one else dared try.

Col. Udet has survived numerous accidents before. About two years ago he took to his parachute over Tempelhof Airdrome while stunting a new American sports plane.

At Vimy Ridge.

No bands, no huzzahs were heard Sunday at the dedication of Canada's monument to her greatest victory, at Vimy Ridge. Grief, rather, was the mood—and fittingly. The memorial commemorates the total Canadian death roll of 64,000 men, more than 11,000 of whom could be identified only as "missing."

Nor did King Edward speak in thrilling words of the Canadian assault which at last opened the way for the Allied forces across the plain of the Scheldt. "We invoke," he said in tones so earnest that all observers remarked particularly on it, "the splendor of their sacrifice and the consecration of our affection for them rather than the gunfire which battered this hil, 20 years ago."

By coincidence, President Lebrun, who pledged the French nation to tend the Canadian graves throughout the centuries, had served as an artillery colonel on that very front. Edward himself, as a young subaltern, had mingled with the Canadian troops there. And across the ridge, in the ranks of the valiant Bavarians, a humble corporal named Adolf Hitler, was doing his bit in 1917.

In the power of the man who was then so obscure now largely lies decision as to whether the spirit of reconciliation dominant at Vimy Ridge last Sunday, will continue to grow stronger.

Ellen Fitz Pendleton.

The death of Ellen Fitz Pendleton, only a month after her retirement from the presidency of Wellesley College, will be deeply regretted by all who appreciate her outstanding services to the cause of liberal education.

Dr. Pendleton possessed a combination of qualities rarely found in conjunction and yet most essential to effective work as head of a liberal institution of learning. She was a capable administrative official and at the same time a student who resolutely held scholastic achievement higher than mere material success. As a result, she succeeded, during the 25 years that she served as president of Wellesley, in increasing the size and efficiency of the physical plant while steadily raising the scholastic standards of the college.

Diplomacy as well as courage is required to resist undesirable popular trends in education. Discrimination and judgment are also needed to distinguish between desirable changes which further the purposes of a college devoted to study of the liberal arts, and changes introduced merely for the sake of change. Wellesley College, under the leadership of Dr. Pendleton, preserved a nice balance between the claims of the old and the new—going forward without ostentation but not hesitating to take a conservative attitude merely for fear of being regarded as "behind the times."

From the beginning to the end of her many years in office, Dr. Pendleton's influence was dominant in shaping the policies of the institution. This was not because she willed it, but because she understood so thoroughly what was needed and thereby impressed her colleagues with the wisdom of her point of view. The overwhelming demand from faculty and alumnae that a woman should succeed to the position vacated by the retiring president is the most eloquent tribute that could have been paid to Dr. Pendleton at the end of a long career of distinguished service to the cause of education.

Noble Experiments.

If publishers and book stores are dead set on classifying a certain type of book as "summer literature," they should give the credit where it is due. Biographies are all very well for hammock reading and light fiction may take one's mind off the heat. But the book of the month for July and August is the cookbook, as attested to by public librarians.

The present seasonal rush for culinary culture is attributed to husbands whose wives are on vacation. Lives there a man with soul so dead who never thought he'd like to rustle up a meal without wifely admonition? But there is a wide gap between the niceties of cookbook theory and the charred results of actual experiments conducted by brides and summer bachelors. In other words, the invariably happy endings in recipe books all too frequently lead to gastronomic tragedies.

Some of the finest cooks in the world are men. Steaks done exactly to the proper succulence and salads deserving the name appear to be a special masculine achievement. But when it comes to side dishes, breads and desserts, thousands of harassed tyros in overheated kitchens will doubtless admit that there are times when cookbooks and household gods are as naught compared to a woman's touch.

A Banking Reform Program.

Although Gov. Landon made no reference in his acceptance speech to the need for banking reforms, he has evidently been giving the matter serious consideration. Last week, Representative Hollister, ranking minority member of the House Banking and Currency Committee, intimated that the Governor favors the appointment of a nonpartisan committee of experts to study our Federal banking laws with a view to their simplification and improvement.

Certainly there is real need for remedial action designed to effect a unification of our commercial banking system under Federal laws and regulations. The system of divided authority, permitting thousands of small unit banks to operate under the laws of 48 States and the Federal Government, was largely responsible for the scandalous record of bank failures during the postwar period, in years of prosperity as well as depression.

The safeguards established under national banking laws were steadily weakened and standards lowered to enable the national banks to compete more effectively with State banks. As a result of this competition and laxity the banking system became more and more vulnerable and failures mounted steadily in the years prior to the collapse of 1933.

Fundamentally we are now no better off in this respect than was the case when the Roosevelt Administration came into office. At that time a radical reformation of the shattered banking system might have been effected with assurance of popular support. Nevertheless, an ideal opportunity for weeding out all insolvent banks and placing the survivors under a unified system of Federal control was passed over in favor of an easier makeshift plan for restoring shattered confidence.

The chosen system of deposit guaranty would have served a useful purpose as a purely emergency measure to induce people to restore hoarded funds to the banks. But, as the report of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation itself states, deposit insurance is "not a complete remedy for the ills of the banking system, nor for the unstable business conditions which in the past have culminated in periodic banking crises."

If participation in the benefits of the permanent Federal insurance plan had been made contingent upon membership in the Federal Reserve System, as originally intended, the step would at least have aided unification. With inclusion of the nonmember State banks assured, however, deposit insurance actually works against needed change in the existing dual system of banking under State and Federal laws. Furthermore, temporary immunity from a plague of bank failures, coupled with assurances that the great majority of depositors will not suffer loss in case of suspension, has allayed public apprehension. Hence, there is little if any popular interest at this time in the vital matter of banking reform.

Yet the country is essentially no better equipped to weather a future crisis than it was when banks were falling by the hundreds and thousands each year. The safe and efficient operation of our banking system still calls for reforms bringing all commercial banks into a single system under Federal regulation and supervision. Counsel for the Federal Reserve Board stated in 1932 that, in his opinion, Congress has the constitutional power to effect such a unification.

The emergency expedients upon which the present Administration has placed its chief reliance are not an adequate substitute for a radical reform of this type. They are not even safe props for our present basically weak and discredited system. Whatever the outcome of the Presidential election, therefore, it is to be hoped that the next Administration will realize its responsibility for formulating a long-range banking reform program aiming at reconstruction instead of concealment of weaknesses.

Unfortunately, deficit financing at present forces the Treasury to depend upon commercial banks to absorb a large proportion of new Federal debt. While this condition lasts a return to sound commercial banking practices will remain a rather forlorn hope, whether our banks operate under a unified or a dual system of control.

The Queen Mary Does It.

On a landfall-to-landfall computation, the Queen Mary has set a new transatlantic record. Whether the mythical blue ribbon of the Atlantic will transfer from the masthead of the Normandie to that of the British liner, is not entirely certain. The French point out that their ship still holds the average-speed record, for a longer course, by the scant margin of .03 knots. Sir Edgar Britten, skipper of the Q. M., concedes the decimal point with appropriate British sportsmanship. He probably feels that the final chapter is as yet by no means written.

The fact that the Queen Mary did not cut the best crossing time until her fourth voyage, bears out the consistent statement of her owners that records are of secondary interest to them. Punctuality of schedule, they insist, is of first importance. The giant Cunarder was built to prove the feasibility of a profitable weekly New York-Southampton service, maintained by two express liners. This, meaning a sea crossing of four and one-half days, is now seen to be entirely practical.

At the same time Sir Percy Bates and his colleagues would be very cold-blooded if they did not rejoice at the return of the record to English keeping. It had been there so long—from 1910 to 1929, the old Mauretania held it single-handed—that they had come to regard it as a permanent possession.

Then, one fine morning, along came the Bremen, with a crossing of 4 days 17 hours and 42 minutes, to snatch the title away. For four years this stood until the Rex, crossing from Gibraltar, arrived at Ambrose in four hours less time. Last June, the Normandie cut this by two hours. And now the Queen Mary has crossed from Cherbourg in 4 days 8 hours and 37 minutes, beating her rival's best time by 3 hours and 5 minutes. Britannia, somewhat depressed of late, will feel her prestige reestablished by this triumph.

Mr. Blanton's Setback.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton's autobiography in the Congressional Directory is almost entirely a recital of his easy political victories. In 1916 he defeated two opponents in a three-cornered Congressional race. Since that time his record, as he has officially reported it, names 14 individuals whom he has defeated at the polls, some of them more than once. Only when he attempted to obtain a seat in the Senate, in 1928, did his political good fortune desert him.

In recounting his achievements, Mr. Blanton is not content to list the Congressional aspirants he has vanquished. In the Democratic primary of 1930, he points out, he was nominated "by majority of 23,000 votes." Again in 1934 he defeated two opponents "by a clear majority of 2,096 votes over both." Since 1930 he has had no opposition in the final November elections.

It is therefore the more striking that Mr. Blanton's earlier popularity has now undergone a sudden eclipse. In Saturday's primaries he ran several thousand votes behind his most formidable opponent, Judge Clyde L. Garrett, and received less than 40 per cent of the total poll. With the candidate who ran a poor third on Saturday eliminated, the Garrett-Blanton run-off primary, tentatively scheduled for August 22, will be uphill work for the incumbent.

Of course, a number of issues entered into the campaign in the Seventeenth Texas District. Purely local considerations undoubtedly played a predominant part in transforming Mr. Blanton's large majorities of recent years into his present minority vote. But it is evident and significant that Blanton's militant campaign against the best interests of the District of Columbia, and his dictatorial attempts to boss this voteless community, have not increased his popularity with the electors back home.

Clearly some Congressmen have too lightly assumed that the petty tyrannizing which they can exert in District affairs, the badgering of local officials and constant chiseling from the so-called Federal lumpsum, would find favor in the eyes of their constituents. Mr. Blanton played that game far more crudely and offensively than any other Congressman. And he is now in obvious danger of losing his seat.

It would be highly presumptuous for Washingtonians to assume that Texans of the Seventeenth district have undertaken to discipline Mr. Blanton for the benefit of this city. Nevertheless, repercussions from Mr. Blanton's degrading row with the "damned doctors," his devious tactics with regard to the "little red rider" and his "gentleman's agreement" with Chief of Police Brown, must have reached his constituency. And the effect on thoughtful people there is of course similar to the highly unfavorable impression such incidents have created here.

Reports indicate that Mr. Blanton has attempted to set himself up as a boss in his home district as well as in Washington. That sounds in character, and would go far to explain the present sharp diminution of his popularity. Whatever the cause for his set-back, however, it is welcome news in these parts, where the word "Blantonism" has come to signify loudmouthed self-advertisement and arbitrary disregard of the first principles of local self-government.

A diplomat is a person who lights the pipe of peace in order to create a smoke screen.

All Too Simple.

From the Saturday Review of Literature.

Is a new idea to be presented faithfully in all its complexity, at the risk of going unheeded by the hypothetical "average reader?" Or is it to be given out in homeopathic doses, at the risk of distorting or losing the idea itself? . . .

From as far back as the nineties Freud and others were writing "deep tracts" which made little impression on the popular mind until, early in the twenties, the good offices of Andre Tridon and his confreres brought to palpitating thousands this distillation: psychoanalysis traces all human behavior to the sexual instinct. This popularization had just enough accuracy in it to be extremely misleading; it gave people something they could understand, without any of the complex qualifications which would have made their understanding valuable. Another example can be found in the system of economic ideas which informed a number of deep tracts until it was given a label, oversimplified, and oversold. The label was technocracy. In the literary field, a recent instance was Humanism, which began in the scholarly writings of Irving Babbitt, and ended in a brief series of journalistic brawls.

A Reply From Manassas.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is in response to two communications which appeared in The Post on July 24 criticizing the reenactment of the Battle of Manassas.

In reply to the inquiry as to the instigators of the celebration which was staged on July 21 here at Manassas, I will say that it was planned by a committee of the citizens of Manassas, of which I am one, for the purpose of advertising our historic town, where two of the most important engagements of the War Between the States were fought. Another purpose was to create enough interest in the United States Government to establish a national park on the site, such as have been set up at Fredericksburg, Gettysburg and other historical points. Why should not Manassas be given the credit due her for the part she played in the war? Why should not she now be compensated by the Government for the ravishment of her lands and homes, and for the brave men she gave? It seems her efforts to advertise her name and to put her claim to history before the public eye would put to shame her critics in the light of her sacrifice 75 years ago.

Let me say that the two criticisms, one arousing even the age-old controversy of the causes of the war, will instigate more antagonism and cause more hard feeling than the re-enactment of the Battle of Manassas could ever cause. The Southern people are ever loyal, ever patriotic—that is why they love their historical sections and want to preserve them; that is why they want to improve and glorify their wonderful South. You critics, and not we, are the instigators.

E. R. CONNER.

Industrial Democracy, Too.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Aren't we educated to the desires and problems of workers? I am sure that the laborers only want a fair say in the work which molds the destiny of their dally life. Why can't we have industrial democracy as well as political? If such works to the benefit of the masses in one example, it should in the other, and I believe it is requisite to an amiable feeling between employer and employe. As Mr. Roosevelt stated in his speech at Philadelphia, "through their control over the hours we work, the wages we receive and the condition of our labor . . . the lords of steel try to rule us as did the royalists against whom our forefathers rebelled."

"On Dangerous Ground."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The fact that all of my acquaintances are in vigorous agreement with me emboldens me to write to The Post in regard to Mr. Franklyn Waltman's column of July 23. His contemptuous denial of women's right to be interested in and to take part in economic and governmental affairs is better suited to one of Der Fuehrer's publications than to The Post. It seems incredible that in this year of grace a commentator would insinuate that women are most admirable when they confine their intellectual interests to the products of the drygoods counter.

JUANITA KERWIN WILLIAMS.
Washington, July 23.

(This vigorous and rather unfair criticism will not surprise Mr. Waltman. In the article referred to he observed: "I know I am . . . on dangerous ground."—Editor.)

Ditch-Digging Wages.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of July 24 appeared a notice regarding the hearing before the AAA on increasing the price of milk in the District.

Mrs. R. R. Lewis, wife of a Frederick County dairy farmer, stated that a ditch digger is paid 70 cents an hour for labor. Will you please inform Mrs. Lewis and the AAA committee that the pay for a ditch digger is not 70 cents an hour. A laborer is lucky if he gets half that amount.

J. W. HATFIELD.
Washington, July 24.

Conscience And Convictions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Coughlin's utterances concerning social justice come of his conscientious convictions, he says. Conscience is the voice of God in a man's soul. This Coughlin would not deny. But he says, "Whatever orders come from Rome curtailing my preaching social justice, I shall be only too happy to accede to."

The way of Savonarola was not that way. The course of Martin Luther was not that course. Men, who pose as courageous and even go to the extreme of calling the head of a great nation a "liar," should be ready to die for their convictions. And if the priest has from his conscience his beliefs as to social justice, he could not do better for the country he professes to love so well, than ecclesiastically to "die," if need be, as others have done, for his convictions. As matters stand, the Little Flower fades; and the Irish eloquence that charmed so many has lost its potency. Sic transit gloria mundi!

J. O. KNOTT.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Activities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Despair for human nature tempers the amusement afforded by Franklyn Waltman's naive pique over the activities of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt! On the one hand he criticizes their scope, and on the other seems quite upset that she confines her press conferences to mere women. (In passing one might remark that they appear to make out.)

Few, if any, hold a copyright on prosperity or success, or, indeed, even the assurance for the future for themselves and their children. It is stooping to small potatoes for political propaganda to wish to Hitlerize the wife of the President of the United States even in a kitchen that may be the last word in efficiency, or a drawing room partaking of medieval splendor. Men—thanks be, their numbers are said to be on the decline—who think with Mr. Waltman must be still imagining themselves short of a rib and their powers thereby diminished. They have not yet learned what almost every woman knows, that woman was not fashioned from man's rib, but from his funny bone.

Not the least of Mrs. Roosevelt's achievements is the emancipation of the wife of the President, giving her an opportunity for a life of helpfulness and genuine usefulness in the Nation to which her husband has been called as the Chief Executive. Women who follow after may come to appreciate her fortitude in this pioneer work.

MRS. LEONA E. KIDWELL.
Washington, July 25.

Americans' Ignorance.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: America, as you well know, is politically ignorant. The great masses of people are sheep; it would make no difference to them whether they lived under a democracy or a dictatorship; that is, it would make little difference until the changes occur. Few of them take part in the American Government.

Woodrow Wilson, in his history of the American people, revealed that of a population of 4,000,000 in 1790, only about 120,000 had the right to vote, and conditions have not greatly improved since that time.

A critical observer of both parties would say that a dictatorship from either the Right or the Left would not meet with effective opposition from the American people, who, as yet, do not know what they want.

Business In Lime Kiln.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the breakfast table this morning reading your paper, of which I am a subscriber, I noticed the headline: "Landon Calls New Deal Barrier to Recovery."

What does Mr. Landon mean by such an assertion, when during the depression there was practically no business at all, everybody was in distress, banks were closed, and our future looked anything but bright? President Roosevelt, when he took over the reins of the Government with his usual energy, put new life into our country and has brought back prosperity through the New Deal. Business of all kinds is good, banks are overloaded with money, and the farmers are happy.

I sold 1,000 bushels of wheat this past week at $1 per bushel and today I sold corn at $5 per barrel. Farmers have always made life in the land when they are getting fair prices for their products, and they are doing it today. Practically every idle man is at work. Many factories are working 24 hours per day. We have two brick plants here that have been busy for eight months working three shifts, or 24 hours, per day.

What more do we want? At the close of your headline you stated, "Free Competitive System." What we want is not so many playing politics and constantly finding fault and complaining when everyone should be happy, as times certainly are prosperous, due in a great measure to our great President and the "New Deal."

WILLIAM J. GROVE.

Not A Rescue League Truck.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On July 22 there was printed on the first page of The Post, under this headline, "'Murder' Search Finally Winds Up at Medical School," a story in which it was said that Robert Martin told the police "about seeing parts of a human body in an Animal Rescue League truck parked at Seventh and O streets northwest."

Although it was clear from the rest of the story that the reporter knew the truck did not belong to the Animal Rescue League he nevertheless let the story stand, thus giving the league not only unpleasant publicity but unfair publicity as well.

When this matter was brought to the attention of The Post a short correction, saying the truck belonged to the Refuse Department, was published on an inner page on July 23.

We feel that the league has been injured by this publicity and regret that the correction was not given the same prominence as was given the original story.

Free Vs. Wild Speech.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of the actors strutting upon the American political stage are shouting, cursing and wildly gesticulating. They appear on every possible occasion where the discouraged, the frustrated, and the discontented gather. With powerful voices and passionate statements they drive their audiences into hysterical frenzy.

It is incredible that so many people will follow them; traveling many miles to hear them and even give up their life's savings to promote the selfish and mercenary object of these false leaders.

It is well to discuss and debate subjects of public interest. People should gather in community houses and listen attentively to speakers representing all sides of every public question, but there is no necessity for emotional appeals and surely it is criminal to incite one group or race against another. Words uttered in the heat of excitement may have fatal results. Many an assassination and a lynching has resulted from such irresponsible utterances. Free speech is commendable, wild speech is condemnable.

The Post Impressionist

"Over The Sea Lies Spain."

Post Office, Tuesday.

Is it possible to pay too high an earthly price for civil liberty?

Doubtless the world owes its present degrees of civil liberty to those negative answers which, every now and then, have been shouted down the centuries, and fought for by mankind's effective minorities. The history of many revolutions would seem to say so.

Anyway, your Post-Impressionist won't undertake, here and now, to determine (even to his own satisfaction!) how lofty are the degrees of civil liberty that have been attained—or that will ever be attainable. Nor will he undertake, now and here, to say which internecine conflicts have led to liberty—or which to the reverse. But he is sorry for Spain.

* * *

To him it seems:

That the recent Bourbon monarchy was pretty invertebrate. That neither was the succeeding Republic distinguished for spine. That now, if the so-called Right armies triumph, the country may be in for a regime of repression. And that, if the so-called Loyalists come out on top, their victory will be short lived, because it will have been secured by help from forces which will turn and rend it—and set up a brand of repression all their own.

In other words, it seems to this columnist that, whichever group of these Spaniards wins, Spain will lose.

* * *

By "Spain" we don't mean King or President, Fascist dictator or dictator proletarian. We mean Spanish culture: The culture that laboriously worked its way to beauty on the Iberian Peninsula, the amalgam formed by the Spanish spirit with what it kept from the days of the Visigoths and what it took from Roman and from Moor—the Spain that, in the time of her greatest greatness, shadowed the sun, but that, through her decline, kept gleams of warm and lovely sunshine in her heart until only yesterday.

We mean not so much the grandeur of the gridiron Escorial as the airy happiness of the Alhambra. We mean the Cantar de mio Cid and Don Quixote, Arnaldos and Machado.

And we mean El Greco and Velasquez.

There's a lot in Spain that Spain can spare:

The news from San Sebastian, for instance, strikes this columnist as no more than a grim incongruity. The impassive Basque fishermen were being crowded out of their Iruchulo. Although it seems incredible that blood should stain the sands of San Sebastian, the place was no more Spanish than Bar Harbor.

Nevertheless, Troia fuit—Spain existed.

* * *

So what is to become of the Romanesque cruciform Santiago de Compostela, with its 29 altars and its twelfth century Portico de la Gloria, the absolute limit of the Gothic round-arch? It has endured since 1211. Can it endure the changes now at hand?

What is to become of the splendid parallelogram of Seville's Santa Maria de la Sede? Will its choirboys ever again sway in the dance at the Feast of Corpus Christi? Or will its 74 magnificent windows shiver and shatter, its mighty column-clusters fall?

And the walled Toledo, rising above the gorges of the Tagus, every chapel of its enormous cathedral a separate church: where will its alabaster and red jasper go?

* * *

If the exigencies of revolution or revolution's suppression demand it—or if tomorrow's guns are as careless as all guns are sometimes sure to be—then a few hours may reduce to physical ruin those buildings which were the loving work of hundreds of years. And, if they escape physical destruction, what will remain of their real selves, should they be turned into historical museums under one party or spiritual museums under its rival?

* * *

* * *

Certainly a heavy percentage of the "romance of Spain" resided in the minds of the romancers; the heart is the country-place of romance, but its town-house is the brain. Nevertheless, there were the tall combs, the high headdresses, the soft mantillas, the flash of white lace under the black gown, and the flash of black eyes. Castanets did click from the patio where feet pounded in the provincial dance. Beneath latticed windows guitars were played—ardent voices sang to them.

And there's not much time for that sort of thing in the totalitarian state of the dictator, or the proletarian state of the Communist, or the state of chaos to which the anarchistic syndicalist aspires.

* * *

Of course, Spaniards can live without such trifles. We all can. Of course, Spaniards can exist—we all can—without any living cultural heritage from the past. Perhaps Spaniards, and all the rest of us, can build, instead, a cultural heritage for our posterity.

But it must be dull doing.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Quoddy Thoughts.

Eastport, Me.—I don't rightly know why I came 'way up here to Land's End except it could have been that Col. Phil Fleming of the Army Corps of Engineers is the officer in charge of the 'Quoddy Dam and the 'Quoddy village. The colonel was graduate manager of athletics at West Point in the high-pressure football days, and it was always fun knocking around where he was.

Phil did the business; Maj. Walter Wells did the publicity; Biff Jones and Ralph Hasse did the coaching; the cadets did the playing and the parading which dressed the football show—and how the money rolled in. The athletic fund was $15,000 when they began. When the crew bowed out of the Military Academy, scattering to other duties, they left a kitty of $300,000 cash, an indoor ice hockey arena, 40 garages, 15 tennis courts, an addition to the stadium, five miles of new road, a new warehouse and a polo field.

Up to the time the Military Academy had maintained a very austere, egad-you-cad sort of attitude toward the American public, and a man in cadet uniform was likely to be mistaken for a postman or cab starter anywhere off the post. This was bad business, because Coolidge and Hoover were whittling down the Army and the service needed friends. But after frequent parades at football games in Boston, New Haven and New York and one in Chicago and trips by the team to Champaign, South Bend and California, the people came to know the kids and something about the code and life of the corps. So the old idea that the cadets were a lot of spoiled and supercilious little snobs was pretty well trampled down.

After his hitch as football promoter at the Point, Col. Fleming was sent to Kansas City to lace the Missouri River into a straitjacket and ladle out a few cupfuls of water to arid stretches of the country, but pretty soon the great American panic began to bear down—and no fooling. So they called him back to Washington to serve under honest Harold Ickes, the house dick of the New Deal. I suppose they figured that a man who could scratch up as much money as he did might be able to plow some money under, too. He had never been intimidated by big, coarse figures, and now, on the 'Quoddy job, he has shown himself to be a very swift man with a dollar—coming or going.

The 'Quoddy Dam and the village behind it—a beautiful little village of lovely small homes set amid small pines of suburban stature along curving roads—are all Phil Fleming's work. He built them. The idea, of course, wasn't his. The current blame for the idea belongs to Mr. Roosevelt, who at the present moment is bouncing around on a boat in the fog somewhere outside the local bay, while Republican tourists roll in over the road to give a look, throw up their hands in horror and exclaim that that man, with his squandering ways, will be the ruin of us all. Perhaps it was a psychological mistake to make the houses so pretty. If they had been tar-papered outside and if the chimneys were rusty tin instead of brick, the resentment might be less severe, even though they cost no less.

At present it appears that Mr. Big has laid a colossal egg in this 'Quoddy project, but maybe in years to come the thing will pay out and some Republican Administration will enjoy the omelette. If they would just improve the highway slightly along the last hundred miles up the Maine coast they might draw enough traffic in morbid Republicans to make their carrying charges and running expenses on the souvenir and steamed clam trade.

It was evening when I arrived at 'Quoddy, so we just spent a couple of hours sitting around the Franklin Grill, a sandwich house which used to have a beer license but gave it up when the project flopped and the laborers went off down the road, traveling by fast thumb, to get back on the relief rolls in their home towns. In saying that the Franklin Grill gave up its beer license I don't mean to suggest that we had no beer. It is no longer necessary to pretend. A guy went down the street and came back with a bag of beer, and when that was gone we had another bag. The colonel was telling about how the sardines swim in here and almost pop into the cans, but they aren't really sardines, because they are herrings, and sometimes whales tie up at the dock, and a canning company hauled a lot of expensive machinery out to sea and dumped it to save taxes. But I can't make head or tail of the story this morning. It couldn't have been the beer, could it?

Europe In 2 Camps

Holy Alliance Revived, U. S. Writer Says, With Same Political Line-Up As That Existing Before 1914.

(Editor's note: Europe, preparing for a new world war, is dividing into two blocs—the "haves," dominated by Soviet Russia and including France, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Rumania and, for the present, Belgium and Jugoslavia and the "have-nots," including Germany, Italy, Austria and Hungary. Ralph Heinzen, chief of the United Press Paris Bureau, asserts in the following dispatch—second of a series: "Will There Be War in Europe?" Heinzen believes the situation now in Europe is the same as that in 1914, when the World War started.)

By Ralph Heinzen

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Paris, July 27.—Europe is back just where it was in the mad summer of 1914—divided into two great hostile camps with plenty of powder barrels lying around for an ill-guided hand to set off.

Europe learned no moral from the great war. The same policy of military alliances, coalitions and cannon which prevailed before the World War dominates European foreign policies again today.

As a result of the Austro-German entente, the Holy Alliance has been revived. And just as before 1914, there is a great camp composed of Berlin, Rome, Vienna and Budapest—a camp of revisionists who do not have what they want. To their right and left is another bloc, built around what is left of the victorious Allies. They include non-revisionists, who have what they want and aim only to keep their war gains.

This orbit once was under the tri-color and dominated by France. Now it is red-tinted and Moscow has seized control from Paris. It includes Russia, France, Czechoslovakia, Turkey, Rumania and, for the time being, Belgium and Jugoslavia.

With very few exceptions, this is exactly the same political line-up which existed just 22 years ago, a few weeks before an excited Slav nationalist youth touched a match to the powder barrel at Sarajevo.

Great Britain is trying hard to hold her position in the center of the political see-saw. When political fortunes seem to favor the Red orbit, Britain leans toward Germany, but when the balance swings toward the "dictators' group," London shows more sympathy for French-Russian policies.

Britain now appears to be leaning toward France, and Paris has high hopes of consolidating the old "Locarno front" in the forthcoming five-power conference among Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and Italy.

Franco-Soviet Alliance.

France, Russia and the Little Entente between them have standing armies totaling 2,000,000 men. France has 560,000 men in the field, Russia 850,000, Czechoslovakia 140,000, Rumania 300,000 and Jugoslavia 150,000.

Their active armies are only a minor part of their potential fighting strength. These countries have been training conscripts ever since the World War, while Germany and her defeated allies, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, have been forbidden by peace treaties to train their civilian population.

France, Russia and the Little Entent have a total potention force of trained, experienced fighting men of roughly 30,000,000. Official records show the trained reserves in France total 6,500,000, in Russia 16,000,000, Czechoslovakia 1,500,000 and Rumania and Jugoslavia 1,600,000 each.

The same official figures show that 16½ per cent of France's total population, including women and children, is incorporated in permanent military establishments, either as active conscripts or reserves called up periodically for training. Every Frenchman from 20 to 55 is subject to military call at any time unless excused for medical reasons.

Of the entire Russian population of approximately 175,000,000, 9.6 per cent is on the army rosters. Between 10 and 11 per cent of the populations of each Little Entente state belongs to the colors in event of war.

Dominates Air.

Not only does the Red bloc boast the greatest manpower, but its combined air force overwhelmingly dominates all other available aviation in the whole of East Europe. France and Russia between them have nearly 8,000 combat and bombardment planes, and the Jugoslavian, Czech and Rumanian air forces bring the bloc's total to 10,000.

In army warehouses, arsenals and underground vaults, so deep they can escape the heaviest bombardment, the "Red" armies have hidden away tremendous war stocks, including millions of rounds of machine gun and rifle ammunition, enough artillery munition to blow the Alps off the face of the continent and enough poison gas to lay low every man, woman and child within a radius of 1,000 miles.

The one lesson Europe learned in the last war was not to be caught short of munitions during the time required to convert civil industrial plants into munitions factories. There is enough stock on hand to fight the greatest war the world ever knew for six months, and the machinery is set up to transform the industrial plants overnight.

A survey of national budgets shows that Europe this year is spending 11 times more on war preparations than on foreign affairs, 17 times more than on national education or social research and 41 times more than on agriculture.

That accounts for the present epidemic of peace plans proposed by most of the big figureheads of Europe. There is Chancellor Adolf Hitler's plan, now before the Locarno powers; the Flandin plan, which Premier Leon Blum has taken up for his own; and Premier Benito Mussolini has a plan in the making—a plan based on the force of six or seven great powers, with or without Russia, and combining their strength behind a pledge to eliminate any smaller nation which tries to break the peace.

All Preparing.

But while the diplomats and dictators talk peace they are all preparing for war and jockeying for positions.

France knows that her hopes of remaining a first-class power depend on her ability to keep the Little Entente intact. France already has lost Poland to the German orbit despite the Danzig coup, and it appears likely that so long as France retains Russia as her chief ally, Poland will stay outside the French bloc.

Belgium has torn away from French tutelage and wants to play the role of a neutral buffer state in Europe—nobody's ally and not built into the military machines of either bloc.

Jugoslavia, in an effort to force France into making concrete guarantees for her safety against an Italian attack, is flirting with Berlin.

In the face of growing German tendencies in Rumania, the French general staff acted promptly to push French credits for the construction of strategic railroads and increased armaments in King Carol's country. This may have checked the pro-Hitler movement and blocked his alleged drive to take the Ukraine from Soviet Russia.

Hitler sought to extend Germany's influence in the Balkans and Danubia by offering commercial and military airplanes in exchange for surplus farm and natural products of Rumania, Greece, Hungary, Bulgaria and Jugoslavia.

That was a tempting offer, hard to turn down. But France sent able salesmen on the trail of Hitler's commercial ambassadors. They outbid Germany by extending cash credits and as a result Hitler's ambition appears to be checkmated temporarily.

Russia has gained what appears to be at least a temporary armistice on her far eastern frontier, bloodied by a long series of border incidents, but she fears that the western Fascist coalition, dominated by Germany, is preparing for invasion, presumably of the rich Ukraine territory.

Japan-Reich Pact.

The Soviets are convinced that Germany is preparing to "borrow" a frontier adjacent to hers in order to start penetration of the vast territory under the Russian Bear. Even more alarming than this is the reported "agreement" between Germany and Japan, meaning that Russia would be attacked from both sides alarmingly.

Finland and Poland also are regarded as "war suspects" by Moscow.

"Polish youth is being deliberately brought up in a spirit of aggressive ideas predatory to wars and raids on their neighbors," the semi-official newspaper Pravda said recently.

Russia also considers the Austro-German agreement as merely transforming Austria into a German base for peneration into southeastern Europe.

"It (the Austro-German pact) isolates Czechoslovakia and reinforces the work of Fascist agents in both that country and Rumania and Jugoslavia as well," the Moscow daily news said.

It is still too early to predict what position Spain will take, but if the Fascist revolution is successful, Germany might have a new ally on the other side of France, further complicating the struggle between the dictators' bloc and the Franco-Soviet group for European supremacy.

Britain Accedes To Italy's View, Ends Aid Pacts

By the United Press.

London, July 27.—Great Britain sought to bury the hatchet with Italy today, when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared England's Mediterranean mutual assistance pacts dead, thus acceding to Premier Benito Mussolini's last condition for Italy's collaboration in European problems.

Eden, in one of his most important speeches to the House of Commons, also passed the olive branch to Germany, announcing great Britain is prepared to discuss better distribution of colonial raw materials, but indicating the government will not entertain any proposals for redistribution of mandated territories.

The House voted 313 to 138 in favor of the government's foreign policy.

By these concessions, Britain set the stage for a proposed five-power conference of England, France, Italy, Germany and Belgium.

Britain entered into the Mediterranean pacts with France, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey at the height of the Italo-Ethiopian War. France declared her part of the agreement dead coincident with the lifting of anti-Italian sanctions, but the others remained in force until Eden canceled them.

He said Italy formally had assured Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey that she does not contemplate any aggressive action against them.

The Mediterranean situation has returned to normal, he said. Abandonment of the Mediterranean mutual assistance pacts was designed especially to obtain Italy's participation in the five-power Locarno meeting in September or October.

Alberta Finances

Premier Aberhart Announces 'Prosperity Certificates' As Stepping-Stone To Social Credit, Now Badly Mired.

By William Marchington.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

THE SOCIAL CREDIT Ministry of Alberta's Premier William Aberhart, nearing the end of its first year of office, is wrestling with a welter of bothersome problems and a rising tide of disillusionment among its supporters. Mr. Aberhart is specifically pledged to have in full operation within 18 months of assuming office a scheme of Social Credit, which would rescue the people of Alberta from financial bondage to the banks, mortgage companies and kindred oppressors and produce a diffusion of general prosperity.

It is true that he was handicapped from the start by a bare treasury and a huge burden of debt left by the outgoing ministry. To cope with its immediate difficulties his ministry had to seek succor from the federal government at Ottawa and some was grudgingly granted. But the time came when Mr. Dunning, the federal minister of finance, bluntly refused any further advances unless Mr. Aberhart would agree to the establishment of a loan council system. After long negotiations Mr. Aberhart declined to accept these terms and, on the ground that the debt burden of the province had become unbearable, he proceeded to notify all bondholders of the province that henceforth they must be content with 2½ per cent interest instead of the average rate of 5 per cent at which the bonds had been issued. This move gravely shocked the financial world which denounced it as tantamount to repudiation and a protective committee which the bondholders formed advised them not to accept the lower rates of interest, but to stand out for their rights under contract. Apparently this advice is being pretty generally followed, but the Alberta government remains unmoved, and Ottawa cannot be induced to interfere.

MR. ABERHART has now made a fresh move in the shape of an announcement that on August 1 there will be issued $250,000 worth of what he describes as "Alberta prosperity certificates," born of the printing press alone. They are to be issued in denominations of $1 and $5 and their holders are to affix stamps, bought from the government, at the rate of 1 per cent of their face value every week. The proceeds of the sales of such stamps will be kept in a special fund by the provincial treasurer and be used to redeem the scrip at the end of two years, when there will be a margin over of 4 cents on the dollar for expenses of administration. It is intended as a start to use the scrip for paying the unemployed.

In making this announcement Mr. Aberhart gaily predicted that this issue of $250,000 of "prosperity scrip" would, if kept in lively circulation, create two million dollars worth of new business, and he argued that it was a method of using the province's own credit to stimulate prosperity.

"Somebody," he said, "must face the music. Your own government is doing it. It is not permanent; it is only a step. There is another method of solution which you will hear about in the near future. The whole secret is to keep the certificates moving. You must circulate them; you must not allow them to come to the wholesaler, for he is determined to have his cash by the old financial method. We will have it for him; he needn't be afraid."

But afraid of the unsoundness of the scheme is just what most local businessmen are. They are well aware that if they take this scrip in payment for goods, they cannot hope to use it to meet obligations contracted outside the province for goods supplied and they have no guarantee that the banks will accept it. So the Alberta branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association and some mercantile organizations have counseled their members not to accept the scrip. It remains to be seen whether any more than a limited number of merchants will regard it as adequate currency for trade.

CRITICS of the government are recalling that similar experiments in improvised local currency which have been tried on this continent have come to grief. The Winnipeg Free Press also points out that by its plan the Aberhart ministry is simply proposing to spend money in anticipation of tax receipts, a procedure followed by all governments as matter of routine. Instead of borrowing from a bank it is adopting the cumbrous method of printing a special sort of money which will have to be stamped weekly; interest, of course, would have to be paid on a bank loan but there will be interest on the scrip and it will probably fall at once to a discount because it is not legal tender and is liable to depreciation.

Premier Aberhart frankly admits that this venture is not "Social Credit or even a substitute for Social Credit." He persists in sticking to his pledge that his basic social dividends will be available early in 1937, although he now introduces the caveat that the $25 p.. month which he suggested as the dividend for every adult citizen of Alberta was only a tentative figure.

There are signs, however, that all is not harmony in the Social Credit camp; there are rumors of serious dissensions in the cabinet and Mr. S. G. Barnes, a Social Credit member for Edmonton, the capital, recently criticized Premier Aberhart very severely in a letter, with the result the he was "suspended" by the Edmonton Council of Social Credit.

Furthermore, the inhabitants of the h... territory know as the Peace River country, lying northwest of Edmonton, are so dissatisfied with their treatment that a secessionist movement has developed and a committee of five leading citizens of the district has been set to work to ... for a new dispensation. They have a variety of grievances, of which the chief are the deplorable condition of their roads, which are described as worse than those of Ethiopia, and the absence of a trade outlet to the Pacific coast. The scheme which finds most favor is a reversion to the territorial status, which prevailed for the whole Northwest before the creation of the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan in 1905.

THE BANKERS and business leaders of Canada are naturally not weeping over the troubles of Mr. Aberhart, whom they regard as a dangerous fellow. But probably they are less pleased about them than the true blue apostles of the original Douglasite creed who, long before Mr. Aberhart knew anything about Social Credit, had formed "the Alberta Douglas Social Credit Association." They were a group of earnest high-brow people who gave serious study to monetary problems and thought that they had found a panacea for the world's economic troubles, and they were filled with disgust when Mr. Aberhart suddenly emerged as an evangelical economist and proceeded to put over his own brand of Social Credit with the aid of such emotional stimulants as hymns, slogans and tuba players.

They have always asserted that Mr. Aberhart is completely and shamelessly ignorant of the fundamental principles of the genuine Douglasite creed, and has never manifested the slightest sign of grasping its keystone, which is known as the Alphus B Theorem.

Stung by their taunts, Mr. Aberhart, in 1934, published a brochure called "The Douglas System of Economics," but when it was submitted to Maj. Douglas in London for review, he returned it with the blunt comment: "Falacious from start to finish." Thereupon Mr. Aberhart hastily withdrew it from circulation after the local Douglasites had made this verdict public.

Watergate Concert Time Is Changed

In order to allow patrons more time to arrive, the Watergate Symphony concert will open at 8:20 instead of 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Thomas J. Mullikin, manager of the concert, said last night that even with excellent facilities offered by buses, it still is impossible for many of the attendants to arrive on time.

Antonia Brico will conduct the symphony again tomorrow night. The program will be featured by two compositions by Cesar Franck, and a Russian Easter Overture by Rimsky Korsakoff.

Horse Show To Interest 4 Nations

William H. Lipscomb Is Chosen President of Loudoun Hunt.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

A second Inter-American Horse Show is to be held in Washington this fall. The date has not yet been set, but plans are definitely under way for the event, which promises to be larger than that of last season.

The Meadowbrook Grounds will be the scene of the show if the weather is fair. If not, it will go to Fort Myer and be held indoors. The Riding and Hunt Club is sponsoring the exhibition, which is expected to draw the Chilean team which competed last year, a Mexican team and a Canadian team. The United States Army team will include riders from Fort Myer.

Riders of the various hunts adjacent to the Capital are preparing to enter the civilian classes, and many of the same entries which were in the hunter classes at the National Capital Horse Show are expected.

The show last season, held October 26-28, was opened with elaborate ceremonies, and was attended by many diplomats and officials as well as members of residential Washintgon society. The Third Cavalry Band played and the uniforms of the riders in the Army team and the pink coats of the members of the participating hunt clubs presented a colorful picture.

An exhibition of hounds of the various hunts was one of the features of last year's show and will be included in the program of the coming one also.

Recent Show Successful.

Maj. Frank L. Whittaker, U. S. Cavalry, secretary of the Riding and Hunt Club, has charge of arrangements. The success of the recent night horse show he planned at Meadowbrook Show Grounds, has led to consideration of night events for the Inter-American show. A permanent ring for both day and night exhibitions will be constructed in time for the event, and boxes for spectators will be provided also.

Between now and the Inter-American Show, another post entry show will be held at night at the Meadowbrook grounds, probably August 29, and drag hunts will start late in September or early October. Members of the hunt are riding daily in preparation for these events.

The night show a week ago Saturday, drew 1,500 spectators, compared to the 700 or 800 who usually attend the post entry shows in the daytime. The arrangement of the lights proved satisfactory and they will not need to be changed.

Loudoun Unit Elects.

Judges for the late August show have not yet been announced but most of the riders who took part in the recent one will probably participate again. Among them will be Mr. Fenton Fadeley, M. F. H. of the Riding and Hunt Club, with his horse, Lacquer Lady; Mr. F. Moran McConihe, who will probably ride Easter Sunday; Commander W. J. Lee, if he is here, with Bolter; Mrs. D. N. Lee, of Middleburg, and Maj. James T. Duke, Lieut. F. S. Henry and Lieut. P. M. Morton, of Fort Myer.

The Loudoun Hunt, which has just elected William H. Lipscomb, of Washington and Leesburg, as its president, will open its season formally November 15. The first hunt usually is the largest of the year.

Mr. Lipscomb, who has been a resident of Washington for the past five years, has been master of hounds of the Loudoun Hunt for four years. He resigned as M. F. H. and was promptly elected president. Judge J. R. H. Alexander, former president, was made M. F. H. at the same election.

The Loudoun Hunt, which has about 40 members, is among the older ones in the vicinity of Washington, its hounds having been hunted by Mr. Harry Wooster Smith and Mr. Lee Higginson 25 years ago. Among its Washington members, in addition to Mr. Lipscomb, are Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, who was elected one of its vice presidents, and Mr. Hurley; Mr. David N. Rust, jr., another vice president, and Mr. P. A. Wilmer, a member of the board of governors.

Mr. Barbee, Bride Leave For Virginia

Newly Married Couple to Sail Saturday to Honolulu.

Mrs. Barclay Hostess at a Post-Nuptial Supper Party.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Randolph Barbee, whose marriage took place in Mount Vernon, N. Y., Saturday, left Washington yesterday by motor for Virginia to spend a few days before leaving by plane for California where they will sail August 1 for a honeymoon in Honolulu.

Mrs. Barbee is the former Miss Grace Davenport Lunt, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., and California. Her engagement to Mr. Barbee was announced recently and the wedding date set for August. The plans were changed only last week when the bride decided to be married quietly at the home of Mrs. James Flint Barclay, in Mount Vernon, instead of having a larger ceremony which was to have taken place in Virginia.

Childhood Pastor.

Dr. Forman was pastor of the Chester Hill Methodist Church, which Miss Lunt attended as a child. Only Mrs. Barclay and Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Morris, of Washington, friends of the couple who came to act as their wedding attendants, were present.

Mrs. Barclay's apartment was decorated with large bouquets of pink roses and baby's breath. The bride wore a simple afternoon gown of navy sheer chiffon, made with a peplum. Bands of taffeta in a matching shade trimmed the front of the bodice and the high neckline. She wore a large navy straw hat with a short veil and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

After the ceremony Mrs. Barclay was hostess to the wedding party at a supper at the Hotel Gramatan in Bronxville.

Recently Bought Farm.

Mr. Barbee, who is the son of Mrs. Herbert Barbee, of Luray, Va., has recently purchased a farm, Level Green, at Fairfax, Va., where he and his bride will make their home after it has been remodeled.

The bride is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, Calif., and Mr. Barbee received his degree from Southeastern College. Mr. Barbee's father, the late Herbert Barbee, was a sculptor, as was his grandfather.

The bride has been feted at several pre-nuptial parties, one of which was a luncheon-bridge given by Mrs. Barclay at the Coveleigh Beach Club last week. Mrs. H. D. Crawford and Mrs. T. Edward Ryan also entertained in her honor at a surprise luncheon-bridge party last week.

Mrs. Durant Wed in Roslyn

Mr. Merrall MacNeille and Bride Leave on Motor Trip.

Mrs. Adelaide Brevoort Durant, daughter of Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, of Washington and New York, was married on Sunday morning to Mr. Merrall MacNeille, son of Mrs. John MacNeille, of Scarsdale, and the late Mr. MacNeille. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, Hillwood, Rosyln, Long Island. The Rev. Norman Twiddy, of Hempstead, Long Island, officiated.

The bride's daughter, Marjorie, was her only attendant, and Mr. John R. MacNeille, of Scarsdale, N. Y., was his brother's best man.

Mrs. McNeille was married in a traveling costume of navy blue print. Only the immediate families were present and the couple left after the ceremony on a motor trip.

The bride is a sister of Mrs. George C. Rand and Miss Nedenia Hutton, and a granddaughter of the late C. W. Post. Her father, Mr. Edward B. Close, resides in Paris. She attended the Spence School and was graduated from Miss Nightingale's School.

Mr. MacNeille is a graduate of Yale in the class of '30 and is associated with the advertising firm of Young & Rubicam. His engagement to the former Mrs. Durant was announced last week.

Major, Mrs. Melvin Hall Guests Of Darlingtons for Short Visit

Widely Traveled Couple Again in Capital and Attend Small Party; Will Go to Delaware and Vermont, Then to Illinois.

By Dudley Harmon.

Maj. Melvin Hall, who has had many an exotic-sounding post, including that of financial adviser to the Shah of Persia, has returned with Mrs. Hall to Washington for a short stay and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darlington at their home in Georgetown.

After living in Teheran, Tokio, Shanghai and Alexandria, Va., where they had a house last winter, Maj. and Mrs. Hall are now residing in the State of Illinois. They will return there later in the summer after a trip to Wilmington, Del., and a stay in Vermont.

As an authority on Persia, Maj. Hall has been asked many questions as to the real inside of "l'affaire Elkton," or the recent recalling of the Persian Minister after his widely publicized mix-up with a Maryland traffic officer. There has been much speculation as to the real reason for his recall, but Maj. Hall blames it on the fact that the Persians took offense at the outspokenness of the American press.

Maj. Hall knows how to tell a story, and one of his many amusing anecdotes concerns our one-time Minister to Denmark and later to Yugoslavia, Mr. John Dynely Prince. Mr. Prince, it seems, speaks 40-odd languages, including Icelandic, and now is a professor of languages at Columbia. Before he retired from the diplomatic service he used to amaze his attaches with his linguistic ability, and they determined to try to catch him on something. At dinner they would take turns asking him questions in different languages, including the Japanese, but Mr. Prince not only could answer them every time, but invariably came back with an appropriate quotation from an obscure poet of the country in question.

"Not only did he speak these 40 languages," said Maj. Hall, "but he even wrote the words and music of a Yugoslavian song."

Several friends of Maj. and Mrs. Hall gathered at the Darlington home yesterday afternoon for a small, informal cocktail party. Mr. and Mrs. Darlington are occupying the home at 3131 O street which belongs to Miss Rose Greeley, daughter of the famous Arctic explorer, the late Gen. Greeley. A landscape architect of ability, Miss Greeley designed the garden of her home, and it was here yesterday's party was held.

Among the guests were Mrs. Higginson Rogers, who recently returned from a tour of the South in her Bookmobile, the traveling library she designed; Mr. Edward Van Devanter, one of those who first discovered the residential charms of Alexandria, and who has remodeled many old houses there; the First Secretary of the German Embassy, Herr Herbert Scholz, who arrived with a sunburn from a week-end outing; the Second Secretary of the French Embassy, Mr. Claude de Boisanger, also sunburned; Miss Aletha Harcourt, and Herr Ernst Myer, First Secretary of the German Embassy.

Col. and Mrs. Harry N. Cootes, of Alexandria, and their daughter, Miss Mary Cootes, are the guests of Mrs. Samuel Warren, of Boston, at her summer home in Essex, Mass. Col. Cootes will return to the Capital on Thursday.

Miss Cootes frequently visits in Essex during the summer and has played in several of the tennis tournaments there. Miss Anne Warren, daughter of Mrs. Warren, toured the Orient last year with Mrs. Cootes and her daughter and the Misses Marion and Elizabeth Shouse, daughters of Mrs. Lawrence Groner.

Mrs. Cootes and Miss Cootes will go to New York City the end of the week and will return to Washington late in August.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Small Town School Teacher Would Spend Vacation Acting as Nurse or Governess to Small Children.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I live in a small town where facilities for amusement are limited. There is no library, except a lending library, where the literature is very poor. There is no swimming pool or tennis court. There are not many young persons here. For nine months of the year I teach school and usually in the summer I take a vacation. The past year I have had to help my family because of financial difficulties and I have not saved enough to go anywhere.

* * * *

I know that oftentimes persons with small children go on vacations, and that taking care of children on a motor trip is no vacation to the mother. Do you think it would be possible for me to get a position as nurse or governess with someone for the remainder of the summer? I can entertain and amuse children, especially those under eight years of age. I have some knowledge of dietetics. I can read well, play the piano and tell stories.

* * * *

I dislike to bother you about something which you may not be able to do, but there is no one around here to ask for employment. The citizens of the town expect exemplary behavior from the teachers, so I have to be a little bit careful in taking a job. SCHOOL TEACHER.

DEAR SCHOOL TEACHER: I doubt if you will have much luck in realizing your eleventh hour dream of finding a post as children's nurse or governess for the remainder of the summer. Persons in a position to make vacation plans have already perfected them by early July, as a rule, since it is in July and August that the majority of persons go away for the summer. The suggestion I can give you is to advertise in the "personals" columns of the Sunday newspapers published in the large cities near your home, telling your qualifications and asking for the job you have in mind.

* * * *

If you are skilled at telling children's stories, why don't you turn your hand to writing original children's stories this summer? That might be a constructive and amusing way of spending your leisure time. Dorothea Brande and Walter Pitkin have written interesting textbooks on the art of short story writing, and if it is possible to make a trip to a nearby city, you might get their books and spend the remainder of the summer building yourself a pleasant hobby which might in time develop into something really worthwhile. M. H.

Wants Budget Counsel.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can you tell me where I can get printed information about budgets—both for families and single individuals? If you know of no organization publishing such forms or suggestions can you give me the name of an expert whom I can consult? I may add that I like your column very much and am interested in your method of cracking some pretty hard nuts. Yours truly (with many thanks) FLORENCE H.

* * * *

DEAR FLORENCE H.: It occurs to me that Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Home Economics Division of the Department of Agriculture, may be able to give you the information you want. Also, some of the old established life insurance companies distribute leaflets dealing with household budgets By writing to such companies at their home offices, you should be able to get an ample supply of such literature. M. H.

Introduction Inadvisable.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: In your column of Sunday, June 21, a letter was published from a young lady who signed herself "Old Fashioned." I should like very much to meet this person, as I feel we may have tastes in common. I am a college graduate and can furnish references. Not knowing your policy in such matters, I do not know whether I should forward a note to her through you, or whether you would be willing to give her my telephone number or ask her permission to give me her telephone number. P. P. R.

* * *

DEAR P. P. R.: The young lady who signed herself "Old-Fashioned" did not include her name or address, or telephone number, in her letter, so it would be impossible for me to put you in touch with her, even if I felt such a move would be advisable, which I do not. Any person who introduces any two persons to each other is making himself in a measure the social sponsor of each of the persons introduced. And it would be foolish, indeed, of me to put myself in the position of vouching for the suitability of two persons neither of whom I know. This is not to imply that you are not an entirely worthwhile young man, nor the young lady not an entirely worthwhile young woman, but only to say that I do not believe in such long-range meddling with the unknown. M. H.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

There's Pollen in the Air.

PART I.

I do not know of any disease that is nice, pleasant, comforting, or helpful. But we must give hay fever one long credit mark—it is never fatal. But it causes a tremendous amount of distress and is so dreaded by those who are susceptible that everything should be done for relief.

We now know that hay fever arises from the same basic cause as that which is responsible for hives (urticarial). Some foreign substance which the body abominates is absorbed by the skin or the nasal passages, or finds its way into the digestive tract, whereupon a vigorous protest is set up with symptoms of hay fever, asthma, or hives.

Hay fever seasons vary in different parts of the country. For example, in Florida a certain irritating pollen may be produced in January. The same or a similar grass will flower in New England in May or June. Grasses are our greatest enemies until after the middle of July when various weed pollens predominate.

Occasionally patients are sensitive to a great number of plants and distress may continue from early summer until frost. Cultivated plants that are fragrant as well as beautiful rarely cause hay fever. They are fertilized by insects and the pollen is heavy and sticky. In other words, no great quantity is taken up by the "breezes that blow" to be wafted about indiscriminately.

Wind blown pollens, on the other hand, constitute a real menace. The air for days, even weeks, during the ragweed season, may be loaded with these tiny granules—700 to 800 per cubic yard. The sources for the most part are plants with inconspicuous, unattractive blossoms without fragrance. Tumbleweeds, the ragweeds and all the grasses belong in this group.

Just why ragweeds bear the high sounding botanical name of ambrosia—"the food or drink of the gods"—is hard to explain. The deities in question must have been immune to hay fever. At any rate, Dioscorides (about 50 A. D.), who applied the name to certain herbs, probably thought so. The ambrosiaceae constitute a large family and number about 60 species.

The common offenders are the high, low Western and Southern varieties. The high ragwed, also known as the giant, begins to shed its pollen the first or second week in August and continues until the first week in October. This particular species grows abundantly in waste lots, along roadsides and fields throughout a large part of the United States and Canada. Its pollen is light, floats easily, and is carried long distances by air currents.

Furthermore, the plant is most prolific. The low ragweed pollinates during the same period and is distributed equally widely. The Western ragweed begins to flower about the end of July and continues until October, while the Southern is the slowest of all, shedding its pollen in late August and September. The importance of this plant is indicated by the fact that during the height of the flowering season, 95 per cent of the pollen content of the air in the great plains section east of the Missouri River will be ragweed.

Chic Costumes for Summer Sightseeing

Practical, versatile and smart—the two ensembles worn by the sightseers above. The print is green silk chiffon with tiny pattern of black and white accordion pleats trim the edge of cape and hemline. All-over tucking distinguishes the black net made over a black taffeta slip. The printed frock has a detachable cape and the net frock a removable coat, which make the two costumes versatile enough to serve for both daytime and informal evening affairs.

Hot Weather Complicates Care of Baby

Children's Bureau Issues List of Suggestions to Mothers.

SUGGESTIONS to mothers on care of the baby during a heat wave have been issued by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. Among them are:

Keep the baby in the coolest part of the house or porch. Be sure that his bed is covered by a netting unless windows and porch are well screened. He should wear only the lightest clothing, such as a diaper and a band. In extremely hot weather even these can be dispensed with.

Plenty of Water.

Give the baby as much water to drink as he will take, but be absolutely sure that all water given him has been boiled. Boiling all milk and water and cooking all food given the baby prevents severe diseases of the bowels. Breast-fed babies do not have digestive troubles so much as artificially fed babies. It is usually wise not to start weaning the baby in very hot weather, but if necessary, weaning may be carried out, provided the milk mixture is carefully prepared and boiled and the doctor's directions carried out exactly.

Watch the baby's bowel movements. If they become loose, cut down the amount of milk mixture given him or stop it altogether; give him extra boiled water to drink and call the doctor. Give no drugs except on the doctor's advice.

Do not change the baby's feeding schedule. If he is bottle fed, be sure that all utensils connected with his feeding, such as bottles, nipples, etc., are kept clean and covered. Keep the milk in the ice box.

Do not give the baby ice cream.

If the baby is taking cow's milk and, because of drought or other reasons, none is available, use canned evaporated milk or dried milk instead.

Travel Unwise.

Keep the baby out of the sun. When he is indoors or on a shady porch, be sure that the rooms or porch are well screened.

Do not travel with the baby unless absolutely necessary. Be sure to carry boiled water in a bottle and offer frequently to baby.

Give the baby frequent sponge baths if the weather is very hot. If the baby has a heat rash the parts affected should be sponged frequently or dabbed with bicarbonate of soda and water or powdered with starch and boric acid powder (2 parts of starch to 1 part of boric acid).

The baby should sleep alone. On the hottest nights a diaper and lightweight band are enough clothing. The room should be made as cool as possible.

Conditions vary considerably in a country the size of the United States, the Bureau pointed out, and a rise in temperature from 65 degrees to 85 degrees on the eastern seaboard is apt to be just as trying for a young baby as a rise from 85 degrees to 100 degrees or over in the prairie States. The humidity has an important relation to the effect of heat on infants. When the humidity is high the ill effects of heat are more marked than when it is low.

And Call It Accident

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

BY NOW feeling full of exasperation and anxiety, George put through a call to the postoffice and there he had to deal with a woman who seemed to him far more intelligent than either of the two men he had spoken to. But what she had to say was even more perplexing. "I think, sir, that you will find the young lady motored to London with Capt. Trefane. That was what was arranged, I know, and I am sending on a letter to the London address left by Mrs. Trefane. It was taken to the castle, as in duty bound, for Miss Starling had left no word saying where her letters were to be sent on. But the postman could get no answer though he rang and rang."

On that George Dwight explained that Capt. and Mrs. Trefane were both in London, that the young lady had apparently started to motor there independently, and that they were every bit as anxious as he was himself to know what had become of her.

"There is a man as might know about Miss Starling's movements, sir," said the postmistress hesitatingly. "That's Mr. Troutbeck, as runs a flower farm for Lady Cicester. But he's not on the telephone, sir. The castle is in his charge, when it's empty like."

And then she added something which impressed George Dwight as by far the most intelligent suggestion that had yet been made to him. "If I was you, sir, asking your pardon for being so bold, I'd come right down here to Lilyford today. There's an express starting in half an hour from now, and you could go straight along and see Mr. Troutbeck. It's pretty sure Miss Starling will have left instructions or messages with him, for she was very friendly to Troutbeck, owing to her thinking he saved her life when she was near burned alive in the annex of the castle."

"Burned alive?" he echoed in a horor-stricken tone.

"Why, yes, sir. Didn't you know about it? The place was burnt near to a cinder; nothing's left standing but a kind of little stone scullery that was there before the annex was built. Miss Starling was sleeping there upstairs, where she had a nice bedroom and a bathroom, too."

"Then did this Mr. Troutbeck save her?"

"Well, no, he didn't exactly save her. But he had put a ladder on the shore the day before, and by God's providence, as many of us think, she was able to get out of the window of the bath room, and go down that ladder to safety."

Decides to Deliver Box.

He was just leaving the telephone box when suddenly he espied the little box he had promised Iris to post, but now he told himself that instead of doing that, he would take it down with him to Cornwall.

As he stepped down onto the platform he saw that only two or three people had left the train, and were going through the gate by which stood the ticket collector. These included a tall, middle-aged man, who stood back courteously to let him pass.

"Can you direct me to where I can get an automobile that will take me to a place called Perranuth Castle? Maybe I ought to say to a flower farm that seems to be close to it, where lives a Mr. Troutbeck?"

The middle-aged man hurried forward, "I can give you a lift," he said courteously, "for I am going by there. Are you a friend of Mr. Troutbeck's?"

"Well, no. I've never seen him. But I believe he can give me some information of which I am urgently in need. And, I hope he will be able to convey this box, which I was asked to send by registered post," he glanced at the little box as he spoke, "to the Marchioness of Cicester."

"She is my mother, and I will take charge of the box," and Lord John also glanced down at the address. "Then you know my cousin, Mrs. Trefane?" and he smiled. Meanwhile, he was walking with the American stranger toward a large open car, and as they came close to it, "Everything all right, Kent?" said the owner of the car to his chauffeur.

"As far as I know, my lord, everything is quite all right. Capt. and Mrs. Trefane left the castle yesterday——" The man would have liked to add: "But there's some mystery about Miss Starling, for folks have been telephoning from London about her whereabouts." But he didn't dare say that. Lord John was on excellent terms with all those around him, but there was something in him which checked any kind of familiarity. Also, every one at the manor house was aware that Lord John hated the kind of local gossip in which his mother took a considerable, if shamefaced, interest.

"We're going to the flower garden, Kent."

Seeks Miss Starling.

Then after having mentioned to George Dwight to take his seat in the car, he got in beside him, feeling full of painful curiosity as to this man's business. He had at once guessed that this was Ruth Starling's friend and lawyer. Still, being the kind of man he was, he asked no questions, the while wracking his mind and imagination as to the reason which could have brought the American to Cornwall.

And then suddenly his companion answered all the unspoken questions which were filling Lord John's heart.

"I'm very glad to have met you," he exclaimed, "though I fear you won't be able to help me. For what I've really come here to discover is the present whereabouts of Miss Starling."

"Isn't she with the Trefanes?"

"Not only is she not with them, but they haven't the slightest idea where she is, or can be. She was to have motored to London with Capt. Trefane. He went to Lilyford to see his wife off by train, and when he came back to the castle he found that Miss Starling had gone, leaving a note explaining she intended to start at once for London in a fast car. As a matter of fact she did order a car early yesterday morning by telephone. But when it arrived at the castle, the chauffeur could get no answer. She had left, so much is clear, before Capt. Trefane had arrived back from Lilyford. So in due course he motored to London alone, expecting to find Miss Starling there."

Travel Light Advice Fails In Far East

Ready - Made Garments Found Not So Plentiful Abroad.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

DISPENSERS OF TRAVEL wisdom for women invariably advise, "Take half as many dresses, shoes and hats as you think you'll need and your trip will be twice as pleasant. Travel light."

But Mrs. Jim Marshall, of Seattle, Wash., who, with her writer-husband, recently went to the Philippines, China and Japan before she came to the Capital to spend a few weeks, has other ideas. She confessed yesterday over a luncheon table that she "listened once to the advice to 'travel light' and discovered it's all wrong!"

When her husband, a Far East correspondent for Collier's Magazine, suggested that she take only a small part of her wardrobe and buy what she needed along the way, she agreed to do so. "Not only that, but I listened to him on the boat, and when a dress needed cleaning, I tossed it overboard—just like that," she said with a flip of her wrist. "So when I arrived in Manila I was more than ready to replenish my wardrobe. That's where I got my first lesson."

Small Sizes Scarce.

It seems that in the Philippines, you can stay six months and finally get almost any type of garment made to suit you. But in two or three weeks, such a thing is rarely posible. "I tried to get something ready made. If I were size 16, it wouldn't have been difficult, but dresses smaller than that are hard to find. So I bought a few ill-fitting frocks and decided to wait until I got to China and Japan."

There she discovered ready-made garments are not nearly so plentiful as they are here, and that time means nothing to Oriental dressmakers. "So I spent a good deal of time waiting for dresses to be finished," she explained. "I realized then as never before that "travel light" is poor advice, for I would have saved plenty of rushing about and agonizing over buying material and having dresses fitted if I had taken enough clothes with me. Keeping track of a lot of luggage as you go along is nothing compared with the misery of having "nothing to wear" when you need it. One of the high points of my trip was going on a shopping spree after I got home."

But Mrs. Marshall didn't allow her shopping difficulties to spoil her trip, and she obviously spent a good deal of time looking for something besides clothes. From her rich store of memories she drew some choice bits yesterday regarding quaint customs of people across the Pacific. She told, for example, how the handbag of hte Japanese man or woman is not a bag at all, but a square of silk in which belongings are folded. "It is called a 'furosiki,'" she said, "and varies in size according to the content. It is carried either in the palm of the hand or under the arm-folded-across-the-chest. Americans never seem to learn how to manage the 'furosiki.' They generally carry it bucket-fashion."

Spy Proves Friendly.

Some of the most amusing incidents on the Marshalls' trip revolved around the Japanese spy who started trailing them the minute they landed in Tokyo. "He hardly dared to let us out of his sight," Mrs. Marshall said. "So even though my husband at once recognized him as a spy, we got to be very good friends with him. Later, we met his wife and children and got a glimpse of Japanese family life we might not have had, otherwise."

Mrs. Marshall said women in general in Japan still cling to their traditional attire—the kimono—"because most of them are bow-legged." She pointed out, also, that when a girl marries, the account of her wedding always tells who taught her flower arrangement and tea service.

On the whole, Mrs. Marshall enjoyed Japan more than China, though she thinks the latter is "a fascinating country" and would like "to go back and see more of it."

"But if I ever do, I'll take my whole wardrobe with me," she said with a twinkle in her eye. "No more of this 'traveling light' for me!"

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

By Mignon.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, indorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

THERE isn't anyone who can say for you, "Here is a lipstick that will not turn color after it has been on the lips a little while." It is the chemical content of the body very often that causes lipsticks to change color. Lipsticks may be beautifully red when you put them on and in a few minutes they may turn a disagreeable purple. Pardon me if I tell you that is the fault of your body and not of the lipstick.

I am no chemist, but I can tell you what a lipstick will do, and I propose now to tell you about one that I think ranks among the best.

The reason I like this lipstick is that it does not dry the lips and it has enough oil so that it outlasts very many of the others that remain oily for only a few moments.

The color stays put so far as I can tell, although I can't guarantee this for everyone. After applying it and wiping off the excess, the lips still remain soft. While I don't believe there is any such thing as a "permanent" lipstick and I wouldn't want if there were such a thing, this one outlasts most of those I've tried. I have been using this stick for some time with the most gratifying results so that I do not hesitate to recommend it highly.

Double-Duty Ensemble Best for Traveling

WHAT TO WEAR sightseeing in the States or abroad, is a vital fashion question. Naturally, one wants to appear smartly groomed, and at the same time, be as comfortable as possible. Costumes which are sleek and versatile are the choice of sophisticated and travel-wise women. Smart simplicity is the keynote for poise, and the assurance that one will look as crisp and fresh at the end of the day as when she started out in the morning.

When time is limited and one must dash to a cocktail or informal dinner engagement, without benefit of change of costume, after sightseeing or shopping all day, the double-duty ensemble is of paramount importance. Sheer silks and indestructible nets are an excellent choice for this purpose. They not only adapt themselves to chic styling, but are equally appropriate for daytime and evening fashions.

Dark colors are correct and practical—either solid tones or those with distinctive, small-print designs. White or light accessories brighten the picture and add a summery touch to a midseason ensemble. Dark shoes are smarter to accompany such costumes; and, obviously, a better choice than white if a complete spotless appearance is to be achieved.

Survey Shows Men Ahead in Primping

Through the ages much has been made of women's vanity. Yet the male is really the vainer success, judging from a recent survey in Mepmis, Tenn., reported by the Associated Press. At a public mirror chosen for a survey of impromptu primping, 18 men and 17 women stopped for "repairs" before a downtown store's looking-glass.

Most of the men were "hat pullerdowners" and "tie-tinkerers," though a couple of "teeth examiners" also were noted.

Personality That Attracts

VITALITY! Vitality that shines in eyes and hair, rings in the voice, swings in the step, gives you the pep for sports and camping and hikes!

That's the very core of a personality like Marjorie's. It always gets the highest vote from men when they tell what they like in a girl.

A sort of bubbling delight in the world, an unforced pleasure in feeding a pup, making taffy for the kids, going for a swim, putting up new curtains—that's Marjorie's charm. She spreads ripples of liveliness and well-being around her.

And how well we know some other girls, with a very different personality. Take Lila, so good-looking, but she has that bored, sophisticated pose. Gives you a pitying smile when you tell of enjoying a movie, or of some funny thing the baby said.

Also think of Gladys. She has vitality, all right, but so has a firecracker. She just explodes in all directions. Yaps and bounces when your head aches. Sprawls in the best chair and sings, letting grandma sit in the hard, straight chair. Her kind of vitality and Marjorie's are as different as vinegar and fruit punch.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

DOROTHY has lots of sunny windows, so that means she can have the loveliest plants growing in her different rooms. But she's clever about the way she arranges them. Instead of a hit and miss assortment of odd flower pots, she has her flower pots carefully chosen to conform and contribute to the decorative design of the ensemble.

In her living room for instance, the walls are in gray, the woodwork is white, the rug is mulberry, the sofa in a turquoise slip cover and the easy chairs in figured flowery chintz on a mulberry ground. There are four windows in a row right together and she has a valance and draperies of the flowered material but there are no glass curtains. She has had a wide sill built out to hold a row of turquoise blue flower pots and she has varieties of different pink blooming potted plants growing here. The effect is as pretty as a picture.

In her kitchen where the color scheme is all in red and white, she has green flower pots and greenery only growing on the sill. One of the windows in the dining room has glass shelves built all the way up over the window and on these glass shelves, she keeps glass bowls and containers for flowers and plants.

Here instead of having draperies, she has had built-in book shelves made to cover the entire wall in which this window is placed and incidentally they make an attractive frame for the window. The woodwork in this room is all in white, and the walls here are turquoise, repeating that note from the living room. The floor covering is the same mulberry as is used in the living room, and then in the dining room the chair seats are in gray. The pattern of the books on their wall contributes infinite and fascinating variety of design.

Send a stamp for Miss Boykin's bulletin "Pattern for a Child's Room." It includes samples of colors, along with paterns for two quilt bedspreads, one an airplane for a little boy, the other a rag doll for a little girl. Both are pieced designs.

Ideal Hostess Places Guests' Comfort First

By Margaret Wallace.

MUCH HAS BEEN written about the duties of the perfect house guest and little is said about the duties of the perfect hostess. The ideal hostess is not always the one with the most spacious home. Some of the most popular hostesses in Washington live in very moderate establishments.

The first essentials of hospitality is to be sure that the guest room is comfortable and that the entire family is co-operating to make the visitor feel welcome.

When an invitation is extended to a person to visit in the home the hostess and her family take upon themselves certain obligations. When the guests arrive it is not enough to tell them to make themselves at home; an effort should be made to make them feel so. It is necessary for the hostess or at least some member of the family to be at home when the guests arrive.

Even the chatelaine of a large estate fails in the tenets of good form when she fails to greet her guests. Arriving guests are ushered in with ceremony by the butler and attended by maids of the household in some homes. But it is not hospitality at its highest point when servants are left entirely to do the honors.

There are two extreme types of hostesses both of whom add to the discomfort of the house guest. One is the indifferent hostess who leaves the guests entirely to their own devices and the other, the over-anxious hostess, who monopolizes every minute of their time. The tactful hostess will outline something of the family plans for the guests and give them a choice as to which they care to be included in. Guests in the household should be left to themselves in their rooms sometimes but should be graciously welcomed when they join the family circle.

Query—My husband brought home two of his business associates to stay over the week-end. We live in a small house in the suburbs and have only one guest room. I told them there was plenty of room and arranged for an extra room by having my young son sleep on the porch.

It was rather inconvenient all the way around because I had not provided extra food for guests. But I made the best of the situation and my guests never suspected that they were making any trouble. My sister says that I was weak and foolish to allow myself to be imposed on that way. She believes that I should have made the two men, one young and an one older man sleep together on the small bed in the guest room. I prepared cake and ice cream and hot biscuits. Do you think my sister is right. I always feel that I am hostess in my house and that it is necessary for me to be gracious to and to do my best to entertain any one my husband brings home. It was not possible for him to notify me in advance for the men arrived without notice and all the hotels in town were filled on account of a convention.

Answer—The true test of a hostess is when unexpected guests arrive. You were perfectly correct in doing every thing you could to make your guests comfortable and to save them embarrassment.

Query—What is the proper equipment of a guest room. I am furnishing one, but cannot afford new furniture. Do you think painted furniture would be pretty.

Answer—Painted furniture is always attractive and inviting in a guest room and it is possible in this way to use furniture which otherwise would not match. Fresh curtains and pretty rugs add to the attractiveness, of course. A guest room should be equipped with a very comfortable bed and mattress.

Extra pillows should be on the bed or available for the guest who likes to read in bed or to sleep with more than the usual number of pillows. The bedding and sheets should be as nice as the family purse will allow. There should always be plenty of blankets available in cold weather and at least one even in the summertime. There should be at least one easy chair and a good reading light. Paper and envelopes and pen and ink should be on a desk or table for the guest's use in the room.

The closet in the guest room should be left empty and not used as a storage place for the family belongings. A supply of coat hangers and shoe trees and a bag or rack for shoes, and hat racks should be in the closet. A chest of drawers or bureau and a dressing table with a seat are necessary in a guest room which is to be occupied by women guests. A new comb and brush, small box of powder, pins, sewing material and so forth should be supplied for the guest room and can be purchased very inexpensively. There should be a pitcher or carafe for water and a glass, an alarm clock, ash trays and matches, a clothes brush and a calendar. A pocket flashlight or a candle should be provided in case a fuse blows out. A kimona or bathrobe should be provided. If there is a bath connecting with the guest rooms, towels and supplies should be there. If the guest shares the bathroom with the family, one shelf should be provided for the use of the guest and equipped with soap and other essentials.

Now Who Doubts the Popularity of Spinach?

Co-operative Training Replaces Individual Instruction in Maryland U. Nursery School

By Dorothy Duncan.

THE PROCESS of eating never becomes a bore for the 20 youngsters who spend their week-days under the supervision of Miss Clara Shepherd, teacher for the WPA nursery school at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Self-service from a small table supervised by the teacher is another item that throws responsibility on the children and makes them have a feeling of co-operation. The children are seated at small tables for six, and each day a different child carries the plates from his table to the serving table to be filled. This never lets one child remain in the limelight or assume a feeling of importance greater than that of the other children.

It is impressive to note that the children do not refuse to eat what is planned for them. The meals are served in three distinct courses, and no youngster is permitted a second helping or a following course until he has finished what is on his plate. The first course consists of meat and vegetables, the second of milk and tiny sandwiches (the latter usually include lettuce) and the third dessert.

This method of serving inspires a feeling of competition and imagination among the youngsters, and none of them lag for very long even over the foods they profess not to like. Here is an example:

"I don't like spinach! I don't like eggs!" exclaimed a small girl as this first course was placed before her. She dallied with her spoon awhile, then observed that the little girl at her right was getting her second course—sandwiches and milk. She immediately began to eat.

The little girl fell to with greater zeal on her spinach and eggs in order not to miss out on the sandwiches.

The following menus have been chosen from a group of noonday meals which are served at the nursery school. It is the aim of the teacher to plan menus that will provide half the required iron content for a child per day. Each child also receives tomato juice and cod-liver oil in the morning and crackers and milk at 2:30 in the afternoon. A pint and sometimes three-quarters of a quart of milk is consumed by each youngster daily.

Meal-in-One Proves Saving To Housewives

Combined Meat-Vegetable Salad, Cold Plates Easily Prepared.

MEAL-IN-ONE recipes always get a big hand from the housewife because of their economy of time, effort and less dishes to wash. For summertime these easy whole meal dishes often take the form of a meat and vegetable salad, a cold plate and vegetable assortment or an occasional hot combination.

Make use of the unlimited assortment of fresh and dry sausages available at your market for these dishes. With absolutely no bone or waste these meats are true economy cuts.

In fresh sausages you've the whole line-up of delicious cooked meat loaves, mildly seasoned luncheon roll, frankfuturers, bologna, Braunschweiger, etc., to choose from. Bologna a favorite fresh sausage comes in many sizes, from small rings to big fat sausages cutting in slices some five inches in diameter. It is mild, even in texture, made predominately of beef, and is most economical to serve. It may be used in casserole combinations, salads, or simply fried lightly to make it cup up like a small dish in which to serve hot potato salad.

The loaves, called by various names like, olive loaf, pickle and pimiento loaf or homemade meat loaf, may be sliced cold at one meal and used in any of the favorite meat salads or casseroles for a second meal.

Meats Inspected.

All these fresh sausages are made by the packers from high quality Government inspected meats, by the most carefully controlled methods. Spices and seasonings are most particularly watched for quality and purity so that the flavor is always just the same, in special varieties of meats. There are mild varieties like Brunschweiger that are fine for even young children, and more highly spiced combinations for the adult appetite. And don't neglect the fine flavor and great possibilities of the dry sausages like Salami and Thuringer. They are delightful cold, or in many combined dishes.

But, no matter what sausages you choose, it will go farther than nearly any other meat. If it is sliced cold a pound will serve five easily. If used in the following suggested combination dishes, you can stretch a pound to serve six or seven.

Bologna Cups With Potato Salad.

2 cups cold cooked potato
2 sweet pickles
1 cup celery
1 hard cooked egg
1 tablespoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons vinegar
Mayonnaise to moisten

Slice the bologna in thin slices, straight across the sausage. Leave casing on outside. Place in a frying pan and heat gradually until the edges curl up to form a perfect cup. Fill with potato salad by mixing the potatoes, sliced egg, pickles, vinegar, onion and mayonnaise. Add extra seasonings of salf if desired. Place filled bologna cups on a platter and add strips of raw carrot for raw vegetables and as a garnish.

Silhoutte Salad.

1 cup celery
1 green pepper
1 cup chopped raw spinach or water cress
3 slices each of pickle and pimiento loaf and salami

Chop vegetables coarse and add salt. Rub salad bowl with a bruised clove of garlic, add vegetables and toss with French dressing. Cut meats in very thin strips and arrange in bundles over the top of the green salad. Serve crisp, hard rolls and a beverage with this luncheon dish.

Chocolate Sirup In Icebox an Aid To Quick Tidbit

The successful hostess is the one who dispenses hospitality easily and without visible effort—the hostess who can produce refreshing good cheer for guests who drop in for a chat on hot summer evenings.

The secret is—preparedness! One recipe for preparedness is a supply of ready-to-use chocolate sirup in the refrigerator, waiting to be turned into a delicious cold drink. This is a de luxe recipe for chocolate sirup, wonderfully smooth and full of the true chocolate flavor that everyone likes.

Chocolate Sirup.

4 or 5 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup sugar
2-3 cup hot water
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Melt chocolate over hot water; cool to lukewarm. Add sugar to water, stirring until sugar is dissolved; cool to lukewarm. Add sirup to egg yolks, one-fourth at a time, beating well after each addition; add chocolate in same way. Then continue beating one minute, or until slightly thickened. Turn into jar, cover tightly, place in refrigerator. Sirup will keep several days. Use 2 tablespoons sirup for 1 cup milk. Makes 2 cups. This sirup can be made with scalded milk instead of hot water if desired.

Olives Add Distinction To Commonplace Food

Ripe olives add distinction and appeal to many such commonplace items as gravies, sauces, meat loaves, and stuffed peppers.

Many salads, too, are improved when ripe olives are added as an ingredient or a garnish, and sandwich spreads may be made more tempting by the addition of this fruit.

Milk Council's Head Will Seek Sen. King's Aid

Mrs. Boyle Will Protest AAA Board Rulings at Hearings Here.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., chairman of the Washington Consumers Council, will go today to Senator William King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, to lodge a complaint against unfairness she claims was clearly exhibited by the AAA Dairy Board, which last week heard testimony on a proposed milk marketing agreement for the District and will rule on their findings on August 4.

Mrs. Boyle said the AAA, through economic briefs prepared before the hearing, showed unfairness to consumers and independent milk producers who opposed Federal control of milk produced for sale in Washington.

She claims that the AAA's briefs were partisan because the board "could not possibly have understood thoroughly the existing situation before testimony was heard."

Hearings on the proposed agreement, which Mrs. Boyle claims would boost the price of milk in the District from 13 to 14 cents per quart, were completed Saturday.

Believes King Understands.

Senator King, Mrs. Boyle feels, will be able to understand the situation of the council; he conducted an investigation of the Washington milk shed in 1933.

Additional cost to the average consumer, under the proposed agreement Mrs. Boyle said a consumers' council economist has found, would amount to $15 per year. The increase in the District, she claimed, would amount to $100,000 a year.

"But the trouble," Mrs. Boyle complained, "is that the producers themselves won't receive full benefit of the increase in prices. We wouldn't mind donating that much to the producer. He has hard enough time. But the producer won't get the money. The middle man or distributor will reap the benefit."

The AAA board had no basis for ruling the milk situation in the District an emergency, Mrs. Boyle said.

She claims the dairy board could not possibly have ruled the situation an emergency until it had heard testimony from both producers, distributors and consumers.

Would Fix $3.55 Price.

Under the proposed agreement, the producers' price would be fixed at $3.55 per hundredweight, an increase of 47 cents, and the Government would have control of price paid the farmer.

Advocating the agreement is the Maryland-Virginia Milk Dealers Association, which claims as members approximately 1,100 of 1,400 dairy farmers and can vote as a unit on the proposal.

Meanwhile, at least one small Washington independent dairy yesterday was making plans to circumvent the Federal marketing agreement if it is put into effect.

The dairy would, it was learned by The Post, assume both the role fo producer and distributor, selling the milk obtained from its own cows. This loophole, the owner said he believed, would exempt the dairy from governmental control.

leading Jews in the religious harmony movement, in announcing his support of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, the Republican nominee, for the Presidency. Straus, vice president of the American Smelting & Refining Co., is also co-chairman with Newton D. Baker of the National Conference of Jews and Christians for Religious Freedom.

Sees Bankers, Business Men.

At Topeka, in the course of the day, Gov. Landon conferred with Col. Leonard P. Ayres, Cleveland; Benjamin M. Anderson, jr., New York, and Robert Marion Hardy, Yakima, Wash., bankers and economists. He also talked with Lewis L. Strauss, partner of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; Max Epstein, chairman of the General American Transportation Corporation, and J. A. Harzfeld, Kansas City attorney, after which he issued a statement praising the Republican nominee's "deep hatred for all bigotry and injustice toward minority races and religions."

In the Democratic organization, the appointmeent of Frank C. Walker, former treasurer of the national committee and head of the National Recovery Council, as chairman of the Democratic finance committee was announced in New York, the Associated Press reported. The national committee also completed plans for the broadcast tonight in which six Democratic Governors will discuss Landon's acceptance speech.

No word came yesterday as to whether the Detroit meeting of "Constitutional" anti-Roosevelt Democrats would be attend by Al Smith. He is on vacation and his office in New York reported the Detroit session "is not on his engagement book" as yet. The fifth signer of the Smith letter to the Democratic Convention, Judge Daniel F. Cohalan, is in Europe and is not due to return until September.

Reed, Colby and Ely all said they would be present at the meeting.

Pomerene Silent.

Invitations sent out by Edmunds say:

"We are agreed, as are all who have any knowledge of constitutional history and of our free system of government, that the re-election of President Roosevelt and his perseverance in his collectivist policies, with the prospect of packing the Supreme Court to validate them, constitutes one of the gravest problems which has ever confronted the American citizen."

Newton D. Baker, at Cleveland, said yesterday he knew nothing about the meeting, while former Senator Atlee Pomerene, mentioned as an organizer of the movement, refused to comment.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, of New York, who ran against President Roosevelt for the Democratic nomination in a number of State primaries, said he would be unable to attend because of other engagements.

Edmunds, who called the meeting, is author of "The Federal Octopus," which charges the rise of Federal agencies has created "a Federal bureaucratic despotism." He said he had sent letters to "Constitutional Democrats who are opposed to the present alien control of our party's name and machinery, in 30 or more States."

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, informed in New York of the call for the meeting said, the Associated Press reported:

"I know of no better city in the United States to hold a conference because there is no city in the United States that has come back more quickly than Detroit and I am sure that those who attend will find more prosperity there than anywhere else in the country.

"The conditions in Detroit today could not have been possible if it were not for Roosevelt's policies."

The announcement that Roger W. Straus will support Gov. Landon followed his telegram of congratulation on the Republican nominee's speech of acceptance last Thursday. The telegram said:

"Congratulations upon a speech that presents the issues to the American people without prejudice and with an appeal to carry forward a truly progressive government dedicated to human and individual rights. I for one am happy to enlist under your banner."

Among other political activities yesterday was the publishing by James R. Howard, of Clemons, Iowa, former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, of the results of an analysis of food price increases. He attributed most of them to Roosevelt policies.

"The systematic effort to destroy surpluses," he said, has brought "a skyrocketing of wheat and corn prices." He charged that "in the case of hogs and corn, responsibility for short supplies and high prices rests directly with the Administration," and predicted that long before election day living costs will be "just about what they were in 1929, and at least 25 per cent higher than they were when President Roosevelt assumed power."

Prince Georges Decides Today On Road Funds

Commissioners Will Plan to Distribute $75,000 Allotment.

Final decision on the proper method of distributing $75,000 appropriated in Prince Georges County for road maintenance will be made today by the county commissioners at Upper Marlboro.

Whether the Maryland State roads will be accepted as a handling agency for the fund will depend largely on the interpretation of the old county road law, which may necessitate the setting up of road supervisors in each district.

Members of the board, who feel it would be exceedingly impractical to have paid road "bosses" in each of the 23 districts, last night said that if this system was made compulsary the State would be given exclusive control of the funds.

If, instead, the law allows the commissioners to use the road committees, already in existence in each of the districts, the county probably will retain partial control. Members of the committee are unpaid.

Distribution of the road fund has caused considerable agitation among citizens of the county, especially those from the Berwyn district. There, where a local citizen association owns road machinery, the taxpayers have fought for return of the money to the districts on prorated shares.

The county government is unable to work the roads because of the lack of road machinery. The Berwyn citizens have argued, also, that work needed now can be done without full equipment.

Sniper Wounds Battery Worker

Police yesterday were searching for a hidden sniper who fired three shots at George Ruth, colored, 48, of 301 ½ street northwest, while he was working in his battery shop in the 1700 block of Third street northwest.

Ruth was struck in the shoulder by a bullet from the gun of the unidentified sniper shortly after 7 a. m. He was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for a flesh wound and returned to work. About 10 a. m. two more shots were fired at him through a rear door, one shot striking the automobile on which he was working.

Ruth told police who scoured the alley in the back of the place for the gunman that he had had an argument with another colored man Saturday. This man, Ruth said, threatened to "get him."

Police Blame Gang's Power On Lax Court

Inability to purge the city of the last "pre-repeal" mob of bootleggers and "numbers" racketeers was admitted by police yesterday when they condemned the District courts for failing to co-operate in ridding the city of the "Foggy Bottom" gang.

Police said the Warring brothers are the last well-organized gang of racketeers in the city since the arrest and conviction of Sam Beard and Arthur "Dutch" Erwin.

"These men should be run out of the city," a high police official was quoted as saying yesterday, but the courts refuse to indict members of this gang and if they are indicted and convicted the men are placed on probation."

Records in the police vice squad showed one instance where seven men were arrested in the 2500 block of I street northwest, more than a year ago for accepting "numbers" bets. Evidence against these men was gathered by two policemen who made plays every day for nearly two weeks with members of the Warring gang. Each runner who accepted a bet was followed to the I street address, and when police raided the place in June, 1935, all were taken into custody.

Case Never Tried.

The initials "W. E." which police took to be the transposed initials of one of the Warring boys, was on each "numbers" slip, the vice squad records show. Two of the men seized told detectives at the time they were working for the Warring brothers.

Yet the case has never gone to trial.

All were indicted execept the operator, whom the court freed because it was claimed there was insufficient evidence to warrant his arrest. Records show a coin audit machine found in the place at the time of the raid had been shipped here from Detroit to a man named "E. Warring."

Another case in the records shows where five men and two women were arrested for operating a lottery in the 1500 block U street northwest, March 24. All were seized with mark- money and a quantity of "numbers" slips. This case has never gone to trial.

Case Was Dismissed.

"This officer," Little said, "made several plays with this man, followed him to his headquarters and seized him and several others with marked money and 'numbers' slips in their possession.

"This case was dismissed in court because Justice Peyton Gordon ruled the policeman used subterfuge to obtain evidence.

"How can we make cases against these racketeers when the courts hold we cannot arrest them without first making ourselves known? Naturally, a 'numbers' writer is not going to accept a bet from a policeman if he knows it," Little declared.

Three Under Arrest.

Three Warring gangsters now are under arrest for the shooting last Tuesday morning of George E. O'Brien whom, police said is a "small time" bootlegger who tried to expand from the Southeast to the Northwest section of the city, where the Warring mob is regarded as supreme.

O'Brien was shot three times in the leg while he was standing in front of a lunchroom in the 200 block of Second street southeast.

The three men arrested, Samuel "Monty" Montgomery, George F. Tear and Joseph S. Bond, were released under bond.

Police estimate that nearly $100,000 daily is taken in by these racketeers, but they say they cannot stop it because the courts will not convict the men.

The Zoo's Link With the Past Is Dead

Komodo Dragon Dies

to the Bronx Zoo and the other was sent here.

He arrived in a special crate that weighed 303 pounds. Getting him out of this and into his new lair at the Zoo was quite a task, requiring the strength of Director William M. Mann, Headkeeper William H. Blackburne and eight husky helpers.

Familiar with the high mortality rate of the king of lizards in captivity, Dr. Mann and Headkeeper Blackburne did everything possible to make their scaly and ferocious guest feel at home.

They knew that on the Island of Komodo their dragon lizard had ranged over the hills by day and had burrowed among the rocks at night. And so they fixed him up a home as much like that as was within their power.

As has been said, no food was too good for him. Eggs, chickens and squabs were shovered on him, but it was no use. In the end, he wouldn't eat.

Maybe what he wanted was a wild pig.

Bready Is Appointed New Chief of Transit

R. L. Bready, an employe of the local street car system for 33 years, has been named superintendent of transportation for the Capital Transit Co., it was announced yesterday. He succeeds the late D. S. Schmidt.

He entered the service as a motorman of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. in 1903 and was promoted to inspector and later too division superintendent. When the two street railways were merged, Bready was made an assistant superintendent of transportation.

Saturday Deadline For Licensing Dogs, Commissioners Say

All dogs found on Washington streets without District licenses after Saturday will be subject to seizure by the acting poundmaster, the District Commissioners warned yesterday.

Issuing an order to Acting Poundmaster Joseph La Salle, the Commissioners pointed out that owners are allowed the entire month of July to obtain license tags from the District tax collector at $2 for male or female.

"That would seem to be ample time," the order read, "and you are directed to proceed to strictly enforce the law after August 1 by a city-wide canvass, picking up all dogs that are without the necessary license.

"You are directed also to impound all dogs running at large not wearing a good substantial muzzle put on to prevent the dogs from biting or snapping in compliance with the Commissioners' proclamation of April 21, 1936."

The proclamation ordered all dogs muzzled from May 1 until October 1. A large number of dogs has been seized for violation of this proclamation, it was said, but no cases of rabies have been reported this summer.

Wallace W. Riley Burial Rites Today

Funeral services for Wallace W. Riley, 53, of 1218 Taylor street northeast, sales manager of the Griffith Consumers Co., will be held today at 9 a. m. in St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery. He died Saturday after a long illness.

Mr. Riley, who was manager of the coal sales division of Griffith Consumers Co., has long been identified with the fuel business here. For many years he was vice president of the J. Maury Dove Co. Later he became connected with the old Consumers Co., and became manager of coal sales division soon after 1928 when the Griffith Coal Co. merged with Consumers.

Race Horse Absent At Archibald Rites; Colt Needs Her Care

Family responsibilities kept Candy Queen, race horse, from attending the burial service yesterday morning of her master, H. Teller Archibald, candy manufacturer and turfman, in Glenwood Cemetery.

Candy Queen has a foal at her side. At the last minute it was decided it would be unwise to separate the two long enough for the mare to come from the Archibald stables near The Plains, Va., to follow the cortege to the burial place.

Of all his horses, Mr. Archibald considered Candy Queen, winner of many races, his favorite. When he died last Friday his wife said he would have wanted the mare to follow him to the cemetery, and plans were made to bring her to Washington.

She had been decorated with the Archibald racing colors of maroon and green when the manager of the stables decided she should stay at home with her colt. The colors were transferred to a wreath which was placed on Mr. Archibald's coffin.

Optimists to Hear Of New Dispensary

The dispensary will be dedicated in August and at the end of the camp season will be set up at the Boys Club clinic in Washington, making the equipment useful the year 'round.

J. S. Bartlett, managing director of the Electrical Institute, will address the Optimists at the luncheon on "What the Electrical Institute Means to Washington."

Sister Margaret Funeral in Boston

Funeral services for Sister Emily Margaret, a native of this city and a member of the Anglican Order of St. Margaret, will be held today in Boston, Mass., it was learned here last night.

Sister Margaret, the daughter of the late Louis and Emily H. Watkins, spent all of her early life in this city and was identified with work in the Episcopal Church throughout the city, notably mission work of St. James' Parish in the Northeast section.

She entered the convent of the American branch of the Order of St. Margaret at Boston in 1896. Most of her work was done in missions maintained by the sisterhood in Montreal, Philadelphia and in the District, where for eight years she was connected with St. John's Church Orphanage at Twentieth and F streets northwest.

Sister Margaret is survived by two sisters, Miss Catherine R. Watkins and Mrs. William Clark Prentiss, and a brother, Dr. Samuel E. Watkins, all of this city.

Radio Plea to Roosevelt Fails To Save Home From HOLC Sale

While Andrew O. Shrader was downtown yesterday afternoon "trying to fix things up with the loan company" and while Mrs. Shrader was inside the house with the shades down, the HOLC held a foreclosure sale of their home at 6300 Thirty-third street northwest.

Desperate at the thought of losing the place they have lived in for seven years, the Shraders sent a radiogram Saturday night to President Roosevelt, telling him of their plight.

"We kept thinking up to the very last minute that the President might do something," Mrs. Shrader said yesterday after her home had been bought by the HOLC at auction for $14,200.

According to Paul J. Frizzell, trustee of the property and deputy general manager of the HOLC, the Shrader place was appraised at $18,806 when a loan of $13,918.16 was obtained on June 26, 1934. Frizzell pointed out that no payments have been made on principal or interest and that taxes are delinquent to the amount of $808.

The HOLC official said the Shraders have 60 days in which to redeem their home, a story-and-a-half English bungalow on a lot measuring 120 by 170 feet. And that is exactly what the Shraders hope to do.

While a small group of neighbors and curious boys on bicycles watched indifferently, the auctioneer, T. W. Owen, called for bids. Harvey D. Jacob, an attorney for the HOLC, offered $12,500. A couple of men kept raising the amount until it had reached $14,100. Then they lost interest and Jacob took the place over for the HOLC at $14,200.

Shrader, a former contractor, is now employed by the WPA as an engineer. He obtained the Government job only a couple of weeks ago after being unemployed for several months. He lost his own contracting business a few years ago.

C. T. C. Is Told To Better Bus Ventilation

Deadline Is October 31; Commission Makes Findings Public.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday issued an amended bus ventilation order and instructed the Capital Transit Co. and suburban lines running into Washington to proceed at once to equip their motor vehicles accordingly.

With the essential provisions unchanged, the revised order was declared by Richmond B. Keech, acting chairman, to be a technical improvement of the order issued originally on May 9. It was approved in general by People's Counsel William A. Roberts, although he still insisted the change in air should be double that provided in the order.

Unless the order is contested by the carriers, all new buses purchased hereafter will be equipped by the manufacturer with a specified pressure type system of ventilation "capable of supplying at all times and under all conditions a minimum of 10 cubic feet of free air (measured at temperature and pressure in bus) per minute per passenger seat, with provision for reasonably uniform distribution."

Deadline October 31.

Buses now in operation must be equipped with a suitable ventilation system not later than October 31.

The revised order describes the system more specifically than did the original order, which was objected to in part by the Capital Transit Co. It states:

"The intake opening or openings for said system shall be located in the front roof area and above the top of the windshield or front window, or on the right side of bus behind the front door and in the front two-thirds of the bus and adjacent to the belt line with the bottom of the opening not more than six inches below said line, unless a different location is approved by the commission. No exhaust ventilator shall be installed in the rear third portion of the body or roof of bus."

Gives Supporting Reasons.

In support of the reasons listed for issuance of the ventilation order, the commission inserted the following findings:

"The record discloses that under present operating conditions passengers suffer personal discomfort and in certain cases are rendered sick by inadequacy of ventilation. This prevails particularly during the winter season. * * *

"The commission again finds that additional and positive ventilation is necessary for public convenience in certain designated classes of buses in operation in the District."

John H. Anderson, veteran of the Union Army during the Civil War and blacksmith in an era that passed almost two decades ago, is dead.

Death came to Mr. Anderson, who was 96, in Mount Alto Hospital, where he had been ill for almost a year. He was taken there for treatment from his home at 1104 K street southeast. A pioneer in the Anacostia section, he often told his friends he could remember when there were only a few scattered houses there.

Mr. Anderson enlisted in 1864, and was honorably discharged after the peace of Appomattox, a year later. Until recent years he kept his blacksmith shop, despite the decline in use of the horse in commerce and transportation.

Surviving Mr. Anderson are his wife, Mrs. Phina Anderson, 71, and two sons, John H. Anderson, jr., and Bernard I. Anderson. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late last night.

Honorary pallbearers included Rear Admirals N. M. Smith and H. E. Lacky and Captains D. A. Duncan, D. C. Webb, W. H. Allen and Ralph Whitman.

Court Holds D. C. Fireman In Arson Case

4 Witnesses Charge He Ignited Furniture, Then Fled.

Walter A. Walker, jr., 36, a District fireman for 14 years, was charged yesterday with setting fire to his own house.

After a preliminary hearing before Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran he was ordered held for the grand jury. His bond was set at $5,000.

He was accused of pouring gasoline over the furniture in his home, 4953 Hurst terrace northwest, on Saturday night, setting fire to it and leaving the premises before arrival of firemen.

Walker has had a distinguished record of service with the department. In 1930 he was awarded the annual silver medal for bravery by the District Commissioners. He had rescued a boy from the bottom of a gas-filled sewer without waiting either for orders or to don his gas mask. Five dollars a month was added to his pay for meritorious service.

No One Home.

The fireman was arrested late Sunday night after Fire Marshal Calvin G. Lauber and police had investigated the blaze. Firemen from No. 29 Engine Company, who had responded to the alarm, became suspicious when they found no one at home and nothing on fire but the living-room furniture.

At the hearing yesterday four witnesses said they had watched Walker sprinkle gasoline on the furniture and set fire to it himself. They were fighting the blaze when firemen arrived.

The witnesses said they had watched the house because Walker, who was off duty Saturday, had threatened to burn it down at the height of an argument with his wife. She walked out.

Thomas Sparks, a filling station attendant, who lives at 5174 Fulton street northwest, told Judge Curran he had sold Walker a 2-gallon can of gasoline shortly before the fire broke out at 10 p. m.

Identifies Can.

He identified the can when it was produced as evidence by Policeman J. A. Wheeler, of the Seventh Precinct, who arrested the fireman.

Sergt. H. C. Weatherall, who was in charge of the first apparatus to respond to an untraced telephone alarm, said if he had been five minutes later the whole house would have been on fire He said the damage was confined to the furniture.

Other witnesses to testify at yesterday's hearing were Catherine and Milton Sincindiver, 3435 Brown street northwest; Joseph and Ruth Rickman, 4957 Hurst terrace; Hiram Battle, 5174 Fulton street northwest, and William Renfro, 4957 Hurst terrace.

$1,000 Fight 'Fine' Just Psychology, Local Judge Says

Arraigned in Police Court on charges of disorderly conduct, Floyd and Goldie Cubertson, 1338 B street northeast, were sentenced to pay a $1,000 fine or spend 5 years in jail.

They stood spellbound when Judge Robert E. Mattingly pronounced sentence. The courtroom was silent, lawyers gaped openmouthed, because such a fine could not be imposed for a minor offense.

Judge Mattingly's clerk hurried to the bench. Judge Mattingly informed the clerk he was well aware of the law when told the sentence was too high. "But think of the psychological effect," he said.

The sentence was reduced to $25 and 30 days and then suspended. Judge Mattingly said he imposed the stiff sentence just to scare the couple into leading a more orderly life. They had been arrested for fighting in their home.

U. S. to Press Sullivan Hunt In Bank Theft

Notice Is Sent Throughout Nation for Arrest in Illinois Holdup.

A more vigorous drive by the Federal Bureau of Investigation to capture short, pudgy-faced John Sullivan, last of the gang of eight who robbed the St. Charles (Ill.) National Bank last January, was forecast yesterday when the bureau distributed 250,000 copies of a "wanted" notice throughout the country.

At 40, Sullivan, also known by half a dozen aliases, has a police record that extends through 22 years and makes him a likely candidate for the unenviable title of "Public Enemy No. 1," last held by the kidnaper gangsters Alvin Karpis, Harry Campbell and William Mahan.

The St. Charles National Bank robbery, for which Sullivan is now being sought by Justice agents, occurred on January 31, 1936. Armed with revolvers and shotguns, the robbers entered the bank by means of a key to the front door before dawn. As the employes arrived, each was held up, bound and gagged. The assistant cashier was forced to open the vault and the robbers escaped with almost $15,000.

The first "break" in the case came when special agents of the Chicago office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation received information that an individual known as "Blackie" had in his possession a large number of new $1 bills. "Blackie" proved to be Philip Dimenza, who together with Leo Friedman, Sam Bongiorno and Sullivan had entered the bank while Frederick T. Hanson acted as lookout man. "Blackie's" trial led justice agents to the capture of all except Sullivan.

Dr. Lawrence Otell, Radiologist, Dead

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

8th Precinct's New Captain Is Appointed

Lieut. Lloyd Kelly Heads Civil Service List of Three Men.

A new captain has been picked for the Eighth Precinct, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, announced yesterday. His name will be submitted to the District Commisioners immediately for approval, he added.

Kelly Is Favorite.

Precedence, however, lies in the favor of Lieut. Lloyd Kelly, Eleventh Precinct, first on a list of three names sent Brown by the Civil Service Commission for the job. In past years, Brown said, "I have always tried to choose the first name on the list."

The choice, other police officials said, might go to Lieut. John Fowler, ballistics expert who, with Lieut. Walter H. Thomas, of the police school, completed the three leading eligibles.

Lieut. Fowler's part in solution of the murder of Allen B. Wilson, and the Brady bombing case in Seat Pleasant, Md., cannot be overlooked, Maj. Brown said.

Asked whether Lieut. Fowler had been selected, Brown would only say: "I think he is a very deserving man, unusually intelligent and of great value to the department."

Both Joined in 1919.

Both Kelly and Fowler entered the department at the same time in 1919. Kelly has had all his service in the precincts.

Maj. Brown also said he had selected the names of two men for promotion to lieutenants and three for sergeantcies. Two of the men, he said, high on the list for the lieutenancies, are now acting in that position.

They are N. O. Holmes, Second Precinct, and W. T. Storm, Traffic Division. They finished high on the list, he said, and have been acting lieutenants for some time. Their selection is assured, it is believed.

2 Musicians Seek 'Full Pay' for Duty With D. C. Troops

The price of music for the annual encampment of the District National Guard may go soaring as the result of two test suits filed in the Municipal Court yesterday by Meyer N. Goldman, leader of the National Guard Band, and Frederick N. Fletcher, a musician.

Both filed suits to collect additional pay they say was due them for active duty with the guard in encampment. Goldman said he had not been paid the $8 a day rate prescribed by law for band leaders while on active duty and Fletcher charged he had not been paid the daily wage of $4 a day which is prescribed by law for orchestral specialists. Both asked for back pay on the numerous appearances made by the band on civic and military parades when the band was ordered out.

Goldman and Fletcher, through Attorneys Dean Hill Stanley and George Lee Boswell, asked for judgements of $396 and $201.40, respectively. If their suits to force the District Commissioners to pay them additional wages are successful, the more than 35 other members of the band are expected to follow suit. In all, a total of about $5,000 is alleged to have been withheld from the members of the band through failure to pay them the amounts fixed by law.

Despite an evening of turbulent weather, flashing lightning and heavy thunder, the Roadside Theater last night attracted an enthusiastic, capacity audience to witness the first performance on any stage of "Windmills in Manhattan," a new, three-act satirical comedy, with moments of serious purpose, by Judith and David Bublick.

Based on a variation of the theme that already has been utilized on the screen in both George Arliss' "The Working Man" and the slightly revised version of the same tale in which Irvin S. Cobb recently appeared under the title of "Everybody's Old Man"— that of the youngster who thinks he can run the business better than the sagacious veteran who founded it—"Windmills in Manhattan" launches its major assault against unscrupulous advertisers of worthless and injurious products, at the same time attempting a counterplot of romance that somehow fails to develop either interest or conviction.

As a piece of crusading dramaturgy, this ferquently lively bit of satire packs considerable punch in several of its scenes, although its structure is loosely integrated and the two movements of the narrative, romantic nad reformative, are not sufficiently well dovetailed to form a perfect or a compelling pattern.

The introductory incidents of the first act are slow-moving and in large measure pointless until the final moment of the second scene, but acts two and three attain a more appropriate pace for a play designed for laughter, the second being by far the best of the three. There is a third-act recession from the high spirit of the second that causes the graph of the drama to assume the form of a mountain peak, or a candy-kitchen conical helping of ice cream—the high point is directly in the middle.

This, however, is not at all to say that "Windmills in Manhattan" is a work devoid of merit. Into the dialogue have been written many humorous passages that frequently strike home to an audience with resounding results. At other times the humor seems forced and dragged in by the heels, rather than as an inevitable outcome of character and circumstances. The characterization, in the main, is cleverly contrived and well sustained, although in one or two instances motivation is wholly lacking for the demeanor of some whose places in the action should be important.

Last night's performance was one of commendable smoothness and letter-perfect reading, insofar as one unfamiliar with the script was able to judge. There, at least, was no fumbling for lines or stumbling about in the action.

Wierum Scores Again.

Howard Wierum, who gave so fine an account of himself in the opening play of the season, "Under the Gaslight," gave evidence last evening that the earlier triumph was no fluke by repeating his fine work in a role of even more exacting requirements. As the young idealist who attempted to revolutionize the advertising game, he played with intelligence and vigor and, when needed, an excellent comedy touch. Ann Garrett, in the opposite role of the agency copy-writer, displayed a wide range of mood and Jane R. Duenner scored as the office "vamp." Virginia Rand, as the wife of the president of the advertising company, seemed never quite to get the "feel" of the role and left an impression as chill as the damp breeze that swept through the barn loft in which the premiere was presented. Maurice Jarvis, as the head of the firm, brought authority and power to every scene in which he participated and equally well-done, but less pretentious, portrayals were contributed by James Rawls, as the legal office boy; Wade Robinson and Ralph Fowler, especially the latter, as two "big accounts;" Robert Truitt Mitchell and John J. Wilson, as a couple of newspaper guys, and Lawrence Beckerman, as a young attorney, matching wits and legal lore with the Master Rawls.

"Windmills in Manhattan" will never tilt Broadway up on end, but it will provide a fortnight of fun at the Roadside. The audience response was so great last night that the authors, who were present, were forced to take a bow following the fall of the final curtain and half a dozen calls for the cast.

About the Showshops

YOU can't keep politics out of show business. That is, it appears that some of Washington's voteless citizenry can't. Take the case of the voting on the new name for Loew's Fox Theater, which began yesterday, for example.

BELL.

Who should be the first to gratify an irresistible and unquenchable yen to cast a vote but Commissioner George E. Allen, one of the "mayors" of the National Capital! The Commissioner earned the distinction of being the first voter to present himself at the Loew polls, and, running true to form, made a stump speech as he dropped his ballot in the box.

"While I think it an excellent idea to change the name of the Fox to something more expressive of the distinction of so outstanding a theater," said the Commissioner, "I don't think this is a particularly good year in which to make a change. In any event, my choice is 'The President'."

That Washingtonians in general are as interested in the change of name of the F street cathedral of the celluloids as the so-called "city fathers" is evidenced by the brisk voting that prevailed throughout the first day of the poll. Each of the ten names published in this space yesterday morning has its advocates and early indications are that the race for a final choice may be close. Ballots and ballot boxes are to be found in the lobbies of the Fox, Palace and Columbia theaters and voting will continue until next Sunday noon. The new name will be adopted by the theater as soon as tabulation of the poll can be completed. The ten names from among which a choice must be made were selected from a total of more than 5,000 submitted in the "primaries." The final total of votes, of course, will greatly exceed that number.

I have never looked upon Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett as a sinister figure in American public life, threatening the moral well-being of the younger generation.

It has not been unknown to me that Mrs. Jarrett, on occasion, has sipped a cocktail, high-ball, rickey or glass of wine—in fact, I have been present when she has done so—but somehow the knowledge of this acute moral turpitude has not weighed down upon me as a great national menace to the welfare of the young.

My first meeting with Mrs. Jarrett, then Miss Eleanor Holm, was aboard that perambulating madhouse, known as the Warner Brothers' "Forty-Second Street Special," that steamed into Washington on March 4, 1933, the morning of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's inauguration. I had boarded the train, in a moment of weakness, in Baltimore at 5 a. m., and endured its clattering pianos, bellowing loud-speakers, crackling broadcasting equipment and fantastic "Malibu Beach car" until approximately noon, when it crawled into its siding down by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, just off Fourteenth street, and afforded the first opportunity to escape.

Miss Holm, then being groomed, ostensibly, by the Warners for a screen career, was a member of the transcontinental party, which included, among others, Bette Davis, Laura La Plante, Leo Carillo, Tom Mix, Joe E. Brown, Lyle Talbot, Glenda Farrell and a large number of additional adventurers whose nervous structures were immune to the clamor of the noisiest, most blatant and most public traveling whirligig ever devised by the mind of man.

If anything ever could have driven a crowd of high-strung young people to drink, it was that "Forty-Second Street Special." Yet they all, including Miss Holm, seemed to survive with unruffled spirit and in perfect health.

The handsome, young backstroke swimming champion was a Washington visitor again, sometime later, when her husband, Art Jarrett, filled a week's engagement at Loew's Fox and both were feted in a moist and merry-making way by various admiring hosts, prominent among them the leading members of the Variety Club of Washington, whose parlors in the Willard were utilized at least once for purposes of chummy entertainment. Nothing was disclosed on any of these occasions to indicate that Mrs. Jarrett was an ominous member of society whose presence was apt to breed complete moral, physical and spiritual disintegration.

So the officials in charge of the American Olympic athletes, en route to Berlin, saw fit to single her out from among many transgressors of the strict rules of professional training for the supreme penalty and personal humiliation it is possible to visit upon a defenseless offender. Perhaps the kindest thing that can be said about the whole lopsided business is that it was a dirty trick.

The Olympic officials will have an exceedingly tough time trying to make the crime fit their punishment in the minds of an impartial American public. Mrs. Jarrett probably could have whipped the field in her event the morning after she was so disastrously disciplined by the S. S. Manhattan's sanctimonious martinets.

Gene Ford wants girls—lots of girls! For the benefit of Mrs. "Kay" Ford and the public at large, we hasten to add that they are for the chorus of his "Going Native" revue, scheduled for the week of August 14 at Loew's Fox, and must be 18 years of age, or over, and know how to dance. The sooner they report either to him or to Ned McGurn, dance director, at the Fox, the sooner Mr. Ford says he will be able to whip his annual stage frolic into shape—or the shapes into his stage frolic, as the case may be.

A long-awaited opportunity to view the Warner Brothers' film version of Marc Connelly's Pulitzer Prize winning play of "The Green Pastures" is being afforded the local drama desks this afternoon at 1:30 in the private projection room in the Earle Theater Building. More of this significant business in this space tomorrow—I am afraid.

Minister Resigns.

New Threat to Star Lists Is Seen by Coast

Hollywood, July 27.—A new threat to talent lists of major studios, already battling for services of a dwindling supply of box office names, is seen in the rise of Grand National Pictures, an ambitious organization just 4 months old.

Grand National, a producing and distributing company incorporated in Delaware last April, has just announced an $8,000,000, 50-picture program for the coming year. Inevitably it will require stars, and just as inevitably must join the talent war.

Subsequently it revealed the alliance of an impressive list of semi-independent producers, including Douglas MacLean and Boris Petroff, formerly of Paramount; B. F. Zeidman, once of Universal, and George Hirliman.

Old-Timers Resurrected.

One possible source of stars was revealed in an announcement of Hirliman's first picture. It will present Reginald Denny, a great name of a few years ago, in "We're In the Legion Now." A picture already finished to be released by G-N is "Yellow Cargo," starring Conrad Nagel, also a former top-flight star.

The possibility is strong that a rush to sign former ranking players regarded as "through" in recent years may follow.

Edward L. Alperson, former sales manager for Warner Brothers, and head of G-N, says his firm has arranged for distribution in 33 cities, with further deals pending. The company is reportedly backed by Eastern bankers.

Meanwhile, established Hollywood producers are apparently preparing for battle. Spiking a rumor that Warners would abandon an appeal of the court's decision in the Cagney case, Jack Warner said the matter is pending in appellate court and will be pressed.

Eddie Cantor was lunching with Darryl Zanuck the other day, and during the meal, messages would arrive from the set of the "Ladies in Love" flicker, which stars Constance Bennett, Loretta Young, Janet Gaynor and Simone Simon.

In Old Favorite Opening Today

In the belief that the familiar Gene Stratton Porter story possesses qualities of merit that will appeal to a vast theatergoing public, the film version of "The Harvester" is being brought to the screen at RKO-Keith's today, instead of Friday as originally announced. Prominent in the cast of this engaging picture, based on a fiction that has been consistently popular over the years, are Eddie Nugent and Ann Ruthe ford, whose likenesses are shown above as they appear in one of the romantic scenes of the play, slightly—very slightly—this side of the recently celebrated "horse and buggy days."

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

After working for 46 years and three months for Uncle Sam, E. M. Graney, chief of mails and files in the section of tariffs, the bureau of traffic of the Interstate Commerce Commission "is just going to take things easy."

He retires August 20. Although officially listed to leave the Government service September 1, he will go a little early, as he has a few days of accumulated leave coming to him. He will be 70 years old next month.

It is somehow fitting that he should have a job in the bureau of traffic for he comes from a family in Syracuse, N. Y., which has been associated for generations with the New York Central Railroad. In fact, Graney is the first member of his family for some years who has done anything but work for that railroad and is the only member of his immediate family who is not connected with the road. One brother retired recently from service with the railroad, another one and a sister are in the freight office in Auburn, N. Y., and his father for 66 years was an employe of the New York Central. His family's railroad record totals well over 100 years.

Graney began his government service in the city treasurer's office in Syracuse and came to Washington when the Fifty-first Congress was in session to take a job in the postoffice of the House of Representatives, where he stayed for two years.

Since then he has been with the Interstate Commerce Commission and has headed the mails and files section for 20 years.

Graney is looking forward to the leisure he will have but says he has no definite plans about putting in his time except that he will visit friends and family and "just enjoy myself."

The American Federation of Government Employes asks the delegates who are driving to the national convention in Detroit in September to notify them of the fact immediately. The information is needed, officials say, so that the committee arranging for accommodations may secure reduced rates for the visitors at the public garages. Word should be sent to H. C. Meyers, secretary of the committee, at the Book-Cadillac Hotel, Detroit.

Lieut. James H. Nicholson, assistant chief of comunications in the Bureau of Air Commerce in the Department of Commerce, returned to Washington yesterday, and glad of it, for he wants to get at his amateur radio broadcasting and receiving station in his home and hear what is going on in Spain.

Lieut. Nicholson has just completed a six-week trip through the West and Middle West, inspecting commercial air communications stations for the Government.

"I followed the Ethiopian situation over my own receiving station at my home in Arlington," he said, "and have been anxious to tune in on what is happening in Spain.

"There are a number of Government boys and several of the women employes who have their own licensed little amateur stations and we get together frequently to compare notes on what we have been able to get.

"One of our members—not a Government employe—is Ensign Robert A. Gallery, of the Naval Reserves, a professor of physics at Gonzaga High School. He is now on board the Quincy, which has been ordered to Spain to aid in the evacuation of Americans.

"Several other Government boys who own their own stations are off on the present naval reserve cruises, but I understand they had been following the broadcasts from Spain before they left last Saturday."

One of the older of the new radio programs of the Office of Education is the Safety Musketeers, dedicated to youngsters all over the country. It is now in its eleventh week and has a membership of around 600 boys and girls who have pledged themselves to cros streets carefully, to avoid shaky stepladders and all the other hazards around their homes in order to cut down the tremendous number of accidents juveniles.

A weekly news letter to the Musketeers gives them first-aid information about those accidents which happen in spite of all precautions.

The second of several elimination contests in the ranks of the Interdepartmental Water Polo and Swimming League will be held Friday night at the Maryland Club Gardens. The competing teams include the three winners from the last meet—Patent Office, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Resettlement—as well as those from Treasury, Library of Congress, Navy, AAA, Social Security, CCC and Emergency Conservation Work Bureau.

There will be two or three more such meets before the teams are picked for the final competition in September.

Local Revue Cast To Be Chosen Soon

After nearly two weeks of high-geared activity in whipping "Spring Is Here" into shape, Manager Gene Ford sought a hideaway over the week-end prior to facing the next two weeks, during which he will produce his fourth annual "Going Native" revue for Loew's Fox Theater.

Because of this recent activity, he has not selected the principals, but hopes to announce his "Going Native" cast either today or tomorrow.

At the recent auditions he was impressed with the talents of the following local young men and women and it is from this group that the cast of "Going Native" will be selected.

Anticipatory Bidding.

The primary function of bidding, of course, is to express values as accurately as possible. But it is too often supposed that when the primary object has been attained the player should relax (collapse would be more apt), and leave the rest to his partner.

There are other considerations to be observed in good bidding, considerations that at times become even more important than precise evaluating. These may be called, for want of a more definite term, strategic considerations. Certain bids must be made in defiance of the honor trick table simply because the bidder dare not lose the opportunity to show his partner a distribution that may suggest an excellent "sacrifice" contract, as in today's hand.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 spade	2 hearts	3 spades
4 clubs	4 spades	5 clubs	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

The bid that suggested the theme of this article was South's four clubs bid. He did not have it on actual values. His one diamond bid represented the entire hand to within a very small fraction, and a free bid at the stage denoted more strength than he actually had. But he dared not pass! It was 10 to 1 that West would go to game in spades over his partner's very strong raise. In that case on of two different kinds of catastrophes might result. First, North might "stretch" and bid five hearts, not knowing that South was so badly prepared for a heart contract. Second, if North was forced to pass over West's almost inevitable four spades the bidding would be at the five level when it got around to South again, and then it would be too costly to experiment with the hit-or-miss sacrifice bid of five clubs. Thus, in the most real sense South's overbid of four clubs was the conservative rather than the aggressive policy.

On this particular hand the four club bid had an extremely happy outcome. East and West were shrewd in realizing that they had shot their bolt with four spades (which could not have been defeated), and in doubling the five club contract. The one trick penalty that North-South suffered on the other hand, was a splendid save of rubber game.

Without South's four club bid it is quite conceivable that North, seeing the rubber slipping away, would have bid five hearts. In fact this bid could not be criticized. East, of course, would double. South would not dare rescue at the six level and five hearts would be crucified to the tune of 800 to 1,100 points, depending on the quality of defense and declarer's play.

Located at 2129 G street northwest, the hall recently was built by the university, and will be turned over to it formally Saturday.

X-Ray Reveals Bolton Gets Finger Break; Blow to Nats

Hurt to Throwing Hand to Keep Catcher Idle for Three Weeks.

Sabo, of Albany, Recalled by Harris

Whitehill Due to Face Indians Today; Two Games Tomorrow.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 27.—Poised for what they hoped was a climb back into the first division, the Nats today were deprived of the services of their number one catcher for three weeks with the disclosure that Cliff Bolton had suffered a broken finger on his throwing hand.

While the Washington team idled here today, Bolton underwent X-ray examination of the finger he hurt in St. Louis yesterday. Pictures revealed a clear fracture of the fourth digit on his right hand, which had been broken twice before in his catching career. Bolton entrained for Washington tonight. It was a foul tip off the bat of Sammy West of the Browns that injured Bolton. West attempted to duck an inside pitch when the ball caromed off his bat and jammed into Bolton's hand.

With second string Catcher Walter Millies, the only remaining receiver with the club which with a roster of 19 players is 4 under the limit of 23, Manager Bucky Harris today called in Alex Sabo to fortify his catching staff.

Sabo, who was the catching star of recent Fordham University teams and also starred in football, received a try out with the Nats in Orlando last spring. He was farmed to the Albany Club, which sent him to the Trenton team of the N. Y.-Pa. team. He will join the Nats tomorrow.

With second place in the league standings only a short haul despite their current submersion in the second division, the Nats tomorrow will enter upon a four-game series with the Indians in a mood to get tough about it.

Barring a succession of miracles that would dump the Yankees out of their 9½ game lead, the pennant is out of reach of the Nats and every other club in the league, but that second place money is still very much worth the effort.

Each player of the club that finally gains second place will be approximately $900 in pocket as his share of the world series gate and that is approximately $400 more than third place is worth and $200 more than fourth place will bring.

Reason for Battle.

Thus there is no lack of incentive in the fight for second place which now finds only three and a half games separating the runner-up Indians and the sixth place Nats with the Red Sox, the Tigers and White Sox also in the thick of the scramble.

Washington was to open a series with the Indians today, but Cleveland officials postponed the game on a suspicion of rain after contemplating the greater profits of a double-header on Wednesday.

Earl Whitehill, victim of a 3-2 extra-inning defeat by the White Sox in his last outing, will go to the mound tomorrow against the left-handed Lloyd Brown, whose

Anzac Doubles Team Upsets English

Crawford, Quist Score, Australia Still in Cup Running.

By the Associated Press.

Wimbledon, England, July 27.—The Australian Davis Cup team remained in running for the international tennis trophy it last won in 1919 when Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist pulled out a bitterly fought doubles victory over the English combination of Pat Huges and Charles Tuckey today. The scores were 6—4, 2—6, 7—5, 10—8.

Although the English were defeated, they remained the strong favorite to retain the trophy they have held for three years as they need only one victory in the two remaining singles matches tomorrow. Fred Perry, England's ace and world's No. 1 ranking player, will meet Crawford in one of the matches. H. W. (Bunny) Austin matches strokes with Quist in the other.

Perry and Crawford have met 13 times, with the Englishman holding nine victories. In Austin, Quist will meet a player at the top of his game as evidenced by the England stylist's conquest of Crawford Saturday.

Today's play was spotty throughout, but brightened in the final set when Crawford's drives and Quist's well-aimed cross-court volleys overcame the English pair.

The Anzacs easily outplayed Hughes and Tuckey in the first set, breaking up their rivals' usually smooth teamwork with a beautiful display of smashes and lobs. The second set was just as one-sided the other way, however, as Tuckey proved virtually impassable at the net.

The third set was a tame affair, with games going on service until the Australians broke through Hughes in the eleventh to take the lead.

The final set was a ding-dong battle, however. The Britons raced into a 4-1 lead only to have the Aussies take four of the next five games to pull up to 5-all, as Tuckey missed a series of backhand shots and wavered on his serve.

They battled through the next six games evenly as Crawford scored repeatedly with his powerful service. The Australians finally broke through Tuckey's service in the seventeenth and went on to win behind Quist's delivery.

Scott-Feldman Victor Fights Locatelli Here

Another outstanding boxing attraction headed for Washington as Cleto Locatelli agreed to box the winner of the Howard Scott-Lew Feldman engagement at Griffith Stadium next Monday night.

Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn settled the details in a flying visit to New York yesterday. The rotund arranger of punch programs has been seeking the services of Locatelli for some months, but was unable to get together with those who pull the strings on Cleto in the matter of dates.

U. S. Bowlers Annex International Crown

Berlin, July 27 (AP)—The Heils Products team of Milwaukee won the international five-man bowling championship tonight with a score of 4,054. Second and fourth places also went to American teams.

As a result of this triumph, the German Government Cup for the best places in the international single, two-men and five-men championships will go to the American Bowling Association.

Newell Leaves Hospital.

Manager Bob Newell, leftfielder of his Mount Rainier Gray ball club, recently left Providence Hospital, where he has been confined for more than two weeks after a 350-pound casting had fallen on his foot. It was necessary to amputate his center toe. Newell will be out of the line-up for the rest of the season.

Landis Likely to Ban All Bottles at Ball Parks

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 27.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, said today he had received no response to his record $5,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the grandstand assailant of William Summers, American League umpire, felled by a bottle during the riotous wind-up of the White Sox-Yankee double-header yesterday.

Summers, painfully injured in the groin, lay in a hotel room unable to accompany his fellow umpires on their trip to St. Louis, where he was to have officiated in the series between the Browns and the Boston Red Sox, starting today.

The guilty assailant, one of scores of enraged fans who threw missiles at all three umpires during the eighth inning of the final game, which, like the first, was won by the Yankees, was sought with an unprecedented reward in an effort to make an example out of him.

As a result of the demonstration, the commissioner indicated he may rule that in the future beverages at all ball parks must be served only in paper containers.

"Yesterday's display of hoodlumism was one of the worst I have ever seen," Landis said. "There was no reason for it. It was strictly rowdyism. I deeply regret that it had to happen in the American League when the Chicago White Sox were enjoying their biggest day here in several years.

"I announced that I would give $5,000 to any one who could supply information that might aid us in finding the man who threw the bottle that injured Umpire Summers. That stands.

"I will not tolerate hoodlums or rowdys in baseball as long as I have anything to do with it. This is the first time since I took office that I have had to take this stand."

Braddock and Schmeling Clash in Bout for Title On Late September Date

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 27.—The on-again, off-again world's heavyweight championship bout between James J. Braddock and Max Schmeling was definitely on tonight.

It will be held in September in Madison Square Garden's big Long Island Bowl, with the Garden and the Twentieth Century Sporting Club as joint promoters.

After weeks of wrangling, the two big New York clubs got together today. Everything was satisfactorily settled except the date. It will be between September 24 and September 30.

The Garden and Twentieth Century Club will divide the profits fifty-fifty after all expenses have been paid. Mrs. W. R. Hearst's milk fund, which has been closely associated with the past shows of the Twentieth Century Club, will not be a participant.

Garden in Charge.

Although officially listed as a joint promotion, the fight actually will be a Garden show. Besides attending to the stadium set-up, the Garden will sell the tickets, handle the publicity and be in entire charge of all promotion.

Except to share in the profits, if any, Mike Jacobs, head of the Twentieth Century Club, will not be actively identified with the promotion save in an advisory capacity.

Final papers were signed this afternoon in the office of Stanton Griffis, chairman of the garden directors. Griffis and James J. Johnson, Garden promoter, flanked by counsel, represented the Eighth Avenue Arena. Jacobs and an attorney signed for the Twentieth Century.

Neither club will have an option on the champion after the September fight. The victor will emerge from the bout free to do business when and where he likes.

Both Satisfied.

Jacobs, who controlled Schmeling, stands to make some money without having to experience the thousand and one headaches that go with the promotion of big fight.

The Garden, which had Braddock under contract for his first title defense, not only figures to make money, but will have the satisfaction of actually promoting the bout.

Most of the details were agreed to at conferences Friday and Saturday between Griffis and Jacobs. But just when the interested parties were about to affix their signatures, Joe Gould, manager of Braddock, brought things to a standstill by refusing to let Braddock defend his title in the bowl.

"The place is jinxed," he told

Rain Hampers Olympic Workouts

Downpour Also Setback to Work on Stadium; Politicians Busy.

Berlin, July 27.—Torrents of rain descended on the gay and festive Olympic scene this afternoon, washing out training activities in the Olympic village, handing another set-back to the German staff furiously at work re-finishing the main stadium track, and giving the diplomats a chance to substitute caucusses for outdoor speech-making.

Disquieting reports about a number of outstanding track and field stars, including Glenn Cunningham and Helen Stephens, and the famed "Jarrett case," which ended today with the disbarred backstroke swimming queen joining journalistic ranks accompanied by a ghost-writer weren't the only matters agitating American circles.

Cunningham came down with a bad case of sore legs, while Miss Stephens is receiving daily massage treatment for the tendon she pulled several months ago.

The international Olympic committee on Wednesday will open the solemn sessions which not only will decide upon a site for the 1940 Olympics but also will elect two new American members.

Officially the silence was thick enough to be cut with a knife but through the fog could be discerned a characteristically bitter political struggle involving some of the outstanding personalities of American Amateur Athletic Union ranks.

There was little doubt that Avery Brundage, keyman in the fight which carried the United States into the Olympics despite a boycott movement, will be honored by election to

Horse Show Also Is on Program

By Walter Haight.

One of the shortest, yet one of the oldest racing meetings in this country will open tomorrow at the trim plant of the Charles Town Jockey Club. For four days, the sport of kings will be conducted by the Charles Town Horse Show Association over the ground where ancestors of some of the present members competed in the saddle for bags of gold hung on posts at the finish line.

The history of horse-showing and horse racing at Charles Town dates back to the 1700's. The outskirts of that town could provide the only ground smooth enough for racing within the vicinity of Harper's Ferry which crossed the Potomac River at the point where West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland meet. The sportsmen of the horse country of Virginia, across the Blue Ridge Mountains, those from Maryland's Middletown Valley section and those from northeastern part of West Virginia gathered yearly to strut their beautiful and powerful horses and race their speedy and courageous ones.

Men Argued.

In the early days, the racing was an accessory after the fact. The horse show held the principal stage and hour. However, after the women folk had retired to the front porches to lay their parasols across their knees, the men stayed to argue and then attempt to prove the merits of this horse and that with the double objective of the sport and the coin, even as you and I.

About the time that Abraham Lincoln split his first fence railing, horse racing and horse showing were reaching about a par at Charles Town. An ancient program reveals three scheduled races at 1, 2 and 3 miles.

Of course, tomorrow's card and those to follow until Saturday, will find the horse show reserved for the morning hours, with the racing occupying the afternoon. In place of the four trees that the colonial riders used to circle, Charles Town will have its modern racing course.

Good Horses.

The horses will be those which competed at the successful 37-day session of the Jockey Club which closed July 11. The jockeys will be those who rode at that meeting and the officials, for the most part, will be those who have placed racing on a high plane at the West Virginia course.

Thirty races are scheduled for the four days. As was the case at the regular meeting, eight races will be conducted tomorrow and Saturday, with seven races on Thursday and Friday. The same distribution of purses will be made with $300 events booked through the session with the exception of the features tomorrow and Saturday, which will be $500 events. The mutuel "take" will be the same.

A keen battle is anicipated for the jockey honors. Sammy Palumbo, who won out at the long meeting, will engage his old rival, Lou Pikor. Eddie Smith, the Washington boy; Les Garrett, J. Hernandez, Johnny Shanks, Jimmy Feltner, Al Tryon and others will be seen in the saddle.

Washington motorists will have the two usual routes open to them. Through Virginia the track is reached via Purcellville, while the Maryland road leads through Brunswick. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will conduct its special train for the four days. Post time for the first race will be 2:30 p. m.

MISS GINBAR was steadied along back of the pace, wore down HEARTEASE for the command inside the last furlong, but had to be vigorously ridden to stave off the closing challenge of MIDNIGHT FLYER. The latter was not hurried during the early stages, swung to the outside in the stretch and, closing with a rush, was overtaking the winner at the end. HEARTEASE went to the front in the opening strides, drew away into a good lead and weakened slightly in the last three-sixteenths. HATS OFF closed a good gap. ROCKRIM, prominent from the first 3 furlongs, was unable to keep pace thereafter. TUGBOAT, dropped back at the start, moved up stoutly on the inside nearing the far turn, dropping back in the last quarter mile. SANDY BOY lacked speed to enter into serious contention.

CHARMED EYES displayed speed from the start, disposed of SANDBROOM, drew out into a good lead and, steadied along in front, was never threatened, winning with speed to spare. DIXIE PRINCESS, restrained for the first 3 furlongs, moved up steadily and closed going gamely in the stretch run. SOPHIST, outpaced early, closed closed with a rush through the stretch. TIME TO GO, slow to begin and outrun until leaving the backstretch, moved up steadily thereafter, took command in the stretch and drew clear at the end. DEEP RUN, reserved early, closed with good energy in the last quarter mile. DILWIN, in closest chase of the early pace, faltered in the closing furlong. BUSBY moved up on the inside at the stretch turn, showed in front briefly and weakened in the closing drive. VIGILANCE was never a threat, racing well back all the way. PHRIXUS drew away into a good lead, weakening badly in the last quarter mile.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:15. Off at 6:19. Winner, P. B. Codds' b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARCLEAVE, $6.40, $4.40, $3.00; PEACE MOVE, $12.00, $5.60; ALANAD, $4.40.

MARCLEAVE was rated along back of the pace, moved up on the outside in the stretch, wore down ALANAD and barely held on long enough to withstand the closing bid of PEACE MOVE. The latter worked her way up steadily and closed with a rush through the stretch. ALANAD took command in the run to the first turn, was rated along in front and fought it out gamely to the end. BULLFINCH was well placed all the way though unable to keep pace with the leaders in the closing drive. PETARD never could reach the leaders. GOLD CLIP faltered after displaying early speed. REDLEY reared and unseated his rider twice while at the post. He failed to keep pace and appeared to sulk throughout.

Semi-Pros Hit P. Dean; He May Quit

By the Associated Press.

Randolph, Mass., July 27.—Paul Dean threatened tonight to quit baseball for the rest of the season after his poor showing in an exhibition game here.

The younger of the pitching Deans, making his first start since July 4, when the Reds hammered him from the mound, yielded six hits in four innings against a semi-pro shoe company team and the St. Louis Cardinals trailed 4-0. With Flint Rhem and Pepper Martin finishing on the mound, the Cards won 8-5.

"I'm no good around here," Paul said, almost in tears. "I tried my best, but there's something wrong with the shoulder. I can't get anything on the ball. The shoulder hurts worse than ever now.

Dean said he felt the first signs of pain in his right shoulder shortly after the season opened.

Barney Welsh to Tackle Mako Today in Seabright Tourney

Has Difficult Assignment In Rival

By the Associated Press.

Seabright, N. J., July 27.—Marked by the withdrawal of Donald Budge, of Oakland, Calif., Davis Cup star, and the defeat of one seeded entry, the forty-ninth annual Seabright tennis tournament got under way with 15 of America's leading players entering the second round.

Barney Welsh, of Washington, will face the No. 6 seeded player, Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, tomorrow in the opening match for both players. The match was postponed from today.

Mako, eleventh ranking player of the country, recently arrived from England with the Cup team. He and Welsh, National Public Parks tournament champion, have never met on the courts. Welsh, whose home is in Rockville, Md., won the New England, Middle States and District of Columbia tournaments this year as well as others, but was eliminated by Frankie Parker in the Spring Lake invitation tournament and by Bobby Riggs in the National clay courts tournament.

Both Won.

Both Riggs and Parker went on to win the tournament in each case. Welsh is unseeded.

Washington's sole entrant in the women's tournament, Edith Clarke, was eliminated by Katherine Winthrop, of Boston, 6—1, 6—2, in the singles. Paired with Helen, Germaine, of New York, Miss Clarke fell before Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, in the doubles, 6—1, 6—3.

Norcross Tilney, of Orange, N. J., avenged a straight set defeat at Longwood, Mass., last week by upsetting Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., seeded fifth, 10—8, 6—1.

The fiery Southerner attributed his defeat to a "loss of confidence" and the slippery footing of Seabright's turf. Tilney, however, was playing smartly to stalemate Hines' charges to the net with angled drives to his feet.

Wins Easily.

Sidney Wood, of New York, playing in his first major singles tourney since last year, wasted no time in blasting Walter Senior, of San Francisco, from the court, 6—3, 6—4. Arriving late, Wood flashed his old Davis Cup form to win in 50 minutes. Senior was unable to handle the blond haired internationalist's cannon ball service.

Budge, who was originally seeded first, withdrew on the advice of the United States Lawn Tennis Association on his arrival from Europe on the Queen Mary this morning. Hampered by lack of practice during the sea voyage, Budge entered the doubles only with Mako, his cup doubles partner.

All the favorites in the women's draw advanced easily except Unice Dean, of San Antonio, Tex., who dropped a 6—2, 6—1 decision to Dorothy Workman, of Los Angeles.

one of the two places vacated by the death of Brig. Gen. Charles Sherrill and the retirement of Ernest Lee Jahncke, New Orleans sportsman, who came out in opposition to American participation last winter. Jahncke presumably has resigned, but his "case" is among the first items on the agenda for the opening session at 4 p. m. Wednesday.

Strongly Supported.

The candidacies of Gustavus T. Kirby, treasurer of the American Olympic committee, and Murray Hulbert, of New York, both are understood to be strongly supported in an undercover contest to fill the remaining American vacancy.

Kirby had the advantage of being on the ground, but he has been subjected to some criticism since he was drawn into the case that resulted in Eleanor Holm Jarrett's losing her place on the team for violating training rules. Kirby was the "judge" in a mock marriage and mock trial on board the Manhattan, which Mrs. Holm described as "shocking."

Bobby Jones Shoots 72 Over St. Andrews

By the Associated Press.

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 27.—Back at old St. Andrews, one of his big happy hunting grounds of golf, Bobby Jones shot and marched like the emperor of old again today, scoring a 32-40—72 before a thrill-packed gallery of 3,000 galleryites.

Before the famous Atlantan began his friendly threeson with Willie Auchterlonie, royal and ancient professional, and Gordon Lockhart, Gleneagles professional, he was besieged by so many autograph seekers the match was held up for 15 minutes.

As he strode back to the clubhouse, the awed gallery of 3,000 milled around him and demanded autographs. Bobby wrote his name until his fingers tired and then he retreated to the clubhouse.

Golf Just Fun.

"Golf for me is just fun nowadays," said Bobby as he scribbled his name on score cards. "I'll never enter competitive golf again. St. Andrews still is my favorite golf course."

As the news spread that Bobby was back for another round at St. Andrews, scene of his victory in the 1927 British Open and the 1930 British Amateur, spectators who once idolized him and marveled at his shot artistry hurried from beaches, golf shops, inns, pubs and clubs to get a glimpse at him. And Bobby gave them a good show.

Playing with his old touch, he scored a par-breaking 32 out, bagging birdies with deadly iron shots and precise putts on the second, fifth, sixth and eighth holes as the gallery strained and pulled so hard that the greenskeepers rushed back to get more ropes to hold them back.

Finishes Well.

Five 5's over the long homeward stretch stopped his assault on par, but he finished like the "Grand Slam Bobby" of old, playing the deadly road hole—the seventeenth—with flawless majesty. He sailed his drive over the station master's garden, arched his iron to the edge of the green, putted over the treacherous surface and got a pretty four. On the final hole, he dropped an eight-footer for a birdie three. His card:

Out ..... 4 3 4 4 3 4 4 2 4—32
In ..... 4 4 5 5 5 5 4 3—40—72

Someone asked Bobby to make a speech as he trooped happily ack to the clubhouse.

"I won't make a speech," he replied, "but I'll sign some more autographs."

Dodgers Top Bucs, 6-3, for 3d in Row

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, July 27.—Behind the effective hurling of Fred Frankhouse, the Brooklyn Dodgers equaled their season's longest winning streak today when they defeated Pittsburgh, 6 to 3, for their third successive victory over the Pirates.

Frankhouse had only one bad inning, the third, when the Pirates bunched five hits to score all their runs. The veteran right-hander weathered the storm, however, and went on to stop the Bucs with two hits over the remainder of the route.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, July 27.—Old Jim Bottomley batted out a pair of doubles and a single in four times up today and furnished a punch that gave the cellar-riding Browns their second win in two days, a 7-5 decision over Boston.

Werber hit a homer for Boston and Solters contributed one for the Browns as the two teams opened a four-game series.

Russ Van Atta relieved Andrews on the hill for the Browns after the fifth and held the gold-plated Sox to three hits thereafter. Wilson was charged with the defeat.

The Nats meet up with the Indians at a time when the Cleveland club is red hot. Six of the Indians' regulars are hitting more than .300, and five of that group are far above that figure.

With Outfielders Weatherly, Campbell and Averill socking at respective clips of .403, .375 and .373, an inkling may be gleaned as to the reason for the Tribe's recent success. First Baseman Trosky is batting .329 and Third Baseman Hale .322.

A's Win, 15 to 8; Kennedy Is Pounded

Finney Is Leader in 25-Hit Attack; Chisox Absorb 4th Defeat in Row.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 27.—Paced by Hal Finney, the Philadelphia Athletics pounded out 25 hits, snapped Vernon Kennedy's winning streak at nine pitching victories, and defeated the Chicago White Sox 15 to 8 today. It was the fourth straight setback for the Sox, who previously had won 17 out of 21 games.

Finney connected with a triple and four singles and scored four times himself in a slugging match that saw every member of the Athletics get at least one hit and the Sox pound out 15. Zeke Bonura was the big gun in Chicago's offensive with a double and three singles.

Kennedy yielded 14 hits and eight runs before giving way to Clint Brown in the sixth. The Sox tied the score in the eighth with four runs on doubles by Appling, Haas, Radcliff and Rosenthal, but the A's came back and scored seven times in the ninth at the expense of Red Evans and Sugar Cain.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 27.

On the evening late in September when Champion Jimmy Braddock and Challenger Max Schmeling hunch through the ropes and square away for their title engagement, the Nation's prize-fight fans for the second time in heavyweight history will be presented with the novel situation of a champion who is the underdog in the betting.

POVICH.

Unless all signs fail, and unless Schmeling's knockout of Joe Louis can be laughed off, the resurgent Black Uhlan will be the people's betting choice when he and Braddock get their instructions to come out of their corners fighting.

The man who could knock out the former menace, Louis, was a sure shot to enter the ring a favorite against Braddock. Past performances, which dictate the odds in the prize ring as well as in every other phase of sports, are all in favor of Schmeling. Braddock can point with pride to only one big-time boxing engagement—his defeat of Max Baer, then the reigning champion.

Yet Braddock could only outpoint Baer in 15 rounds of dull fighting. But Schmeling knocked out the man who knocked out Baer in three rounds. There is, of course, that incident back in 1933 when the same Schmeling was knocked out by Baer in nine rounds, but the ringsiders at that battle will never understand how it happened.

Schmeling was winning that particular fight from here to Addis Ababa when he was knocked cold by a sucker punch that you or I could have ducked without batting an eyelash. It was a round-house right that Baer brought up from the floor and landed on Schmeling's chin while the German mysteriously stood transfixed. No man could take that punch and stand up, and Schmeling hit the floor for keeps.

Paradoxically, Schmeling himself was the only other heavyweight champion to enter the ring on the long end of the betting odds. That was the occasion of his second fight with Jack Sharkey after he inherited the title in their first engagement by claiming a foul from a sitting-down position and winning his claim.

But entering the ring as an underdog will be no new experience to Braddock, who, it is remembered, was a 10-to-1 shot against Baer last September.

And only a year before that, on the evening when he was fighting a preliminary to the Baer-Carnera bout and was unceremoniously dumped on the floor by Corn Griffin, you could name your own odds on Braddock winning the championship of the world within a year, and you couldn't find a taker outside of an asylum.

In the hullabaloo over Braddock's amazing victory over the boastful Baer, the fact that Braddock beat a very disappointing fighter in a very dull battle was generally overlooked. But those are the facts. Braddock won decisively enough, but he didn't beat much.

Baer that evening was a disgrace to the heavyweight championship. He didn't fight and apparently he didn't want to fight. Even with his title, valued at a million dollars, slipping away from him in the waning rounds of that slow battle, he didn't uncork one rally, yet Braddock's punching couldn't hurt him.

Braddock himself underwent a strange metamorphosis as a fighter before he started his title climb. As a promising young light-heavyweight from New Jersey, he was regarded as a superb puncher who couldn't box much, and the good boxers beat him. Yet when he went off the relief rolls to fight his way up to title contention, he blossomed as a clever boxer, and it was his boxing, not his punching, that lifted him into the title.

In Braddock, Schmeling does not figure to find the same sucker for a right hand punch that Joe Louis proved to be. The champion has been around longer; he keeps that chin nicely tucked behind his left shoulder, and he has a jab that may keep Schmeling off balance. But the prebattle dope still favors the German.

Rowe in Form, Tigers Rout Yanks, 9-1

Pitcher Also Hits Homer; Detroit's 6 Runs in 7th Decisive.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 27.—With Schoolboy Rowe hurling five-hit ball for his eleventh victory of the season, the Detroit Tigers today defeated the New York Yankees, 9 to 1, in the opening of the four-game series. The defeat reduced the Yanks' lead over the idle second place Cleveland Indians to nine games.

Rowe had a shutout in his grasp until the eighth inning, when Frankie Crosetti hit over the left-field fence for his eleventh home run of the season. The world champions' ace hurler previously had hit a homer himself, however, also scoring Ray Hayworth for the first two runs of the game in the third inning.

After Rowe had hit his homer, the Tigers added another tally and then were held in check by Lefty Gomez, who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Walter Brown followed the southpaw on the mound but was unable to survive the frame as the Tigers went on a rampage and scored six runs.

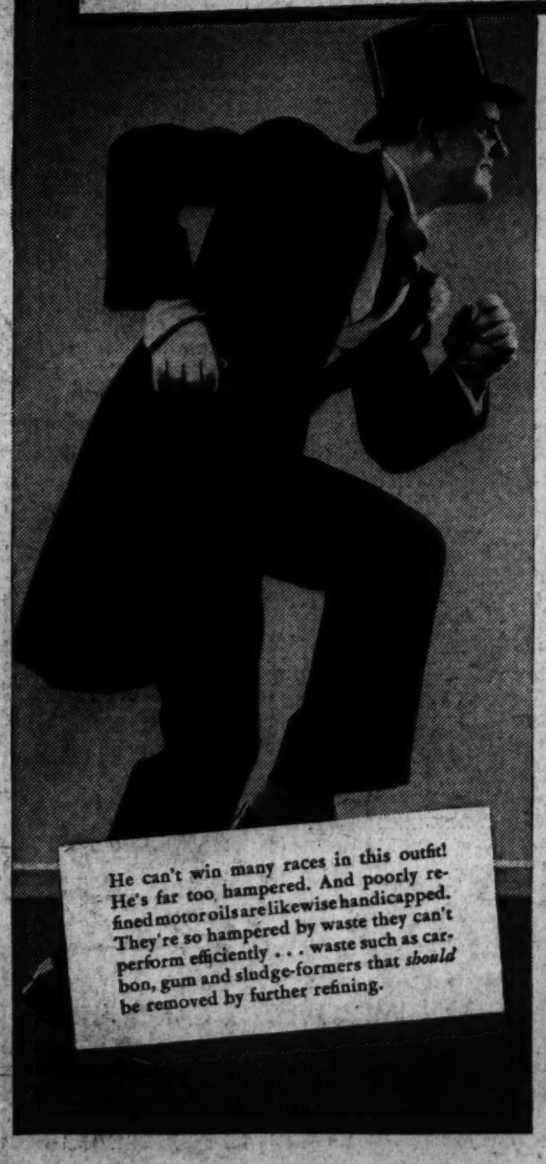
GET GULFLUBE—It's "Stripped for action"!



He can't win many races in this outfit! He's far too hampered. And poorly refined motor oils are likewise handicapped. They're so hampered by waste they can't perform efficiently . . . waste such as carbon, gum and sludge-formers that should be removed by further refining.

Strip off some of the sprinter's clothes and he has a better chance—but not the best. Likewise, most 25c motor oils are rid of some excess waste material—but still not enough to give the best performance. Reason: until Gulf perfected its amazing Multi-sol process, a thoroughly refined 25c oil was not available.

Here's the sprinter stripped for action—ready for a record run. And GULFLUBE MOTOR OIL—"stripped for action" by Multi-sol refining—is ready to give you the finest performance of any 25c oil! Actually a premium-quality oil—"all of it goes to work, none of it goes to waste." Gulflube gives better protection, cleaner operation, lower oil consumption. Con. Edison Co. Board Doubles Dividend Rate

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 27.—Consolidated Edison Co. directors today voted its common shareholders at dividend of $5,738,000 by ordering a disbursement of 50 cents a share, or double the amount paid in previous quarters. The company, formerly known as Consolidated Gas Co. of New York, is the chief supplier in the New York metropolitan area of electric and gas services.

Today's dividend, though not designated as a regular quarterly payment, raises the disbursement to the same level in effect prior to the first quarter, 1935, when it was cut to 25 cents.

The increase attracted attention because it marked one of the first moves in this direction by a leading public utility company. In the last several weeks the number of dividend increases has established something of a record, according to financial authorities, but a large majority have been contributed by industrial companies.

For the 12 months ended March 31 Consolidated Edison earned a balance of $1.91 a share of common stock, against 2.04 a share in the preceding 12 months.

In financial quarters an increase in the common dividend had been looked for on the basis of reports of improved earnings in the second quarter. The dividend is payable September 15 to stock of record August 7.

Parker Pen Dividend Raised From $1 to $160

Chicago, July 27.—Directors of the Parker Pen Co. have increased the annual dividend rate on the common stock from $1.00 to $1.60 per share. The next quarterly dividend of 40 per cent is payable September 1 to stock of record as of August 15.

Though the company gives out only an annual statement of earnings, it was announced that sales and profits for the first six months of 1936 were substantially in excess of those of the same period last year.

Retail Advertising 8.6% Over Year ago

Chicago, July 27 (AP).—Advertising Ave reported today figures for the week ended July 18 showed the volume of newspaper advertising placed by merchants of 66 major cities exceeded the corresponding period of 1935 for the twenty-first consecutive week.

The volume was 13,555,890 lines, an 8.6 per cent increase over the 12,484,699 lines for the corresponding week last year. For the year to date, the total of 477,701,231 lines was 5.2 per cent ahead of the 454,042,046 lines during the same period of 1935.

Du Pont Profit Nearly Doubles In Half Year

Net Is $3.27 Per Common Share Against $1.74 In 1935 Period

Wilmington, Del., July 27.—The semiannual report of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., issued today, shows that for the six-month period ended June 30, earnings applicable to the common stock were $36,107,371, or $3.27 a share on 11,052,395 average shares outstanding. This figure, which includes dividend from the company's General Motors investment equivalent to about $1.56 on each share of du Pont common stock, compares with $19,220,009 or $1.74 a share for the first six months of 1935 on 11,051,662 average shares outstanding. The 1935 figures included dividends from the General Motors investment amounting to about 45 cents a share on du Pont common stock. For the second quarter of 1936, earnings applicable to the common stock were $22,716,072 or $2.06 a share.

Net income from operations for the first six months of 1936, after provision for depreciation and obsolescence of plants and equipment, was $24,632,738, and in 1935 it was $18,782,371. Income from investments for the same period of 1936 was $18,587,608. For the same period of 1935, income from investments was $6,349,675.

After making provision for Federal taxes and interest on bonds of subsidiary company, net income for the first six months of 1936 was $38,691,971, as compared with $22,450,485 for the first six months of 1935. Dividends paid on the debenture stock for the first six months of 1936 amounted to $3,278,793.

The company's investment in 10,000,000 shares of General Motors Corporation common stock was carried in the balance sheet at $176,000,000, equal to $17.60 a share, which closely corresponded to its net asset value as shown by the balance sheet of General Motors Corporation at December 31, 1935. The company's surplus at June 30 was $218,087,791.

National Dairy Products Corp.

New York, July 27 (AP).—Profits of National Dairy Products Corporation for the six months ended June 30 rose to $5,928,096 or 89 cents a common share from $3,464,898 or 49 cents a share in the like period last year. There was no deduction for undistributed profits surtax. Through subsidiaries the company produces and distributes dairy products over a large part of the country.

Steel Operations Rise To 71.5 Per Cent

New York, July 27 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week advanced .6 of a point to 71.5 per cent of capacity, compared with 70.9 last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

The indicated operating rate is the second highest level for the current year, and a six-year record. It was exceeded only by the 74 per cent schedule reported for the week of June 29. A year ago the operating rate was 44 per cent of capacity.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Push Higher in More Action Having Led by Motors, Rails and Utilities.

New York, July 27.—Bonds were quiet and steady and stocks moved forward with a good deal of power and increased trading volume. Best prices for most stocks were reached in the last hour. Turnover was around 2,000,000 shares. Prices reached new high levels. Industrial share prices were quoted at the best since 1930. Commodity markets also improved. September wheat rose 1⅜ cents to 104⅞ cents a bushel.

Speculative markets probably drew more encouragement from the week-end earnings statements and dividend action than from other less direct evidence of business improvement. It is plain that investors in many industries will receive higher cash payments before the year is out. If payment of nearly all the earnings is going to mean impoverishment for corporations later, that is not a cause for present worry in the markets.

Trade Expansion.

The usual statistics relating to the steel industry, retail trade and commerce generally were favorable for higher markets. The steel industry's operating rate this week, according to the estimate of the American Iron and Steel Institute, will rise to 71.2 per cent, compared with 70.9 per cent last week and 44 per cent a year ago. That means profitable business for all the steel companies and reflects improvement in all the steel-consuming trades, notably the automotive, farm implement, railroad transportation and, more recently, building construction.

Retail trade last week, the Department of Commerce estimates, was much higher than for the same period of last year, and seasonal recession was confined to "some limited areas." The tone in the wholesale trades was described as buoyant and the drought was said to have had little effect as yet. Making allowance for the lack of first-hand information, which probably is true of many of the department's reports, the survey coincides with those from private sources and it was a factor at least in the hardening merchandising shares.

More Spending.

Increase in public purchasing power, outside the contributions on the soldiers' bonus, and the longer standing farm doles and miscellaneous gifts of money in one form and another out of the public treasury, probably has not risen greatly in recent months. Employment has increased, but not greatly, and the wage level has not changed much, while such expansion in pay rolls as has taken place has been partially offset by rising living costs.

Business in consumption goods seems to be improving more from the greater employment of individual funds already in hand than from higher incomes. The rising cloud of taxation and the ultimate fear of dollar depreciation may be having some psychological effect. More important, perhaps, is the tendency to relax and spend money as the business outlook improves. There is no question but that it has improved. So far as the security markets are concerned, some will say another factor is now at work—the hope of defeat for the New Dealers this autumn.

New High Prices.

Impetus given the motor industry late last week by Chrysler, high expectations from General Motors at the quarterly board meeting this afternoon, and the strong position of the steel trade in the poor season helped stocks quickly to overcome their opening irregularity. Steel, Chrysler and General Motors soon reached new high prices and they were followed by other stocks in the high and middle grounds.

Later attention was directed to the public utility group, when the news of the Consolidated Gas increased dividend, announced before the market's opening, spread. At the middle of the day and through early afternoon the current veered toward the railroad stocks and their market was the most active and the strongest it has been in some time. Throughout the trading the merchandising shares were hardy runners.

New high prices were reached for the mail-order stocks. Farm implements also were buoyant. Trading was fairly lively among the airplane issues. Few stocks made spectacular gains, for a steady stream of profit-taking ran through them. Business news affecting the markets and the action of the leading issues has seemed too one-sided to please a section of the speculators, who feel more comfortable when there is less cause for universal bullishness or bearishness.

Odd Lots.

The higher Chrysler dividend acts as strong medicine, and not much disappointment was felt over the failure of directors to split the stock. In usually well informed quarters no encouragement had been given to split-up hopes at this time. The price usually mentioned as a herald of a stock split is $150 a share . . . Not all the play was in the high-priced issues such as Chrysler, Western Union, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Harvester, Telephone, Spiegel and the medium graded General Electric, Nickel, Montgomery Ward, New York Central and Consolidated Edison. Stocks in a lower rung were particularly active. Leaders were American Radiator, Sperry, Republic Steel, Motor Wheel and Boeing . . . Some surprise was shown at the early hour at which the Consolidated Edison dividend was announced—9:25 a. m. That is an early hour to find many above the grade of clerks in Wall Street, and it is a bit early for directors to get together even in uptown offices. However, Consolidated Edison trustees met this morning at 9:15, so that everybody had the news before the opening of the market.

Dividends.

Probably the most force on markets was exerted by the higher Chrysler dividend of last Friday and the increase this morning in the Consolidated Edison dividend. Both increased dividends were made possible by the gratifying rise in earnings, but especially in the case of Consolidated Edison the increase in payments probably would have been less had it not been for the new tax on undistributed earnings. That tax will have no effect unless the earnings are there, but enough companies recently have been earning enough over their usual dividends to make the tax a powerful market influence. Perhaps a little stimulant for the bulls was one of the things the proponents of the measure had in mind.

Chrysler to Build $5,000,000 Plant

Detroit, July 27 (AP).—The Chrysler Corporation announced today that it is expending approximately $5,000,000 on the construction of a new assembly plant here to be opened in September for the De Soto division.

The plant will consist of two buildings, one for the assembling of vehicles and the other for sheet metal stampings. Both units are to be equipped with new machinery throughout and together will provide more than 650,000 square feet of floor space.

Corn Again Leads Jump in Grains

Chicago, July 27 (AP).—Corn led a steep rise of the grain markets today, 3⅛ cents a bushel maximum for corn, 2⅜ cents for wheat. Abnormal high temperatures and unabated drought over much of the corn belt aroused fears of increasingly disastrous crop damage, and brought about active speculative demand.

Corn closed firm, 2 cents to 2½ above Saturday's finish; July, 93 to 93⅛; September, 90½ to 90⅝; December, 83⅜ to 83½. Wheat, 1¼ to 1½ up; July, 104½; September, 104⅞ to 105; December, 105½ to 105⅝. Oats, ⅜ to ⅞ advanced; September, 86¾ to 86⅞, and Rye showing 1¼ to 2½ cents bulge; September, 74. Results in provisions varied from unchanged figures to 10 cents higher.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, July 27 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Trade was very slow today in the Boston wool market, and the undercurrent of sentiment was fairly firm despite the current dullness.

Scattered moderate increases in purchases of greasy wool and in orders for wool tops gave some encouragement to the wool men who were anticipating an improvement in the market as the fall season approaches. Quotations were unchanged from last week on spot offerings in this market. The slow demand that was experienced in the past month was quite generally accepted as a seasonal tendency.

District Guard Unit Celebrates Its Tenth Year

Seven of Headquarters Detachment Founders Still Members.

A survey of the unit's membership revealed that seven of the original founding group of 35 still are with the unit.

It was the World War that provided the stimulus for organization of the detachment. When the war was over and the Twenty-Ninth Division of the guard was reorganized, the headquarters detachment was formed as a sort of "brain trust" to work out this reorganization—to perform the administrative, training and tactical details and assist the division commander and his staff in formulating policies and decisions.

Because of its duties, the detachment boasts a larger percentage of college-trained men than any other guard unit. A recent survey showed that 19 of the detachment's 33 members are college graduates, most of them from George Washington University.

The typical guardsmen, the survey showed, was a Government employe, 31 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 162 pounds, owning his own automobile, and fond of sports.

Although the detachment observed its tenth anniversary last week-end with a camping trip, the real celebration is being delayed until the full unit will assemble at Indiantown Gap, Pa., from August 8 to August 22, for its annual field training. It will be the eleventh such training session for the unit—far more elaborate and extensive than the camp stay at Virginia Beach in August, 1926, only a few weeks after the detachment was organized.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, July 27.—After dealings had expanded earlier in the day, trading in the stock exchange quieted down toward the close. The industrial group was in good demand, with shipping leading the upturn. Home rails, kaffirs and gilt-edged securities held steady. Transatlantic stocks pushed forward, while German bonds strengthened on the statement of the German finance ministry that tax revenues were increasing. Oils were active and strong with a good demand for Mexican Eagle shares. Leading stocks eased under profit-taking near the end.

Paris—With the majority of active issues weak, prices in the bourse closed irregular today. Rentes sagged, and international issues turned downward. The industrial group, however, had a firm tone.

Liverpool—Wheat futures were slightly improved today on the scarcity of Australian offers, continued dryness in the eastern part of Canada, and reports of an important crop loss in Russia. Scattered speculative buying promoted by firmer Eastern markets and trade calling which disclosed a scarcity of contracts sent cotton futures upward today.

Stewart Faces Ruling Tonight On School Post

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

John M. Stewart, chairman of the county school board, will have a problem on his hands tonight when the board meets at the courthouse.

Stewart will have to decide whether to recognize Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson or the Rev. Walter F. Wolf as a member of the board.

Mrs. Simpson was not reappointed to the board on July 6 and Mr. Wolf was named to replace her. State's Attorney General Abram Staples has ruled that Wolf's election was illegal as he should have been named before July 1.

Mrs. Simpson said yesterday that she would attend the meeting tonight and ask for recognition as a member of the board. Stewart said last night he was undecided as to his action in the matter.

Attorney Claude Thomas announced yesterday that the Homes of Tomorrow Corporation will build a "planned community" in Arlington County similar to the "Chatham Village" development at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The announcement was made after Thomas, members of the county board and of the zoning appeal board returned from a visit to the Pittsburgh project. Thomas said that he would immediately file an application for a change in zoning to permit the development.

It is planned to locate the project on a 28-acre tract along Glebe road and Pershing drive. The cost was estimated at approximately $1,000,000.

Officers of Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, will be elected tomorrow night. The meeting will be held at Legion Hall at Clarendon at 8 o'clock.

Bids will be opened this morning at 11 o'clock in the office of County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan for the remodeling of the courthouse.

The zoning appeal board will meet at the courthouse tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 to consider a number of applications for rezoning of property in the county.

Parker Secretary Is Heard by Jury

Newark, N. J., July 27 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Bading, secretary to Detective Ellis Parker, spent more than four hours today before the Federal grand jury investigating Paul H. Wendel's charge that he was kidnaped and tortured in to congessing falsely the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

As the jury adjourned its second session until Wednesday morning, United States Attorney John J. Quinn indicated she might be called again.

It was reliably reported tonight that four or five witnesses, from both New Jersey and New York, would be summoned for Wednesday's session. Some of them were described as prominent both for their connection with the case "and otherwise."

The same source indicated neither Gov. Harold G. Hoffman nor Parker, Burlington County detective chief, underindictment in New York for the alleged kidnaping, will be called to testify.

Violence Ended By Guardsmen In Milk Strike

State Troops Patrol Town in Mississippi After Shootings, Attacks.

By the Associated Press.

Brookhaven, Miss., July 27.—Hastily summoned National Guardsmen put an end today to violence which Sheriff J. Walter Miller said resulted from a milk strike in the neighboring State of Louisiana.

Armed pickets patrolled Highway 51 south from the Mississippi line to Tangipahoa, La., in their effort to prevent shipment of milk from Mississippi dairies to New Orleans, where the Dairy Farmers Protective League had called a boycott seeking to force the price of milk upward from $1.85 to $2.32 per hundredweight.

In three south Mississippi milk-producing counties—Lincoln, Copiah and Pike—violence was cut short by the arrest of 17 men reportedly active in the anti-milk drive, and the slugging of a milk truck driver near Brookhaven with a pistol butt.

Among those arrested were Henry G. Vernon, president of the Dairy Farmers Protective League, and D. C. Gates, secretary.

News of their arrest brought large numbers of Louisiana members of the dairy league to Brookhaven, and bond of $1,000 each was posted today. District Attorney James W. Cassedy charged them with assault with intent to kill.

Raborn was taken to Kings Daughters Hospital in a serious condition suffering from a fracture of the skull. Today physicians said he was expected to recover.

Turnbough told the sheriff about 20 men were in the attacking group. He said they disarmed him, pulled both from their truck, threatened to hang him and poured out their consignment of milk.

REV. WILLIAM J. KERBY.

Rev. Kerby

College. The papal brief called attention to the fact that he had "rendered the church highly meritorious service" and that he was "a shining example of priestly life."

Among those attending the ceremony which elevated Father Kerby to the rank of monsignor were leaders in Catholic charities throughout the United States. The priest was one of the organizers of the National Conference of Catholic Charities and served as secretary of the organization from its founding in 1910 until 1920. At the time the Pope made him a domestic prelate he was vice president of the board of trustees of the National Catholic School of Social Service.

In the sermon delivered on the occasion of Mgr. Kerby's investiture with the purple robes of his new rank, the Very Rev. Dr. Ignatius Smith, O. P., of the department of philosophy of Catholic University, said:

"The organization and development of a new era in Catholic Charity is due to him. His passion for the wider power of the church, for the welfare of the poor and the progressive betterment of society has commanded the respect of thousands of priests and laity. Before his organization of the National Conference of Catholic Charities he labored with the St. Vincent de Paul Society four summers, establishing the Fresh Air Home in Baltimore, and he has been high in the councils of the Christ Child Society since its inception."

After Mgr. Kerby had accomplished the organization of the charities he helped found the Charities Review and wrote many articles on the problems of work among the poor. His volume, "Social Mission of Charity," became a handbook for the scientific crusade of charity which he had begun.

In June, 1920, President Wilson appointed him to the Board of Charities of the District of Columbia. He was renamed by President Harding in 1923 and by President Coolidge in 1925.

Dr. Kerby, credited with inspiring the founding of the National Catholic School of Social Service, was the school's acting director from 1924 until 1929. He filled the chair of sociology there until 1931 and was a member of the board of trustees at the time of his death.

Mgr. Kerby is survived by sisters, the Misses Josephine, Ora and Leo Kerby, of Washington, and Mrs. Agnes McHugh, of Chicago.

"WE USE Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES on our entire fleet of Yellow Cabs to protect our 20,000,000 passengers against the dangers of blowouts and skidding and because of their dependability and economy"

In operating the largest fleet of cabs in the world, the Yellow Cab Company not only know the importance of taking every precaution to carry their passengers in safety, but they fully realize the necessity of providing dependable, uninterrupted on-time service. They use Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—the safest and most dependable tires built.

Firestone Tires give greatest blowout protection because they run up to 28 degrees cooler. This is due to the Firestone patented process of Gum-Dipping, which prevents internal friction and heat, the greatest enemy of tire life.

Yellow Cabs make millions of stops every day. It is essential that they use tires giving greatest non-skid efficiency. Firestone Tires will stop a car up to 25% quicker, as proved in exhaustive tests made by a leading university. The scientifically designed non-skid tread, with more and tougher rubber on the road, will give you 50% longer non-skid mileage.
